STEEL INDUSTRY READY TO LEAD FOR PROSPERITY

Schwab Pledges Aid for Business.

New York, Oct. 24.—[Special.]—The steel industry "will lead the march back to prosperity," Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, declared at the fall meeting today of the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which he is president. He predicted a 1930 ingot production of around 40,000,000 tons, within 5 per cent of the average for the last ten years.

"Some are inclined to think," he said, "that because business pauses from time to time in its forward course that our natural optimism has somehow been tricked. Those with faith and courage recognize that such pauses really make for sounder progress. It is only in a stagnant civilization that changes do not occur.

Test of "Prosperity."

"The last twelve months is the first real test we have had of our new 'American prosperity,' by which I mean the basic factors underlying our higher standards of living, including mass production, and distribution, and high wages. It is significant that there has not been uncovered any basic structural failure. Because of this I believe that business revival will bring to this country a larger measure of prosperity than the American people have ever known before.

"The steel industry is preparing to meet a greater future demand for our products than we have ever realized in the past."

It was not accurate, Mr. Schwab said, to hold the stock market crash wholly to blame for business depression, or was it accurate to call the crash a mere accompaniment to a general business situation. Although he acknowledged that part time employment was not exactly desirable, he had praise for employers who resorted to this expedient in order to avoid wage slashes or such wholesale layoffs as have characterized bad times in the past.

Sounds Warning Note.

"I want to sound again the warning note which I have mentioned in the past," he said, "that if we plunge headlong into a program of unreasonable expansion only one thing will result—overproduction. We cannot afford to squander our resources either by price cutting below the profit line or by overproduction beyond the demand line.

"We are today on a sane basis, and I believe we shall continue so. We have made certain accomplishments during this trying period which will find a very permanent place in industrial life. I refer particularly to our dealing with that most difficult of problems—unemployment.

"The farsighted and sound handling of our workers' interests during these last months of trying conditions will stand out in bold relief as the major accomplishment of American management today.

Wages Are Maintained.

"It was stated six months ago at our meeting here that there would be no cut in wages, and this policy has been maintained. The second point of progress in this policy has been the substantial avoidance of the traditional practices of wholesale layoffs. Industry, by and large, has retained its trained personnel, spreading out the work.

"Let me say in conclusion that all of us are learning more and more how to benefit from our experiences and how to put them to practical use. We have learned during this recent period of depression how to do things much better than before. Business has been on its mettle, and is working harder today than it has worked in many years."

E. G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, another speaker at the meeting, saw no immediate prospect for improvement in the steel industry and set the beginning of next year as the time when improvement could be expected.

Moving on "Level Keel."

"We are going along on a level keel," he said. "I do not expect anything much in the way of improvement until after the turn of the year. The steel industry is showing common sense in its selling methods. There is considerably greater stability to prices than there was a month or six weeks ago. Bethlehem Steel operations right now are at 53 per cent of capacity."

The same period for better conditions around the beginning of 1931—was indicated by L. E. Gohegan, vice

The killing of Joe Aiello, perhaps the last of the powerful enemies of Scarface Al Capone, was the handiwork of the Capone gang.

This was the judgment of the authorities last night, expressed after an inquest was held, after clews and theories were mulled over and over, and after many witnesses were questioned.

Aiello, who, the police said, had defied the rule of Capone and had determined to maintain himself in control over north side alcohol cookers, peddlers and dealers, was killed by machine gun and shotgun fire on Thursday evening as he left the home of a business partner at 205 North Kolmar avenue, a mile west of Garfield park.

Partner Remains in Hiding.

The partner, who had left the home with Aiello, but by miracle or design had escaped the hail of lead, is Pasquale Prestogiacomo. The family has generally adopted the name "Presto," and the Pasquale became "Patsy."

Patsy Presto fled after the shooting of Aiello and all day yesterday he remained in hiding. Some of the official investigators expressed beliefs that Presto had given information as to Aiello's whereabouts to the Capone gang; that Presto had put Aiello "on the spot."

Witnesses Count Five Killers.

The identity of the murderers—there were five according to the count of witnesses—was not known. Two of the men had appeared openly, two weeks ago, to rent furnished apartments which overlooked the exits of the apartment sheltering Aiello and from which the fatal volleys were fired.

One of the men gave his name as Morris Friend, and rented an apartment at 202 North Kolmar avenue, across the street from the Presto apartment. The other man gave the name of Henry Jacobs, and had rented an apartment at 4518 West End avenue, just around the corner.

These men, the investigators believe, were from some other city, New York or Detroit, and by this time are back in their familiar haunts.

The police here said they were seeking the expert machine gunners of the Capone staff, including "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Claude Maddox, Tony Accardo, Sam Hunt, Mops Volpe, and Frank Rio.

Bundesen Conducts Inquest.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, who previously had received a report from Dr. I. M. Feinberg, coroner's physician, showing that Aiello received wounds from 57 shotgun slugs and machine gun bullets.

The first witness was Frances, the eight year old daughter of Patsy Presto. She told how "Mr. Joe" had arrived at their home, some two weeks ago.

"He never went out of the house," the child said. "Last night, after supper, Mr. Joe told me to call a cab, and I did. The cab came and Mr. Joe and father went out. I heard some shooting, but I didn't see anything."

From the stories of the other witnesses, including those to whom the gangsters had applied for apartments, it appeared that Aiello had been trailed to the Presto home, and that the assassins had been lying in wait for the two weeks that Aiello hid there.

Widow Is Questioned.

Mrs. Catherine Aiello, 2553 Lunt avenue, widow of the gangster, was a tearful witness. Swathed in a heavy veil, she described her husband as president of the Italio-American Importing company, of which Presto was the treasurer and manager.

"Do you know of anything which would help us to clear up this case?" asked Dr. Bundesen of Mrs. Aiello. She shook her head.

"Would you help us if you could?" the coroner persisted, and the widow shook her head in negation.

Vincent Cutia, 827 Milton avenue, reputed once a leader of moonshiners, was taken into custody and held incommunicado at the detective bureau last night. He admitted friendship with Aiello, but denied knowing the motive for the killing.

The name of Aiello stood thirteenth on the list of public enemies issued by the Chicago crime commission. With his name scratched off, the thirteenth place now bears the name of Polack Joe Saltis.

PINCHOT SUES TO CUT OFF FUNDS OF G. O. P. LEADERS WHO QUIT HIM

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, filed suit in Common Pleas court today asking that 46 of the 48 Republican ward leaders who are supporting John M. Hemphill, wet Democratic candidate, be restrained from receiving and disbursing contributions for Mr. Hemphill.

The bill also requested the court to prevent the county commissioners from issuing watchers' certificates of the Republican party to the ward leaders on election day.

1929 BIRTH RATE IN U. S. LOWEST IN FIFTEEN YEARS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The American birth rate for 1929 was announced by the census bureau today as 18.9 per 1,000 population, the lowest for any year since 1915 when such statistics were first compiled on a national scale.

At the same time the infant mortality rate also dropped to the lowest point recorded—68 deaths of infants under 1 year of age for each 1,000 born. This compared with a high infant mortality rate of 101 per thousand births recorded in 1916 and 1918.

Indian Back to Reservation as Vice President

Council Grove, Kas., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The 8 year old Indian boy who trudged sixty-seven miles to carry news of a tribal disturbance today, sixty years later, returned to the scene of the mission he deserted to act as messenger and was greeted with acclaim as the Vice President of the United States.

Memories of the pioneer days when he learned to read and write in the Indian mission were so poignant that Charles Curtis—the Kaw Indian boy of Kansas history—was unable to make his scheduled political speech. Facing an expectant audience, ready for a Republican address, the Vice President apologized.

"I came here for the purpose of making a political speech, but I give you my word I can't do it," the Vice President said.

Kaw Braves Don War Paint.

"I well remember the day in June, 1868, when some of us boys were down at the creek. I had been living at the mission two years. It was there that I learned to read. We heard some yelling and went back to the mission. The Kaw braves were in their war paint.

"They told us to go to the mission and stay there with the women, old men and children. The Cheyennes were coming and they were going out to meet them. The men rode away, and after a while they came back, followed by the Cheyennes. Our men rode into the mission and the Cheyennes circled about a few times. A few shots were fired and then they rode away.

Boy Walks to Topeka.

"Then I was told to go to Topeka and tell the governor that the Cheyennes were not disturbing us. I walked to Topeka and hunted up my grandfather. We went to the governor's office and found that some one on horseback had come in only a little while before and beat me with the information."

"I never returned to the reservation to live," the Vice President continued, "because my grandmother, Julia Pappan, called me to her and asked me to stay in Topeka."

"I stayed," Curtis added.

Girl Missing Since August Found Strangled to Death

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—The body of a girl found by a rabbit hunter on a farm at Telegraph and Van Born roads was identified tonight as that of Alice Collier, 15, who disappeared from her home in August. The girl had been strangled to death, according to Coroner Albert L. French. Identification of the body was made by Mrs. Bertha Collier, the girl's mother.

YOUTH SHOT AS HE ATTEMPTS HOLDUP OF AUTO

A young gunman was shot and perhaps fatally wounded early this morning and his companion was arrested following their attempt to hold up and rob two newspaper men on highway No. 4 four miles north of Lockport, Ill. The wounded youth, Bennie Knistoff, 18 years old, 5105 West 32d street, Cicero, is at St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, with a bullet wound through his chest.

Fred Hauck, 825 Roscoe street, shot Knistoff. With Hauck was William Fillmore, who said he was a newspaper reporter of Omaha, Neb. The two were driving to St. Louis, Mo. They said the gunmen's car trailed them for five miles and when it overtook them, Knistoff jumped out and ran toward them with a revolver drawn. Hauck then fired.

Hauck took Knistoff to the hospital and then surrendered himself to Joliet police. Frank Vacchiano, 17 years old, 5754 South McVicker street, companion to Knistoff, made no effort to escape and was taken into custody by Joliet police.

PARTS WITH 77 PINTS OF RUM TO HOLD WIFE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP)—John Crnkovic today found himself between 77 pints of whisky and his wife, so he told prohibition agents.

A federal judge ordered the liquor returned to John because a raid in which it was seized was held illegal. Government operatives took the whisky back, but Crnkovic declined to accept it, explaining his wife had decided to leave if the liquor was brought into the house.

The agents will ask to have the whisky destroyed.

Italy Princess, Bulgars' King Are Married

BULLETIN.

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 25 (Saturday).—(AP)—Princess Giovanna of Italy and Czar Boris III. of Bulgaria were married in the upper church of Saint Francis here at 10 a. m. to today. Their parents, other royal figures of Europe, and Premier Mussolini were among the distinguished gathering which witnessed the ceremony.

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 24.—She did so want a quiet wedding, this pious little Giovanna, princess of the house of Savoy at this present writing, who in twelve hours hence will be the queen of Bulgaria.

Under the weight of her 23 years she almost took the veil of Franciscan abnegation and poverty a few months ago, they say.

But tomorrow at 10 o'clock in the basilica of San Francisco she will become the wife of King Boris of Bulgaria.

Bonfires blaze tonight on the crests of the Umbrian hills. Five thousand troops are quartered in stone dwellings that cluster on the slopes of the mountains.

Premier Benito Mussolini dashed into this town after a two and one-half hour drive from Rome on roads that usually require four hours of a motorist's time.

Three special trains are loafing across Italy from Pisa to bring the king and queen of Italy, King Boris and Princess Giovanna, and the bridal party into the station below this town tomorrow at 9 o'clock.

Cities Are Contrasted.

In modern Perugia they have electric lights but in old Assisi there are wicks in metal saucers filled with grease set in the window sills and gables and in wrought iron sconces over the doors of the ancient palaces.

As Princess Giovanna is driven up the two mile slope to the church of St. Francis tomorrow troops will line the way, while probably 10,000 persons will stand along the route. Inside the church there will be about 500 guests. Princess Giovanna's witnesses at the wedding will be Prince Humbert and her brother-in-law, Count Calvi di Bergolo. King Boris will have his brother, Prince Cyril, and Prince Albert of Wurtemburg.

Because of the Vatican's stand on "mixed" marriages, there will be no cardinal officiating, only Padre Risso, custodian of the basilica.

Like "Broom of Light."

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The beautiful hill towns of Umbria, from Spoleto to Assisi and Perugia, blazed tonight with tens of thousands of lights.

At a given signal an enormous broom of light swept across the country like the flame of a comet. Church bells rang fifteen minutes at command of the bishop of Assisi and every townsman and thousands of visitors swarmed the streets. In the throng were some of the most important personages in several kingdoms of Europe.

Yankee Hostess to Mussolini.

Premier Mussolini, who arrived today, went to the Villa Venansi, belonging to an architect, Carlo Venansi, whose wife formerly was Bertha Rockwell of Kansas City, Mo.

Former Queen Sophia of Greece was the first royal guest to arrive. This afternoon she made a complete tour of the town, visiting the upper and lower churches of St. Francis.

Gradually the other invited princes and princesses arrived throughout the day. Bulgarian Prime Minister Liaptcheff reached Perugia, whence he will motor to Assisi. It was he who, in 1918, forced the abdication of Czar Ferdinand in favor of Boris to get better terms from the allies. Liaptcheff must meet Ferdinand tomorrow on the station platform when King Boris' train arrives from Pisa.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 24.—As the German liner Baden was leaving Rio bay today against orders a shot from Fort Viga killed 21 third class passengers and injured 75 others. When the ship passed the Santa Cruz fortress three shots were fired ordering the vessel to return, but Capt. Rollin, former commander of the Caparcona, proceeded full speed ahead. The Fort Viga gun then fired at the liner, hitting its rear mast. The boat then returned to port.

SAO PAULO, Oct. 24.—Brazil's three weeks of civil war ended in triumph for the rebel leaders today when military authorities at Rio de Janeiro turned against the government and forced the resignation of President Washington Luis. The outbreak which brought about the final crisis started in Rio late last night when infantry and machine gun battalions left their barracks, established posts along the streets and from there swept the main thoroughfare with bullets.

By noon today the military authorities were in possession of all government buildings and troops planted along the Avenida Rio Branco were pumping a hail of bullets down this avenue, famous for its triple row of trees, forcing every one to keep behind doors which had all been barricaded with iron shutters.

Bows to Will of Junta.

President Washington Luis held out until tonight against actually signing his resignation, though he has been repeatedly urged to so by Cardinal Sebastio Leme and high officials of his fallen government. When the president finally did so, he was taken from Guanabara palace under a heavy guard and jailed in Fort Copacabana by orders of the military junta. He will be 60 on Sunday and is likely to spend his birthday there. Vice President Vianna and all the cabinet were also arrested.

Early this morning in Rio arson and rioting broke out, five newspaper plants and some shops being burned down. This has all been stopped now and except in the forbidden areas of the city, ringed with rebel bayonets, a carnival spirit reigns.

Some of the newspaper offices set on fire include the Critica, Gazeta de Noticias and A Vanguardia Noticia. Other plants ordered destroyed were A Noite and the Journal do Brasil. The same thing occurred later at Sao Paulo, where mobs wrecked the Gaseta Piccolo, the Folha da Noite, the Folha de Manha, the Sao Paulo Journal and the Correio Paulistano.

Telephone messages from Rio de Janeiro early this morning indicated that the fighting there started at Copacabana, on the outskirts of the capital, and by noon the sound of machine guns could be heard distinctly over the telephone from Rio.

Stage Impromptu Carnival.

This afternoon enthusiastic crowds, among whom many are women, were pouring into the center of Rio, which has the appearance of a fete day. Flowers are being distributed by girls. The wildest enthusiasm prevails throughout the city and hundreds of persons parade waving the red ensigns of the triumphant Liberals.

When news of the Rio de Janeiro revolt reached Pernambuco, the northern port seized by the rebels early during the civil war after a 48 hour battle, the triumph was wildly acclaimed, reports coming into Sao Paulo stated. The federal navy that had been sent to blockade the port immediately transferred its allegiance to the revolutionists.

Gets Eyewitness Story.

Receipt of the news of the overthrow of the federal government, pouring into Sao Paulo by telegraph and telephone, immediately precipitated an outbreak here and resulted in a turbulent afternoon the developments of which I was able to watch in the order of their occurrence, as I arrived in Sao Paulo only this morning. I left Rio de Janeiro last night owing to the impossibility at the time of getting trustworthy news of the fighting going on in the south.

When I arrived in Rio de Janeiro last Sunday on the Italian liner Duilio the capital had an ordinary appearance of calm. Sunday crowds were on the

Today is practically the last day anything can be done about it. Sunday, of course, is out, and on Monday it will be rather difficult to get prompt execution on your orders. Today—this afternoon—is the time to probe the situation so that Monday night won't find you with inadequate habiliments for the opening night of opera.

Have you a moth-eaten tailcoat in your home? Have you examined the white vests since they last came back from the wash? How about the hat and the gloves and the overcoat?

Everything in your evening clothes department may be in apple-pie order, but then again it may not. Monday night a few hours before the curtain is no time to find out the bad news. Think it over now and then make a visit this afternoon to the Chicago stores which are showing men's evening clothes and accessories in such abundance.

Styles in dress clothes, a little study will reveal, are subject to change just as much as ordinary clothes. Changes this season are to be noted not only in cut but also in the material and weave.

streets and a parade was organized to greet Cardinal Lema, who had arrived on the same liner as I from Rome. Theaters and movies were running, and crowds were drinking in the cafés and sidewalk terraces.

There was an atmosphere of tenpity, however. The crowds were nervous as on the eve of a bursting storm. All shops carried iron shutters. I was told immediately by the censor that I could send nothing except what was contained in government communiques. These were obviously cooked up. Meanwhile the city was prey to rumors. I was told that every day there were reports that the rebels were on the outskirts of the city. There were reports of nearby revolts and resignations and all editions of the papers were eagerly snatched up.

U. S. Ambassador Arrives.

Yesterday evening, in this seething electrical atmosphere, which needed only a spark to set it off, arrived the German liner Caparcona. Aboard were American Ambassador Edwin V. Morgan and Military Attaché Maj. Lester D. Baker, cutting short a European vacation to get back to their posts. They were met by federal government authorities.

Passengers on the ship brought news that the rebels had radioed to them that they would be in Rio within a few days.

Last night the whole of Rio was agog with excitement. Men sat in the cafés discussing the situation in whispers, and the general feeling was that something was about to break.

Entrains Despite Rumors.

At 8 o'clock last night [5 p. m. Chicago time] I caught a train from Rio de Janeiro to Sao Paulo after having much difficulty in obtaining a safe conduct from the police. There were rumors that the rebels were advancing along the line to cut the railroad and that we would not know whether we could get all the way to Sao Paulo until we got to the junction at the town of Cruseiro, which was the point on which the rebels were concentrating to cut the road and separate Sao Paulo from Rio.

We passed this point in perfect safety and quiet also prevailed along the entire railroad. The rebels, it appears, could only advance slowly over the mountainous country in the vicinity of the railroad, and this area was defended by aviation forces.

At 5 o'clock this morning I reached Sao Paulo. The city was quiet. Reports and rumors were going on and at 11 o'clock I heard rumors that there had been firing in Rio late last night. Still, business was going on as usual in Sao Paulo, and to all appearances no one would have thought that a revolution was in progress back in the capital.

Censor Quits His Job.

Then at 2 o'clock [11 a. m. Chicago time] it began. First a scurrying of crowds in the streets and the banging of shutters and closing of shops. Presently there were outbursts of firing and military officers were dashing by in cars. I ran first to the government telegraph office and was told that the censorship was still on. Up the street I dashed again through swirling crowds running for safety, and amid the crisp barking of rifle bullets to the All-American cable office. There crowds were huddled inside, and as we went in a young man who has been doing the censoring rushed out, having done his last work. He had just been shown a dispatch saying that the dictatorship had been established and he had better get out. The last we saw of him he was beating it up the street and the cables were free.

All government officials at Sao Paulo fled shortly after 2 o'clock, taking refuge in villas in the interior of the state. Some went to Santos, the port of Sao Paulo, in an effort to catch coastwise ships leaving the country.

Hears Guns While Cabling.

As I write this the shouts and cries of the mob are coming up from the streets below the cable office and the sound of firing can be heard.

Temporarily Sao Paulo is without a government except for the police force. The rigid censorship which has kept all news hog-tied as to what has been going on in the country has been lifted.

An hour after the news of the rebel triumph at Rio reached Sao Paulo soldiers paraded down the streets; firing broke out at the government palace and also at police headquarters, just next door.

It is not expected that the outburst will last long here, and we are waiting any minute for a white flag to be run up over the government house as a sign of surrender.

Fing Rises as Words Are Sent.

In fact, just as I finished pulling the last sheet out of my typewriter a man watching at the window shouts, "They've run the white flag up over the government palace!" All is over.

The firing now has about stopped, and people are removing the shutters barricading their doors. Pedestrians again appear on the streets. The battle to establish a military dictatorship in Sao Paulo has lasted just an hour. There have been no casualties and only slight destruction of property.

The initial triumph of the rebel element in Sao Paulo proper is being directed by Gen. Maura, under instructions from Rio de Janeiro, but as I write a phone call has just come in from the Braz district at the edge of town that a heavy battle has broken out between the rebel military and police and troops still backing the federal government.

Violence also appears to be breaking out just outside the cable office where I sit. Reports come that soldiers have clashed with mobs in the streets and rioting has broken out in front of the government newspaper Gazeta, which crowds have set on fire.

After a momentary lull, when everything here in the center of the city seemed quiet, I walked out from the cable office around the corner to the square before the government palace. It was not long before I had to return.

Autos were racing up and down the streets and people were scurrying along close to the sides of the buildings with frightened looks on their faces. I had not been out three minutes before a howling mob came around the corner street firing and screaming. Every one started to run for shelter. By the time I got back to the cable office a merry fusillade was going on.

Throughout all this the All-American cable operators have been working at their keys sending this story to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Crowds have again gathered in the hallway of the building, the sole refuge left, as all other buildings in the street are once more barred and shuttered.

Rioting broke out tonight in Santos, according to phone messages just received. Two newspaper plants were burned by the mob and firing is going on in the streets.

The Sao Paulo state forces will not resist the military junta formed today at Rio de Janeiro. At a joint meeting of the military chiefs of the federal forces and state troops at the Hotel Esplanada late tonight, the state leaders agreed to give in after it was pointed out to them that it was useless for the battalions guarding the government palace to hold out when all the rest of Brazil has accepted the rule of the junta.

Following this meeting the military chiefs made speeches from the balcony of the hotel to crowds outside, telling them all to go home as the revolution was over. Rowdy, cheering crowds are now parading the streets. Completion of the junta government is expected to take place tomorrow.

The setting up of a dictatorship by the military rebels had been brewing for a couple of weeks. The military authorities of the states of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, desirous of joining the rebel tide advancing from the south, wanted President Washington Luis to resign of his own accord. His refusal culminated in their deciding last night to force his hand and make him resign.

Armistice on 3 Fronts.

The dictatorship is in reality joint action by the soldiers on both sides. It was carefully prepared and has been followed by an immediate armistice on the three battle fronts on the borders between the states of Parana, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro.

Casualties in the fighting, particularly in the battles centering around the railroad junction at Itarare on the border of the states of Sao Paulo and Parana, have not been really heavy considering that 80,000 men were engaged on the rebel side and 50,000 on the government side.

The course of the revolution appears to have run in much the same way as that in Argentina two months ago, except that Brazil's has lasted three weeks and there has been civil war and bloodshed.

It is expected that the military junta will hold power for a period and govern by decree until new elections are held and another president is elected.

President Elect Prestes does not enjoy popularity even in his own state of Sao Paulo. It is said on all sides that his 400,000 majority last March was obtained only through fraud in counting the votes and that his opponent, Dr. Getulio Vargas, president of the revolting state of Rio Grande do Sul, really had a majority. Señor Prestes, however, was President Washington Luis' choice to succeed himself.

Pessoa Murder Stirs Nation.

The trouble started last March just after the elections were held, when the opposition charged corruption and declared that Señor Prestes would never be inaugurated. The opposition was pronounced in the north in the small state of Parahyba, and there, not long after the elections, Joao Pessoa, defeated candidate for vice president, and president of the state of Parahyba, was assassinated. After much violence things calmed down during the summer, and President Elect Prestes paid a visit to the United States and Europe.

The calm, however, was only apparent, for smoldering under it were protests that Señor Prestes was being crammed down the people's throats. Besides this there was discontent over the increasingly worse economic conditions and the failure of President Washington Luis' scheme for artificially keeping up the price of coffee, Brazil's chief export.

The revolution was apparently organized according to a concerted plan between the states of Minas Geraes, Santa Catharina, Parana, and Parahyba in the north, with the principal leaders being former President Arturo Benardes, the defeated presidential candidate, Dr. Vargas, and Señor Carlos of Minas Geraes.

It broke out in the south on Oct. 3 and quickly spread until yesterday the government could only lay claim to four states. These states were Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Bahia, and Para.

The outside world was kept in ignorance of what has been going on through censorship, and the government claimed repeated military successes, even up to this morning.

Rebel Advance Concealed.

As a matter of fact, the rebels were gradually closing in on Rio de Janeiro. One difficulty of the federal government was that there was no response to its calls for reserves. The general public was apathetic to the government, even in the federal district around the capital.

The Brazilian electorate is highly illiterate and its desire to rebel was largely unintelligent, but was based on the general belief that things were going wrong, so any new government would be better.

The army showed little enthusiasm in defending the government's cause or acting energetically on the president's appeal, for the junta of arms is a strong fraternity and this one objected to fighting its fellow members. They decided that it would be preferable to establish joint military control as in Argentina, rectifying elections and eventually modify the constitution. President Washington Luis' stubbornness and refusal to resign delayed their plan three weeks.

WASHINGTON SHOCKED.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—News that the government of Brazil had been overthrown by rebel forces came as a shocking surprise to Washington officials today.

Official confirmation of press dispatches telling of the success of the rebel revolt reached the state department late this evening and immediately raised a number of questions involving future relations with Brazil which Secretary Stimson declined to discuss. It is believed, however, that the Hoover administration will not long delay recognizing the provisional government if the new heads of state show ability to maintain order and promise to respect American property rights.

Secretary Stimson said that if the need for protecting the rights of Americans arose the United States would act promptly.

BRAZIL REBELS SEIZE RIO

3. Rio Grande do Sul is headquarters of the southern rebels from where they advanced and closed in on the federal capital.

New York, Oct. 24.—Gen. Leite de Castro, newly named provisional president of Brazil is one of the most distinguished and picturesque figures in the Brazilian army, according to Nebelung de Araujo, a member of the victorious Liberal party of Brazil, who is now in New York.

"Gen. de Castro is in his early fifties," said Senhor de Araujo, "and already has had a brilliant career which has led him through jungles and through foreign countries. He is an active and handsome man, and one of the best dressed and most aristocratic officers in the army. In his younger days he was a great athlete. He won distinction as a polo player. He was a master of the sword and at one time was world's champion in fencing.

"His professional career was characterized by intelligence and zeal. He introduced great improvements in the living conditions of the soldiers. He organized professional schools in the various regiments and also formed a most efficient quartermaster department."

YOUTH KILLED; U. S. FREES DRYS IN RECORD TIME

Raiders Led to Still by a Minister.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The swiftest federal intervention on record in the history of prohibition enforcement was that in the case of Emile Matsumato, 21 years old, a Tacoma, Wash., youth of French-Japanese parentage, who was shot and killed on Aug. 30, 1926, in the woods near Orting, Wash.

The federal prohibition posse which came into brief conflict with state laws here was led by the Rev. George A. Seeley, then pastor of the Free Methodist church of Orting, and publisher of the Orting Oracle, a weekly newspaper, who was armed with a loaded revolver.

The great books of the law are closed in this case, the killers left with no stain on their names, the killing recorded and dismissed as justified, although there never was a trial, and no real investigation was ever made. The plea of self-defense was made by federal agents, accepted by federal prosecutor and courts, although Matsumato had been shot in the back.

Dismissed on U. S. Motion.

The day after the killing, while the state prosecutor was at work gathering the facts to file an information for murder, the federal court intervened, took the case away from the state in a hurried hearing, never prosecuted, released the agents and the minister on personal recognizance, and finally the whole case was dismissed on motion of the United States attorney.

It is not known today who fired the shot that killed Matsumato, for the state in this conflict of jurisdiction and prosecution succumbed with hardly a struggle, due to the political situation which then existed, and the cry that was raised that the state officers were against prohibition enforcement. The state officials also felt helpless under the recent Supreme court ruling giving jurisdiction of such cases to the federal courts.

Stirs War on Moonshiners.

During his pastorate and brief editorship in Orting, the young minister has stirred things up against the moonshiners. On July 26, 1926, until just before the Matsumato killing, his paper had carried in black borders an editorial on law enforcement which closed with this:

"The government is strong enough to enforce any law, even the eighteenth amendment, in spite of a few lazy, miserly moonshiners and bootleggers, who are too languid to earn an honest living, and thus play the pirate upon an innocent public.

"Every citizen should endeavor to protect our government, its laws and its people. Demand law enforcement and you will get it. If an officer refuses or neglects to enforce the law, go with him and see that he does it right."

Told Agents About Still.

Mr. Seeley acted on his own advice. He had been informed of the existence of a still in the woods about 12 miles from town. He had called on the federal prohibition officers with this information, and they had sent out a posse headed by W. H. Kinnaird, district enforcement officer.

There were at least six persons in the posse that went into the woods under the guidance of the young minister. One of the group carried a .32 special rifle. The others carried revolvers.

According to the story of the agents, they came upon a small cabin beside a creek bed, where a still was in operation. This was owned, it developed later, by William Hersell, who had employed Matsumato to help him.

There was no one at the cabin and the posse scattered, hiding in the brush and waiting for the operators to appear. They declare that a hidden marksman fired at them, and they returned the fire.

Shot While on Ground.

Hersell said that he and Matsumato plunged into the undergrowth when they heard the men approaching the clearing. They had gone but a few feet, he said, when bullets hummed over their heads and crashed into the brush around them. Matsumato was running behind and carrying a rifle. Hersell said he waved his hat in surrender. They were in a low place and the men were coming down the ridge and had a clear view of them. Matsumato stumbled over a log and was shot as he lay on the ground, according to Hersell, who said there was no shooting from their side.

A murder warrant was issued that same afternoon and Seeley and the agents were taken to the Tacoma jail. Seeley said in jail that he had carried a loaded revolver, but had not fired it. He said the bootleggers were out to get him, that they would like to keep him in jail, but it couldn't be done, as this was a federal case. He was right about that, for in the morning the United States attorney's office went into action and the prisoners were released that afternoon by orders of a federal judge in Seattle.

Acted as United States Officer.

The petition for Seeley's release, which was drawn by the United States attorney's office, stated that he was acting under the authority of an internal revenue officer, "that he did not in fact commit murder, but on the other hand the killing was committed in self-defense and to save his life, and that he was acting within the line of duty of an officer of the United States and whatever acts were done were done under authority of and by virtue of the laws of the United States."

There was no federal indictment.

The state had no more chance than a man in the moon," said James W. Selden, the state prosecutor. "The law is all on the side of the federals, and they have control of the grand jury."

The case against Hersell for violation of the prohibition laws, a case in which there was plenty of evidence, was dismissed on motion of the United States attorney some months later. There was never any trial of any kind.

This is the fifteenth of a series of prohibition articles. The next will appear tomorrow.

CURRAN CHARGES NYE SEEKS ONLY WET CULPRITS

Ignores Anti-Saloon League, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—A charge that the Nye senatorial campaign fund committee has been investigating expenditures of the wets, but has ignored activities of the Anti-Saloon league, was made today by Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in making public its latest financial satement.

"I wonder if anybody knows," said Mr. Curran, "that the Nye committee has just put us through such an investigation so exhaustive that it felt more like a currycomb than a conversation—and yet they have not lifted a finger to find out about the national expenditures of the Anti-Saloon league and the Methodist board of prohibition and morals, and who pays the Rev. Sunday for the stump speeches he is now making in Ohio.

"Like Caraway Committee."

"I guess they are like the Caraway committee, which gave us two weeks' currycombing in Washington last spring after fishing through our private letter files, and then let off Bishop Cannon with an affectionate pat on the back as he sailed away to Brazil. Sometimes life seems like just one dry senator after another."

The association's financial report showed receipts of $78,717 from Sept. 1 to Oct. 21 and expenditures amounting to $110,717 for the same period. Among contributions to the association is $5,000 from Stanley Field of Chicago.

G. O. P. Aids Candidates.

Reports filed today with the clerk of the house by the Republican congressional committee and the Democratic national committee show that the Republicans have recently sent $163,200 into twenty-nine states to aid their house candidates and that the Democrats have a deficit of $596,375, including a loan of $220,000 from John J. Raskob, their national chairman.

HUNT FOR WOMAN IN SLAYING OF YOUNG HOODLUM

John [Red] Carr and a woman whose identity was not revealed were being sought by Racine avenue police last night in connection with the murder early yesterday of John [T-Bone] Guida, minor Chicago avenue district hoodlum and brother of the more notorious Walter Guida. Guida's body, with a bullet through the head, was discovered when police broke in the door of a saloon at 836 North Racine avenue after a woman told them of hearing shots fired there.

Joe Liebrock, reputed joint owner of the saloon with Carr, was taken into custody last night, his face bruised as though from a recent fight. He had been drinking and police deferred questioning him. The name of the woman thought to have precipitated the quarrel which led to the shooting was withheld by Capt. Joseph Palzynski.

Carr and Guida were arrested in the Oakton hotel in 1928 in what was described as an attempt to avenge the death of their friend, Sam Criscione, who was shot by the hotel manager for attempting to assault a woman guest. More recently Carr was arrested in connection with the robbery of Mrs. William Hale Thompson, wife of the mayor.

IDENTIFY ONE OF TWO BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTO

6 Fatalities Recorded in County.

The body of a young man who was burned to death with his companion, a boy about 16 years old, when their automobile crashed early yesterday into a freight train at Wadsworth, Ill., and burst into flames, was identified last night as that of Leroy Stack, 22 years old, of 876 54th avenue, West Allis, a suburb of Milwaukee.

Identification was made at a mortuary in Waukegan by Mrs. E. J. Junkins of West Allis, Stack's aunt. At a late hour no identification of the second victim had been made. Authorities were inclined to the belief that the boy might have been a road pickup. The accident occurred on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad tracks, ten miles northwest of Waukegan.

Six deaths yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 845. The victims:

Louis Krueger, 53 years old, 5003 South Halsted street. Died in the Southwest General hospital of injuries incurred Thursday when he was struck by the automobile of James Thompson, 2531 Shakespeare avenue, at 63d and Halsted streets.

Mrs. Mary Glennie, 54 years old, 8536 South Paulina street. Killed when she was struck by a truck while crossing Ashland avenue at 84th street. Reginald Speers, 8100 South Loomis street, the driver, was held.

Mrs. Alice Wilson, 60 years old, colored, 4806 Indiana avenue. Fatally injured when she was struck by a car driven by Stranger Cooke, 6021 South Throop street, at Michigan avenue and 48th street.

Maurice R. Wiley, 31 years old, 2919 Paxton avenue. Fatally injured when his automobile crashed into a safety island at Michigan avenue and 41st street. He died at the Provident hospital.

William F. Cooney, 70 years old, 7837 South Paulina street. Died at his home of injuries received Oct. 8 when he was struck by an auto at Paulina and 79th streets. Cooney, a railroad conductor, retired three years ago after 49 years of service with the Chicago and Alton.

Mrs. Mary O'Donnell, 45 years old, 5415 South Wood street. Fatally injured when she was struck by the automobile of Frank Webster, 4137 Ellis avenue, at Garfield boulevard and South Marshfield avenue. Webster was held.

FOUR ACCUSED OF $15,000 FRAUD ON WAR VETERANS

A conspiracy which he said enabled racketeers to obtain between $15,000 and $20,000 of the money contributed by the public for disabled war veterans on Forget-Me-Not day a month ago, was described yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney C. E. Lounsbury, following issuance of warrants for Joe Karchmer and his wife, Mary, of 3510 Pine Grove avenue; Frank Zalmanoff, brother of Mrs. Karchmer, and Samuel H. Miller, 6040 Winthrop avenue.

Lounsbury said Miller originally had proper authority to appoint volunteer collectors but that he conspired with the Karchmers to induce dozens of girls to distribute the Forget-Me-Nots and to bring the proceeds to Karchmer instead of turning the money over to the veterans.

The extra supplies of Forget-Me-Nots and coin receptacles were obtained from outside the city, Lounsbury said.

SOCIETY WOMAN IS ARRESTED ON PARKING CHARGE

Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, 138 Oakwood street, Lake Forest, north shore society woman and wife of the Chicago general agent of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, spent an hour in the Evanston police station yesterday following her arrest on a charge of parking double on the wrong side of the street.

Mrs. Chase appeared indignant at her arrest and told the police she "always parks that way." Her indignation increased when $25 bond was demanded and her purse contained but $2. After numerous telephone protests to Evanston officials, Mayor Charles T. Bartlett finally asked the police to reduce the bond to $10, which was guaranteed by Chief of Police William O. Freeman.

MRS. PRICE SAYS SHE'S VICTIM OF BAND OF CROOKS

Defends Self at Trial for Fake Holdup.

Mrs. Laura B. Price, wife of Edwin Price, wealthy packers' supply manufacturer, told Judge Friend in the Criminal court yesterday that she is the innocent victim of a band of crooks who first tried to blackmail her and then implicated her in an alleged conspiracy to have her jewelery stolen to collect the insurance. She is on trial before the judge on a charge of conspiracy.

Mrs. Price, who says she is 38 years old, admitted that she had gambled at the Waveland club and lost to Joe Josephs or Joe Jacobs, she used both names, at the roulette tables. She said that she did not know that his was a gambling palace which George [Bugs] Moran, gangster, is supposed to have controlled.

Husband Is in Court.

The wealthy husband of Mrs. Price was in the courtroom throughout the time she tried to rebut the evidence of the state. Mrs. Price was attired completely in blue and although usually speaking very low raised her voice several times when she accused the state's attorney's office of being in on the conspiracy against her.

Mrs. Price charged that Chief Investigator Pat Roche had told her what to say in her so-called confession, which was read to the judge on Thursday. She said that everything in the confession was untrue and that she had only said the things Roche told her to say in order to get released.

She testified that Maurice A. Barnett, who is now under conviction in the case, was the chief conspirator against her. She said that Barnett, whom she had previously met more than ten years ago, persuaded her to get out insurance on her jewels. She said that Barnett was the only one who knew that she was going to visit her modiste at 61 East Goethe street on the day she was robbed in February, 1929. The applications for the insurance and for the proof of loss she signed in blank, she testified.

Tells of Blackmail Attempt.

As far as Joe Baum, one of the actual robbers, is concerned, Mrs. Price testified he tried to blackmail her by threatening to tell her husband untruths about her and Barnett. She admitted giving him $600 to settle a $6,000 blackmail demand, she said.

Mrs. Price told the judge that Barnett knew of the fact that she had pawned a ring for $500 to pay her roulette losses without her husband knowing it. Although frankly admitting her gambling, she refused to tell who accompanied her on her visits to the Waveland club. She was cross-examined by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and John Hampton. The trial may be finished today.

Before Mrs. Price took the stand several of her friends testified that she had a good reputation for "honesty and integrity." Among them were Fred A. Schaaf, 1448 Lake Shore drive, piano manufacturer, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Robb, 2000 Lincoln Park west.

ACTRESS BRIDE OF A YEAR DIVORCES MICHAEL CUDAHY JR.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Michael Cudahy Jr. of the Chicago meat packing family was divorced today by Muriel Evans Cudahy, former film actress, whom he married at Riverside, Cal., July 6, 1929. Cudahy did not appear to contest the divorce.

Previous to the marriage young Cudahy attempted to elope with the blonde actress, but was returned to Los Angeles by sheriff's deputies upon orders of his mother, who later gave her approval to the match.

Mrs. Cudahy, who charged cruelty, testified with difficulty and upon leaving the stand broke down sobbing.

"He was always nagging me," she testified. "And he was always breaking engagements for no reason at all. I would have to go alone. And sometimes he would not come home until 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning."

Norman J. Gawne, a friend, corroborated her testimony. He added that young Cudahy once told him he was sorry he ever had married the actress.

VERBAL SHOTS FLY IN BATTLE FOR SENATE SEAT

Mrs. McCormick Attacks Democrats' Record.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Illinois' senatorship battle steamed up last night, the Republicans reproaching the Democrats and the Democrats assailing the Republicans on unemployment, tariff, prohibition, farm relief and other problems of the day. The high lights were:

1. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee, accused the Democrats of departing from Al Smith's advice to build up a constructive program for the welfare of the country and of acting instead as a "wrecking crew" in the desire to make political campaign material.

2. James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee, declared that in the "Republican revolt" growing out of Mayor Thompson's indorsement of Mr. Lewis, "not one word is sounded" on taxes, unemployment relief, and prohibition, but "only the refrain, 'Hold fast to the political jobs.'"

Mrs. McCormick Hits Democrats.

Mrs. McCormick, charging that the Democrats have ignored the counsel of Al Smith not to become a party of obstruction for political purposes only, declared the Democrats, while assailing the tariff as "Grundyized," helped put it through. She said 70 per cent of the Democratic senators "voted to keep the so-called infamous 'Grundy' rates in the bill."

"If an economic crime was committed by the passage of the tariff bill," said Mrs. McCormick, "the Democrats surely must share the blame."

Mrs. McCormick quoted to her night audiences from an address of Al Smith on Nov. 14, 1928, soon after the election. She said:

"Gov. Smith said: 'The Democratic party certainly would not be in a position four years from now to solicit the confidence and support of the American people if during that period it neglected to build up a constructive program and relief entirely upon the failure of the opposition party. That cannot be done by the minority party permitting itself to become a party of obstruction and opposition for political purposes only.'

Raps "Obstruction Tactics."

"That was the advice of Gov. Smith to his party. The record does not show any such constructive effort. On the contrary, Democrats of the senate and house have been solely a party of obstruction and opposition entirely devoted to partisan purposes.

"What was done by the Democrats with regard to the tariff? The Democrats assailed the bill on two grounds —one that it made an upward revision of industrial schedules, which effect whatever benefit was given to the farmer, and that it increased the tariff on manufactured goods to such an extent that it would cost the farmers and wage earners of the country a billion dollars a year. I say that both of those criticisms of the tariff bill are based on false grounds.

"The tariff bill was delayed in the senate for more than a year, and this delay was due entirely to Democratic opposition. Business conditions were being further unsettled because of the uncertainty as to what the tariff bill might provide.

"After the farm relief act became a law on June 15, 1929, and before the members of the federal farm board could hold its first meeting on July 14, the Democrats already had denounced the act as a failure. Never since have they been willing to have this great plan given a fair test."

Lewis Attacks G. O. P.

Mr. Lewis in his night address declared that the great issue of the Republicans is "hang on to the political jobs." Addressing a meeting at Carl Schurz High school, he said:

"What is that tocsin sounding on the air like a bell proclaiming 'new liberty'? It is the clarion call of Brothers Snow and Harding crying to the wavering army of their once command: 'Hold fast, heed not the order of the Commanding General Thompson.' Treasurer Harding is singing the penitential hymn, 'Wash me and I shall be whiter than Snow.'

"How we can hear the wail of Brer Harding pleading for continuance in power and scorning the charge that he, in obedience to his alleged colleague, is in the conspiracy to politically entomb the king!

"Amid this confusing complication now put on in the central circles of Republican revolt we ask: Where is one promise to reduce taxation—to provide permanent employment in Chicago to those the national powers at Washington have put down and out?

"Why is there not one word of how any result of any referendum on prohibition will work to reduce the crime, lessen the taxes, preserve the youth, and save the home?"

In discussing the prohibition question, Mr. Lewis quoted scripture and dwelt upon the first miracle.

"At the marriage feast at Cana, Christ turned water into wine," he said. "Why should you be branded criminals under our prohibition laws, if you were present at such a feast?"

Political Notes

The Lincoln park board has mailed 35,000 pamphlets to voters in the park district urging approval of the $3,000,000 park extension bond issue referendum.

Gov. Emmerson will speak over WLS from 7:45 to 8 o'clock this evening.

Walter Nesbit of Belleville, nominee for congressman at large, and Edward J. Barrett, Chicago, nominee for state treasurer, are billed as the speakers for the weekly Democratic luncheon next Wednesday.

Democratic women will try to set a new attendance record at the James Hamilton Lewis luncheon of the Illinois Women's Democratic clubs at the Hotel Sherman this noon. As 6 o'clock last night, Mrs. John S. Clark announced 2,500 reservations had been made. Former Senator Lewis' speech will be broadcast over WLS starting at 2:45.

Otto F. Reich, Republican nominee for president of the county board, will speak at two noon meetings today before the Illinois League of Republican Women at the Morrison and before the German club in the Steuben club building.

Candidacy of Commissioner Francis L. Boutell for assessor has been indorsed by the Norwegian-American Republican club.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will make the principal address at a dinner given under the auspices of the Foreign Language Press at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow evening. Twenty-one nationalities will be represented.

At a luncheon at the Bismarck hotel Maj. Carlos Ames, Republican nominee for sheriff, was assured of the indorsement of fifty-seven community newspapers whose representatives were present.

Among the members of a newly organized women's committee to support Otto F. Reich for president of the county board are Florence Holbrook, Willa B. Laird, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. Bertha Baur, and Mrs. George B. Swift.

The Chicago Teachers' federation, the Wage Earners' league, and the South Side Business Men's association have indorsed Probate Judge Henry Horner for reelection.

MAYOR'S BOLT PUTS COUNTY G. O. P. IN STEW

City Hall Simmers with Political Rumors.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Members of the G. O. P. county committee were running in circles yesterday as a result of the mayor's action in bolting the Republican ticket and coming out for James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for United States senator.

None of them was heard to express regret over the "straight Republican ticket" action of Thursday, but some of them admitted worry over the danger to the county ticket in Thompson's program.

Threat to Ward Chiefs.

Some of the stories of what the mayor has said he intends to do are the following:

1. To call in every ward committeeman who has a city hall job or patronage and tell him he must sign on the dotted line for the Thompson program or walk the plank.

2. To distribute a fund of $100,000 among ward committeemen who stand by him, that fund to be distributed on the basis of $30 a precinct.

3. To indorse Democratic county candidates whose Republican opponents will not sign up with him.

It was said definitely by one of the leaders that a ward committeeman was called to the mayor's office and told that unless he signed some form of document for Lewis he would lose his own place on the pay roll and that a number of supporters for whom he had found places in the city service would be discharged.

Angry at De Priest.

One specific report in this connection was that all of Congressman Oscar De Priest's men are to be fired from the city hall today.

It is estimated that 400 policemen will be transferred from regular duty to special work tomorrow as the result of Mayor Thompson's order to assign two patrolmen to each colored church to distribute his anti-McCormick circulars to Negro voters.

Mayor Thompson's attitude on the senatorship came to the attention of diners in the Celtic room of the Hotel Sherman at noon when he entered, accompanied by Corporation Counsel Ettelson.

As they passed the long table near the door where the Democratic leaders and their satellites ordinarily have luncheon, Mayor Thompson stopped and hailed the group. The only big leader present was National Committeeman Michael L. Igoe and the response to a greeting by the mayor came from him.

"Hello, boys. I'm for J. Ham and I'm wet!" said the mayor.

"Well, who cares?" asked Igoe.

Echoes from Downstate.

There were echoes from the mayor's utterances downstate also. At Casey, in Cass county, State Senator Andrew S. Cuthbertson found placards urging the election of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, dry independent, "to beat the Chicago city hall." In a recent open letter to the Anti-Saloon league Cuthbertson denied there was any McCormick-Thompson alliance, and later Mrs. O'Neill said that his statement was false.

"Now that Mrs. O'Neill charges me with falsehood in my letter to Dr. Safford, head of the Anti-Saloon league," said Senator Cuthbertson in a massmeeting speech, "let me ask how her statement, so glibly made and often repeated, that Mrs. McCormick is the candidate of the city hall, squares with the truth in face of the mayor's statement that he supports Lewis?"

RECENT $106,000 STOCK DEAL BY BOB DISCLOSED

New York, Oct. 24. — [Special.] — Charles V. Bob, missing promoter of a score of enterprises, sold his interests in the International Chromium corporation to Harold E. Talbott Jr., polo ist and financier, and four other New York capitalists for $106,000 last Oct. 2. Just a week before he disappeared in Chicago, it was learned today.

Bob "cashed in" on at least part of the proceeds from this sale, it was learned, for a $45,000 check, representing part of the sales price, was cashed within a few days after the transaction.

The date of the sale coincides with the suspension, from the Curb exchange of Piperno & Co., the brokerage firm which handled many of Bob's stocks. This suspension caused the investigations into Bob's activities.

WOMAN PLEADS GUILTY IN LIQUOR CASE; IS FINED

Mrs. Mary Hurn, 61 years old, who violated the dry laws because, among other reasons, she didn't believe in them, pleaded guilty yesterday and was fined $260 and given a one year suspended jail sentence by City Judge Robert E. Glasscott of Michigan City, Ind.

She was anything but defiant as she stood quietly in court, in direct contrast to her attitude at the time of her arrest last August. At that time she sharply criticized the prohibition amendment, and said she had lost respect for the law because of graft. She was formerly a member of the W. C. T. U., she said.

Mrs. Hurn was arrested in Michigan City when she drove her automobile past a stop light. Search of her car disclosed 38 gallons of alcohol. It was charged that Mrs. Hurn made runs from Chicago to various resort towns. Following her arrest in Indiana, Chicago police raided her home in West Marquette road and confiscated more than 10 gallons of alcohol and whisky.

PAUL SCHULZE PUTS COOKIES INTO POLITICS

County Board Nominee Is Also Patron of Arts.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Reversing the usual process of making bread from dough, Paul Schulze made his dough out of bread. He is a Republican candidate for county commissioner, and is known to political audiences as the "cookie man." Attached to each of his campaign cards is a paper sack containing a couple of ginger snaps or macaroons. It puts Schulze's name in every mouth at meetings.

For twenty-eight years Mr. Schulze was a breadmaker, one of the biggest bakers in the United States, with plants in nine cities. Personally he never baked a loaf and he avows he cannot even fry an egg. "But," says he, "I always knew where to employ the best expert bread makers," by way of giving point to his campaign slogan—"Put Business Methods in Public Affairs."

Patron of Fine Arts.

Mr. Schulze is now out of bread and in biscuits. His hobby is paintings and he is a patron of the fine arts. He's the man who got the Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington for the Art institute.

He has founded a gallery in the Art institute and filled it with American paintings as a memorial to his son, Capt. Walter H. Schulze, who was graduated from West Point in 1917 and was in the air service during the war. On the day the peace treaty was signed, Capt. Schulze was picked to carry the news to the American forces east of the Rhine, and after delivering his message his plane crashed, resulting in his death.

A Native of Germany.

Mr. Schulze was born in Osterode at the foot of the Harz mountains in Germany in 1864 and came to the United States in 1883. He became bookkeeper in a wholesale flour house in Minneapolis and later came to Chicago as representative of the Washburn-Crosby company. In the World's Fair year, 1893, he organized and became president of the Schulze Baking company.

In the 28 years he directed this concern it became one of the largest in the United States, with bakeries in nine cities and consuming more than 7,000 barrels of flour a week. He sold his interests in 1921, and went into the manufacture of biscuits, and this year was put on the ticket as a business candidate.

Becomes an Art Collector.

Mr. Schulze drifted naturally into art as a collector. First he went in for fine oriental rugs, and after covering his floors, set about filling his walls with something comparable in fine paintings. He bought a few pictures and then got into it as a real hobby, and now has a great private collection.

Among his treasures are 600 etchings kept in a special safe, and 46 paintings of the late Andreas Zorn, Swedish painter. Mr. Schulze knows personally most of the contemporary American artists of importance.

Mayor Dever in 1924 made Mr. Schulze chairman of the committee of 75 appointed to acquire the Stuart portrait of Washington for Chicago. It took three months to collect the purchase price of $75,000, among the contributors being 220,000 school children who gave pennies and nickels and dimes. Mr. Schulze is director of the Chicago Bank of Commerce, trustee of the Concordia Normal school, vice president of the Municipal Art league and governing member of the Art institute.

COUNTY AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR 6 ROAD PROJECTS

Contracts were awarded yesterday by the county board for construction work on six highway improvements. Bids on seventeen projects which were opened before the board on Thursday were referred to a committee for investigation.

Awards granted yesterday were for work on Devon avenue to cost $11,454; 131st street, $16,321; Palatine road, $40,135; Waukegan road grade separation, $82,164; McHenry road, $50,228, and Crawford avenue, $75,888.

The action to pave Crawford avenue from 33d street to 63d place follows considerable agitation by residents of the territory it traverses. President Cermak of the board and Commissioner Whalen were especially active in bringing about the paving, which is for a distance of three and a half miles.

TRAIN KILLS TRUCK DRIVER.

EX-MELROSE PARK MAYOR ARRESTED AS BANK CLOSES

Charge C. J. Wolf with $80,000 Embezzlement

Charges of embezzlement which may run as high as $80,000 were made late yesterday against Charles J. Wolf, former mayor of Melrose Park, following the closing yesterday of the Citizens' State bank of Melrose Park, of which Wolf was president until last July.

Wolf was immediately arraigned before Justice of the Peace C. Richard Betts of Maywood and his bonds were fixed at $35,000. Two warrants accusing him of embezzling $20,000 and $8,000 were sworn out and signed by a director of the bank. The charges were made on recommendation of Assistant State's Attorneys Henry Ayers, Robert Donigan and Edward Markham, who estimate the shortage may run as high as $80,000.

Refuses to Make Statement.

The former bank head was found in the offices of his attorney, Ode L. Hankin, 10 North Clark street, and served with the warrants. He refused to make a statement after his arraignment except to say he would furnish bond. Wolf, it was learned, was asked to resign from the bank during the summer.

The Citizens' State bank was closed by state bank examiners following an all night meeting with officers and directors. The institution has been experiencing a slow but steady run for several months, according to A. E. Kimlin, assistant chief examiner of the auditor's office. The run, he said, reduced the bank's cash reserve to a point which necessitated the bank's closing.

Depositors May Not Lose.

No loss faces the depositors, so far as can be determined now, according to Kimlin. The bank is protected against shortage to the amount of $50,000, he said.

The bank was capitalized at $200,000 and had a surplus of $60,000. The first of the year its deposits totaled $1,200,000. Now this amount has been reduced by half. E. H. Gloss is president of the bank, Dr. W. F. Scott is vice president, and A. H. Hahn cashier.

LINDBERGH FLIES NEW AIR ROUTE, HOME IN DARK

New York, Oct. 24.—[Special.]—After a day's flying in which he completed his inspection of the new eastern section of the trans-continental passenger airways, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at the Newark airport tonight, then flew through the darkness to his suburban home in Princeton, N. J., in his wife's small biplane. He landed on the small field adjoining his house with the help of the headlights of the Lindbergh automobile.

The colonel had flown during the day from McKeesport, near Pittsburgh, to Port Columbus, O., then to Harrisburg, Pa., circling over intermediate fields en route, then to the Newark metropolitan airport, seemingly impervious to the bitter October winds aloft.

Upon landing just at dusk in Newark, he announced that conditions along the new airway were satisfactory for the opening of the new passenger service tomorrow morning. Elaborate ceremonies will mark the dispatching of the first plane from Newark tomorrow on the route that will bring Los Angeles within 36 hours travel from New York.

YOUNG COUPLES JOIN RANKS OF GOOD FELLOWS

Girl Workers Volunteer to Save Families.

"We would like to help some poor family," reads a letter from a young married couple, "by taking care of a little girl during the winter. Do you know of some family that would like to have their little girl live with us? We have a car and would take the little girl to see her parents every week or so."

There were three such letters in yesterday's Good Fellow mail from childless couples stirred by the report that there are 300,000 children under the age of 16 in Chicago's 75,000 families that need assistance. These three offers may be accepted by parents unable to feed and clothe their children. However, the Good Fellows are trying to save families from disruption.

Letter from a Mother.

A letter from a distressed mother, received in the same mail, spoke of her fear of losing her children since she is not able to care for them.

"For two years," she writes, "ever since the death of my husband, I have been able to keep my flock together by working while the children, now 12, 11, 5 and 3 years old, kept care of the house and watched each other. But I have been out of work for the last three months. I'm afraid I'll have to give them to orphan homes for care this winter.

"Four of the children are sick with colds. They haven't any warm underwear. They have so little bedding they have to sleep in their clothes. The lights and gas have been turned off for three weeks, but we have an oil lamp. We have a stove but no coal.

"Is there some Good Fellow who wants to help me until the children are well again and I have another job?"

Good Fellows on Job.

A social service worker last night was investigating the case. If the story is verified, the family will have help today. A budget will be prepared to meet their minimum requirements. Some Good Fellow's donation will be used to carry the family through the winter, at a cost of probably $90 a month.

The offers to give temporary homes to children were unusual rather than typical letters. There was nothing unusual in the widow's letter, except possibly that it presented one of the more serious cases. There are thousands of families needing help—the woman and children whose breadwinner cannot work due to a broken hand, the bookkeeper 79 years old who has been retired without a pension and whose wife, 71 years old, is ill, the abandoned wife about to become a mother again. And so on come the reports in a stack of mail a foot high.

The mail is also bringing offers of help from the Good Fellows. Twenty girls in an insurance office want to adopt a family. Girl employés in a mail order house want to sew for the poor as girls sewed thirteen years ago for the soldiers. A banker pledges to care for two families through the winter.

JOB IN THEATER BRINGS NEW HOPE TO IDLE WORKER

Tribune Gets Many Offers of Work.

A man who had almost given up finding a job heard his telephone ring late yesterday afternoon. He didn't answer with much enthusiasm. He had ceased to expect much from a ringing telephone.

"Hurry out to the L—— theater," said a voice from the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street. "They want an usher tonight."

He hurried out of the house. This meant money to feed him and his family and new hope in life.

That was just one of the many job offers received yesterday in the office of Sally Joy Brown, who is in charge of THE TRIBUNE'S service for Chicagoans who have work to give to the jobless. All day long calls came in and many appeared in person to tell of jobs. These offers were transferred in three lots during the day to the Illinois Free Employment service, where the unemployed—men and women, young and old, waited for work.

Good Jobs Offered.

"Some very good job offers were among today's calls, although we are still getting entirely too many calls from women who want their housework done for practically nothing," said Sally at the close of the day's work.

"One company wanted 35 girls to work for several weeks. A loop restaurant had a job as counter cook, with a good salary and meals thrown in, for a man with a family. One concern had a permanent job for a typist. A manufacturing firm wanted a punch press operator. A hospital offered to give a girl a job in a laboratory and train her in laboratory technique."

Among some of the other jobs offered were:

Mr. G.—A permanent position for a floorman in a garage.

Mr. A. H.—A man to do wall papering.

Mrs. S.—A practical nurse.

Mr. M. T.—A painting job for a world war veteran.

Mr. C. T.—A man to simonize an automobile.

Mr. O. B.—An automobile mechanic.

Hire Extra Help, Her Plea.

"If offices and stores and factories would only take on extra help in proportion to the number they already hire, even if only for a month or two, that would be a great help," Mrs. Lilla H. Walter, acting general superintendent of the employment bureau, said.

"Even if every office, store, hotel, restaurant, all the business houses, and factories put on just one extra person it would make all the difference in the world in the number of jobless.

"We need many more permanent jobs. These people want to work. They don't want charity, though they appreciate the thought of those who would help them. We have had several calls for gardeners and we have no difficulty in filling gardening orders."

Women Supply Sandwiches.

For the last two days four south side women have appeared at the employment bureau with sandwiches and coffee for the men and women waiting for work. About 400 were served yesterday. Seldom a day goes by without the offer from some one in the loop to take one of the unemployed out to lunch, Mrs. Walter said.

Do you have work to be done—work that an electrician, a painter, a gardener, an office clerk, a houseman, a furnace man might do? There are hundreds of skilled workers who will be glad to have a job. They have families to feed, too. Call Sally Joy Brown at Superior 0100 if you know of a job for some of these unemployed workers.

PLAN FIVE DAY WEEK IN GERMANY AS CURE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The establishment of a five day week as an employment emergency measure was urged today by the Prussian cabinet in a letter to the Bruening government. The letter proposed a law forbidding the layoff of workers in any establishment which has not yet adopted the five day week. It also suggested that the age at which children may leave school be raised to 15, thus removing 250,000 youngsters from the labor market, and prohibition of the importation of seasonal labor, thus shutting out 80,000 Polish and Czech farm workers.

COURT REMOVES CITY TREASURER OF HAMMOND

The office of treasurer of the city of Hammond, Ind., held by Henry Heckler since the first of this year, was declared vacant yesterday, when Circuit Judge E. Miles Norton entered an order canceling his $1,400,000 surety bond.

Arguments in the case were presented a week ago and the hearing yesterday was brief. Attorney J. H. Conroy charged that Heckler's removal was the result of a conspiracy by political enemies and that two men had been detailed to kill him because of his efforts in behalf of the treasurer.

UNION OFFICIAL IS SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT

John D. Sheridan Jr., 26 years old and acting secretary of the Coal Teamsters' union, was sentenced to 10 days' imprisonment yesterday by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty for contempt of court. It was charged that Sheridan had made false statements to the grand jury about his financial transactions with George Barker, public enemy and business agent of the union, who was sent back to prison last week by orders of Judge McGoorty.

Sheridan, whose father has been a labor leader for 25 years, was found to have made a misstatement when a canceled check drawn by Barker in his favor was later produced before the grand jury. He refused to go before the grand jury and correct his testimony.

Attorneys W. W. Smith and Everett Jennings obtained a stay of sentence for 30 days, pending an appeal.

CANDIDATES TELL OF GOOD DEEDS TO CLUB WOMEN

Praise Feminine Part in Modern Politics.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Members of the Woman's City club, spent yesterday in listening to the qualifications of numerous candidates in the Nov. 4 election, as listed by the candidates themselves. The women were told how much they, the candidates, thought of women in general, how woman was the sacred creation of God and was placed by God on a pedestal, what fine wives they themselves had and how nobly women would perform as jurors, if given a chance.

"I'm an undertaker on the west side," Peter M. Kelly, candidate for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket, said, "and I have a wife and seven children. Two boys, five girls. I'm strongly in favor of mothers' pensions."

Reich Is a Speaker.

Otto F. Reich, Republican candidate for president of the county board, first told the women how to spell and pronounce his name. He then outlined his belief in the courage of women, their fairness in political matters, and then his own qualifications and record. When Mrs. Murry Nelson, president of the club, interrupted to tell him he had taken up more than his alloted time, he asked for a few minutes more and, in a ringing voice and accompanied by gestures, he expressed his admiration for the flora and fauna of the forest preserves.

"I believe, ladies of this wonderful club," said Walter W. L. Meyer, Democratic candidate for county assessor, "that Cook county needs men who believe in the masses of people. I believe that the masses are the backbone of the county."

After assuring the women that under him the office of county treasurer would not be used to build up personal fortunes, Howard P. Savage, Republican candidate for that office, said:

"I pledge myself still farther ladies. Coming as I do from what I think I may call an average American family, I will pledge myself to sponsor a bill which will allow us to pay our taxes by the deferred payment plan."

Take Up Civil Service.

Members of the club also took up the matter of the civil service system and the advisability of applying it to all branches of the county government. They had studied it and were interested in knowing the candidates' opinions, they said to Republican candidates for the county commission. Earle W. Macke, replying, said that he preferred the present system.

The chairman is not quite clear as to what the present system is," said Mrs. Nelson.

"Well, I haven't got the full details, but every one seems to be in favor of it," explained Mr. Macke.

After Judge Howard W. Hayes, candidate to fill a vacancy in the Superior court, was applauded, one woman smoothed out the beaded bag she was making and whispered to the woman sitting next to her, "He's such a nice man. He was on the case of a man who stole my purse. He was just lovely to every one."

president of the Gulf States Steel company.

"I believe the steel industry has reached its low ebb or is close to it," he commented. "Our new sheet mill is doing a fair business. Tonnage is not bad, but prices are more or less demoralized. After the turn of the year we probably will see more improvement."

L. E. Block, chairman of the Inland Steel corporation, who said his company is now operating at 50 per cent of capacity, asserted that where last year at this time prices were high and inventories large, prices now are low, but stabilized and inventories moderate, so that the only change must be for the better.

A revival in the motor industry beginning within the next few weeks was predicted today by John J. Raskob, formerly chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors corporation. He still is a director of that company and a member of the finance committee. Following a revival of the motor industry a resumption of activity in virtually every other line of industry will take place, he added.

"Indications during the last six to eight weeks show that depressed conditions in the automobile business have reached bottom and are slowly returning into normal channels," said Mr. Raskob. "A pickup also has been noted in such basic lines as building and the textile industry. A sharp revival in the motor industry may be expected to begin with the automobile shows in early January. It will stimulate all other lines of business activity."

Market Is Expanding.

"A shortage in the automobile market has been created," continued Mr. Raskob. "The longer buyers remain out of the market from now on the sharper will be the recovery when it does set in. The industry's record shows that there is a normal world market for upward of 4,500,000 motor vehicles of American manufacture annually. This is fixed and can not be decreased except temporarily.

"The time for pessimism was eighteen months ago. Optimism should now be the order of the day.

CANVASS OF ALL HOMES PROPOSED IN JOB CRISIS

Large Fund Seen as Easy to Obtain.

A house to house canvass for funds towards unemployment relief was proposed yesterday, the contributions to be administered in accordance with the plan already being followed by employés of the Insull utilities group and the Fair store.

The door to door solicitation, as outlined by its sponsor, President A. J. Cermak of the county board, is to be conducted by as many of the 3,000 county employés as can be drafted from their regular tasks, augmented by those who volunteer their spare time. Mr. Cermak said he would call a meeting of county department heads and county elective officials to launch the canvass next Monday noon.

Sees Large Fund Possible.

With coöperation of the elective officials and department heads every home in Chicago and the county could be solicited within a fortnight and hundreds of thousands of dollars be raised without overhead expense, Mr. Cermak believes. He will seek the approval of and extend coöperation to Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission in carrying it out, the board president said.

Deputy sheriffs, county highway police, court clerks and bailiffs and employés of the county bureau of public welfare are to be enlisted for the job if the plan is approved. The method employed by war-time solicitors for Liberty bonds will be followed, Mr. Cermak said.

Solicitors will be prohibited from accepting cash contributions. Instead they will be provided with pledge cards, on which those solicited may write their promise of a specific monthly contribution. The cards are to be turned over to Gov. Emmerson's commission for collection of the pledges and administration of the collected funds.

Invites Getz to Meeting.

In addition to the sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer and heads of such departments as the county hospital, Mr. Cermak is inviting to his meeting George F. Getz, chairman of the government's commission; Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, executive secretary of the commission, and Edward L. Byerson Jr., chairman of the Chicago committee of 25.

Despite the disapproval expressed by other public officials, notably President Howard W. Elmore of the sanitary district and Mayor Thompson, Mr. Cermak announced that he would sponsor at the meeting the plan of "voluntary taxation," by which each county employé from the president down will pledge a small but specific percentage of his or her income to help the poor through the winter.

Get Downtown Office Free.

The governor's commission, through efforts of Chairman Getz and D. F. Kelly, president of the Catholic Charities, secured loop headquarters free of rental until April. After a morning of shopping downtown they returned to a committee meeting with news that the Central Trust company had granted use of the spacious second floor of its vacated building at 105 South La Salle street.

"The next thing is to find a donor of desks and typewriters," said Mr. Getz. "The Central Trust agreed to put the floor in shape for our use. We'll have telephones in Monday and hope to move in ourselves on Tuesday or Wednesday."

Plan to Register Jobless.

The unemployment committee of the governor's commission, meeting yesterday in the office of its chairman, Britton I. Budd, discussed plans for registration of the jobless, statewide setup of an organization backed by local committees in the various communities, and stimulation of public and private building programs.

Various methods of unemployment registration were suggested, among them use of the election machinery on Nov. 4 and use of churches and public schools, these to be manned by unemployed members of the American Legion. A subcommittee comprising John Fitzpatrick, Guy A. Richardson, Milton Foreman, and Gen. John V. Clinnin was appointed to devise a method of registration and report to the full committee on Tuesday.

A second committee, comprising Gen. Clinnin, Miss Agnes Nestor, Mr. Foreman, and Robert F. Carr, was appointed to call on Postmaster Lueder to discuss with him the possibility of maintaining a full postoffice force through the winter. The committee had been informed that the postoffice had ordered or was contemplating extensive layoffs, due to a decline in the volume of mail.

Want "Spring Work" Done.

The committee decided to launch a campaign to stimulate manufacturers to "Do Spring Work Now." To start the drive the committee today will mail letters to 550 of the larger employers of the city. A plan to coördinate bankers and building owners on a drive for winter building construction was discussed.

As a step toward instituting the state-wide unemployment organization the state activities committee, under direction of Wayne Hummer, its chairman, drafted a letter which, within a few days, will be mailed to mayors of all Illinois towns of and over 5,000 population. The letter suggests that the mayors institute local committees along the lines of the Chicago committee of 25, instituted by the Association of Commerce, and outlines that committee's setup.

Various big stores are considering the plan of the Fair store's Samaritan club, whose 3,000 members have pledged regular contributions to help the poor over a period of months. Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., said he had discussed the idea with Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board, and that a similar plan would be submitted to officers of the concern at their monthly meeting next week.

Park Employés Perfect Plan.

Employés of the south park board have perfected an emergency relief organization. Members are pledging 2 per cent of their salaries, this sum to be deducted from semi-monthly pay checks and spent for food and fuel for the needy within environs of the south parks.

Community houses in the eighteen neighborhood parks of the south park system will be used as clearing houses where appeals will be investigated and relief work carried on. As the first contributor to the fund, E. J. Kelly, president of the board, donated his annual salary of $3,000.

In the Forty-third ward Ald. Arthur F. Albert and Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, have opened "Forty-third ward relief headquarters" at 1545 Larrabee street. They have deposited $1,000 in a neighborhood bank, and with this sum will on Monday start dispensing food and milk to mothers having undernourished children.

Will Give Fuel, Clothing.

Thereafter the relief headquarters will provide coal and clothing to needy families and food and shelter to the homeless, Ald. Albert announced.

Residents of the ward have been invited to contribute to the relief fund by mailing checks either to the Prudential State bank or to Mr. Albert or Mr. Litsinger direct, for the credit of the fund. Residents having castoff clothing to contribute are asked to telephone Diversey 1808.

Dr. Roy N. Wilson, president of the north side branch of the Chicago Dental society, announced that the 370 members have pledged themselves to each give free dental service to one unemployed person weekly until further notice.

PROSECUTOR TO BRING FUGITIVE FROM WEST INDIES

State's Attorney Swanson announced yesterday that he is prepared to go to any part of the world to bring back convicted prisoners who jump bail in the Criminal court. He therefore ordered Assistant State's Attorney Harry Busch to prepare to leave for Trinidad, British West Indies, to bring back a man believed to be Sheik Ismet Ali, who is under arrest there.

Sheik Ali is charged with having swindled many Chicagoans by his claims of supernatural power. He was convicted of having swindled Mrs. Myrtilla Twitchell, 4701 North Campbell avenue, on the pretext that by his power he could cure her from sickness. It is said that he got $50,000, mostly from women. After he was found guilty he jumped his bond.

"We are going to stop bond jumping at any cost," said Prosecutor Swanson in announcing that he had made all extradition arrangements in the event that the prisoner was the right man.

U. S. DISREGARDS CIVIL SERVICE TO EMPLOY JOBLESS

Hoover Issues Orders to Postal Department.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—President Hoover today signed an executive order relieving the postoffice department of the necessity of choosing temporary employés during the holiday period from civil service lists. The action is designed to relieve the unemployment situation. So far as possible, the temporary jobs in the postal service throughout the country will be given to heads of families and to those most in need of work.

The President definitely disposed of a published report that he would call a special session of congress to deal with the unemployment situation.

"No special session is necessary to deal with employment," said the President. "The sense of voluntary organization and community service in the American people has not vanished. The spirit of voluntary service has been strong enough to cope with the problem for the last year and it will. I am confident, continue in full measure of the need.

Woods Receives Coöperation.

"Col. Woods is receiving most gratifying evidence of this from the governors, mayors, and industrial leaders throughout the country."

Meanwhile Col. Arthur Woods, who is in charge of the administration's unemployment activities, announced the appointment of several assistants. These include Frederick C. Croxton of Columbus, O., who organized relief work in Ohio with notable success; Edward Eyre Hunt of Springfield, O., and Edward L. Bernays of New York City. Mr. Croxton will have the title of assistant to the secretary of commerce under whose direction Col. Woods is working. Mr. Hunt will be secretary of the President's committee. Mr. Bernays will act as counsel on public relations.

Vote on Bond Proposals.

Col. Woods stated that bond proposals amounting to about 460 million dollars will be decided at the elections in a number of states on Nov. 4. Nine states have before them issues aggregating 290 millions, and cities, counties, or special districts have before them issues totaling 146 millions.

"These issues are for the purposes of varying activities, but most of them would entail the employment of labor to carry out these purposes," said Col. Woods. "They range from highways, water systems, buildings, bridges, electric light and power systems, sewage disposals, airports, conservation, parks, forest preserves, to roads, water works, textbooks, schools, state institutions, public improvements, passenger terminals, and other public activities. The bond market is favorable for such issues and by proceeding with work now many men now out of work will be employed."

Included in the list of bond issues to be voted upon which Col. Woods made public are various proposals by the city of Chicago totaling $20,679,000; the Lincoln park board of Chicago, $3,000,000; Cook county, Illinois, forest preserve, $2,500,000; Will county, Illinois, road improvements, $1,000,000; and Wilmette, Ill., water works, $700,000.

Stimulate Employment.

While Col. Woods did not attempt to give a blanket indorsement of the bond issues he suggested that voters should study the proposals carefully and if sound should give their approval as a means of stimulating employment.

Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] today obtained from Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army, a promise that the construction of barracks at Scott field near Belleville, Ill., would be expedited. An appropriation of $125,000 for barracks at this aviation field has been available for some time, but the preparation of plans has been delayed. Gen. Summerall said that complete plans would be ready by Monday and that bids would be called for within a week and contracts awarded within a few weeks.

Senator Glenn also conferred with treasury officials with reference to the speeding up of work on the Chicago and other postoffice projects in Illinois.

CLEVELAND ROAD PROGRAM TO GIVE 1,000 MEN JOBS

Stagger Plan Adopted for Street Work.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Unemployment relief in Greater Cleveland made numerous advances today. County commissioners led the progress with an announcement that a $9,000,000 two year road building program will be attempted, starting with letting of $450,000 worth of road contracts Dec. 16.

Preliminary road construction work will require employment of about 1,000 men through the winter, the commissioners said.

Meanwhile, the city has 1,100 men working on streets, sewers, and parks, as a part of its relief program. The city is using a stagger plan of employment for these, giving 1,100 men three days of work and then replacing them with 1,100 others. About 6,000 men will have part time employment through this system.

City Manager Daniel E. Morgan announced today that virtually all industry in Cleveland has adopted the stagger system of employment in order to divide work among as many employés as possible.

Detroit Factories Add Workmen.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Detroit shops and factories today were reported to have recalled 2,261 workmen during the past few days while the Municipal Unemployment committee has found jobs for 3,803 men.

These figures were announced by James M. Duncan, employment manager of the Municipal Employment bureau.

About 1,000 unemployed persons gathered in Grand Circus park for a demonstration shortly after noon today and after listening to a few speeches marched to the city hall.

There was no disorder during the demonstration.

Steel Plant Will Reopen.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The first response to efforts toward relieving unemployment in Milwaukee came today with the announcement that the Inland Steel company of Wisconsin will reopen its local plant Nov. 3, giving full time employment to 700 men.

The plant will be run 24 hours in three shifts, E. G. Jones, general superintendent, said.

Discover Bomb in Path Used by King of Spain

MADRID, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The newspaper Informaciones said today that a bomb had been found on property belonging to King Alfonso behind the royal palace. Julian Nunez Garcia was arrested and charged with having placed the bomb in one of the paths on the property, access to which is usually possible only to royalty and the nobility and their friends.

ASKED TO GIVE UP TO MILLION TO AID JOBLESS

New York's Wealthy Men to Be Solicited.

New York, Oct. 24.—[Special.]—New York's richest men—the 2,500 who are at the top of the list—will be asked to contribute from $5,000 to one million dollars each to the fund for the unemployed which the emergency employment committee is raising, it was announced today.

At least one individual gift of a million dollars is expected by the committee, and many others well over one hundred thousand dollars are counted on.

This solicitation of the wealthy is to be started at once, and will be done before the emergency employment committee, which is made up chiefly of bankers and industrialists, asks contributions from the corporations in the city.

The committee, it was learned, has decided to ask corporations not only for contributions but also to take on men at $3 a day.

Workers to Get Aid.

It is now the intention of the committee, through the committee for the relief of the poor, to distribute its $150,000 weekly fund chiefly to men who are willing to take the $3 a day jobs which the city's industries are expected to provide. The fund will be applied to paying up back rent and other bills, so that the man will have only to feed and clothe his family with his daily wage.

The committee, of which Seward Prosser, chairman of the board of the Bankers' Trust company, is chairman, will appoint a special committee for each trade in order to keep in close contact with the various classes of jobless. Robert F. Duncan has been sent to Chicago to get a comprehensive view of the unemployment situation and how it is being met there.

Soup Kitchens Opened.

City officials are preparing to house 3,000 or more persons and feed 12,000 daily. City employés are raising a relief fund, which they hope will reach $100,000 a month.

Eight new soup kitchens and several more barracks and workshops have been opened by the Salvation Army, as that organization's move to provide more immediate relief.

Typographical union No. 6 has a referendum out asking whether its members would be willing to lay off one day every two weeks to provide work for additional men.

Police are continuing their census of the unemployed. Estimates of the number of jobless range from 300,000 to 800,000.

RUMOR OF COSTE WEDDING THROWS FRANCE IN UPROAR

All Drama Lacked Was an American Heiress.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVRE, France, Oct. 24.—A bright haired Circassian beauty with eyes reddened from an old fashioned crying fit, a vivacious brunette with a saucy face, and a good natured aviator who has a way with women and planes—these were the principal actors in an international melodrama which turned into one of those sprightly French farces here today.

The hero, Capt. Dieudonne Coste, conquerer of the Atlantic, as a result made a triumphal homecoming. It appears that an imaginative reporter concocted a report of Capt. Coste's secret marriage to an American heiress on the eve of his departure from the United States. Capt. Coste formally denied it, the government formally denied it, and so did the aviator's informal but authentic Russian partner, Princess Vatzatchy.

The Woman in the Case.

There was actually a woman in the case, however. She was Danielle Bregis, French musical comedy actress, who starred in "Princess Charming." Her only official claim to recognition is the fact that she was Capt. Coste's dinner partner every night on board ship.

So far as can be determined that is the only basis for the rumor of marriage, but it was enough to turn the whole air ministry upside down.

A strict censorship was clamped on the press and fantastic schemes for smuggling the girl ashore were proposed and successively abandoned and all official ceremonies were postponed until 4 p. m. today. Mme. Mary Coste was forbidden to go to Havre to meet the flyer for fear a scandalous scene might ensue.

Everything Turns Out Fine.

It was felt that the marriage of Capt. Coste to an American girl would have been an unforgivable crime in the eyes of his French admirers and the gorgeous reception ceremony would be broken up. Yesterday Capt. Coste finally convinced the government by wireless that he was not married, and at midnight last night Mme. Coste unexpectedly popped up at the Hotel Frascati here waving a radiogram from Capt. Coste authorizing her to come.

The officials were not taking chances, however, and shooed Mary into a room, where she was forced to remain until 7 o'clock this morning. After the boat docked and the officials were reassured there were no serious complications in store, newspaper men were allowed on board. There Princess Vatzatchy, her eyes puffed and red as though from weeping, met and embraced Capt. Coste.

CIGAR STORE MANAGER ROBBED.

PRESS VAGRANCY WAR AFTER JURY ACQUITS CONDI

Prosecutors Hope to Jail Other Hoodlums.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Undiscouraged by a jury's acquittal of Joseph Condi, hoodlum, in the first of the vagrancy trials, the state's attorney's office yesterday prepared to press vagrancy charges against other gangsters. The verdict in the Condi case was returned in Judge Harry Fisher's court yesterday morning after a jury had deliberated since 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

Condi smiled as the verdict was read, but his elation was short lived. He was arrested on fugitive warrants charging bond forfeitures in New York and New Jersey and proceedings to send him east for imprisonment will be started immediately, it was announced.

Judge John H. Lyle, who initiated the campaign against gangsters by issuing vagrancy warrants against the twenty-six public enemies, and who later issued 22 more vagrancy warrants, declared that a setback in one case did not mean that other hoodlums could not be penalized as vagrants.

One Juror Changes His Mind.

When the verdict of "not guilty" was read, Assistant State's Attorney James E. McShane asked to poll the jury. Eleven jurors stated that the verdict was their original decision. One, John J. Sullivan Jr., 2413 Aubert avenue, declared that he had held out for a guilty verdict but had been persuaded to change his mind.

During the trial, Condi was shown to have had a long criminal record, presumably stamping him as a vagrant under terms of the statute which stated that any person known to have indulged persistently in criminal practices was guilty of vagrancy. The defendant's attorneys, Milton Smith and W. W. Smith, argued that their client had an occupation and an income and therefore could not be classified as a vagrant.

Gets a Jury Trial.

Sammy ["The Greener"] Jacobson, charged with vagrancy, obtained a jury trial when arraigned before Judge Lyle yesterday. He furnished $5,000 bond. Jacobson was arrested on Thursday with Charles ["Chick"] Hadesman, another minor hoodlum. Hadesman was held at the detective bureau to be viewed by robbery victims.

A motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Ernest Dallege, policeman held on an extortion charge, was presented to the state supreme court at Springfield yesterday. Dallege on Thursday was denied bail by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court.

TWO CAPTAINS AND 91 OTHER POLICEMEN SHIFTED BY ALCOCK

Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert of the Central police station, which is in the loop, was shifted to the first deputy commissioner's roll in a transfer order issued late yesterday by Acting Commissioner Alcock. Capt. Willard L. Malone was transferred in the same order from the detective bureau to the Central station to replace Gilbert. The commissioner would make no comment on the order except to say that it is "for the good of the service."

Included in the order, which affected a total of 93 policemen, were six lieutenants, four sergeants, and 81 patrolmen. Sixteen of the patrolmen were taken from various stations and assigned to the detective bureau where the personnel was reduced immediately after Alcock became acting commissioner. Thirteen of the patrolmen at the Des Plaines street station and 12 at the Maxwell street station were sent to other stations.

NEW BALLISTICS TEST TO BE MADE IN STANTON CASE

Public Defender Benjamin C. Bachrach was appointed yesterday to act as a supervisor of tests to be made by a ballistic expert of the evidence on which Danny Stanton, public enemy, was accused of the murder of Jack Zuta, public enemy. The ballistics expert is to be selected by Attorney Bachrach and Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott and Attorney Thomas D. Nash, who represents Stanton and also Stanton's chauffeur, Edgar Smith.

The tests are to be made before Nov. 17, when the extradition hearing for Stanton and Smith will come up again before Judge Philip J. Finnegan. The outcome of the tests is expected to furnish grounds for a ruling by Judge Finnegan as to whether Stanton and Smith should be given into the custody of the Wisconsin authorities for trial—Zuta having been slain in Wisconsin.

Attorney Bachrach was named by Judge Finnegan after Attorney Nash had suggested the appointment of a lawyer to supervise a new test.

TWO ROADS CUT THREE HOURS OFF RUN FROM COAST

Announcement in Seattle yesterday of a three and a half hour reduction in the running time of the Empire Builder, crack Great Northern train, between the west coast and Chicago was followed within an hour by announcement in Chicago of a three hour reduction in the eastbound run of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train Olympian, effective on Nov. 9.

The Empire Builder will leave Seattle at 9:30 p. m. instead of 6 p. m. and arrive in Chicago at the same time as under the old schedule. Both roads will make the run in 58 hours. Until June, 1929, the running time was 62 hours. Westbound running time will be cut one hour, making the run 59 hours and 45 minutes. Other roads are expected to make similar reductions in running time.

PENSION CRISIS AT MICHIGAN U.; SEEK WAY OUT

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Fearing that some 170 older faculty members at the University of Michigan may soon be faced with retirement on insufficient pensions because of the waning of the Carnegie fund, the regents of the University of Michigan today proposed a retirement annuity plan to nearly 200 faculty men.

The plan, if adopted, would begin this year. Faculty members would pay 5 per cent of their salaries, the amount to be doubled by the university, to purchase annuities payable after 25 years of service as a professor or after 30 years as an instructor and professor.

Pensions would equal one-half of the average salary for the last five years of service, plus $400, the total not to exceed $4,000.

'Cakes and Ale' Brews Up Book Selling Squall

"Cakes and Ale," by W. Somerset Maugham [Doubleday Doran].

No book for years has caused as much excitement in London literary circles as "Cakes and Ale." The trouble is that the central character in it is a distinguished novelist who attains the extreme sanctity of old age and every one immediately said "Hardy."

W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM.

Another character is a very successful young-ish novelist who has lectured extensively in America. London said, "Aha, a nasty dig at Hugh Walpole." A managing woman who makes literary reputations, they labeled Lady Cunard. And tongues wiggle-waggled at both ends. People who never had looked inside the book began gossiping about it.

Such a tempest was aroused by it that reporters sought Mr. Maugham. An enterprising one from the London Evening Standard got from him a denial which has just reached this country. The other characters he did not discuss officially.

"The character [of Driffield, the old novelist]," he said, "is entirely imaginary, and if any one thinks he or she sees in it a close resemblance to Hardy, I cannot help that. . . . My story called for a writer who had to be an old man, a distinguished old man, and because of the period one who might be called a Victorian. But there, so far as I know, the resemblance to Hardy ends. . . . People might have said with quite as much justice that I meant Meredith as that I meant Hardy.

"I swear that I never thought of Hardy at all when I was writing the book. An author who put in real people would be most foolish because for one reason he would have to stick to facts, and one should never be hampered by facts when writing a novel."

First the scandal—in the case of such a book and then the book itself—such is the world's interest in gossip these days. As for the book, it is an extremely interesting piece of work technically—the juxtaposition of tradition and rumor against fact—treated with ironic brilliance. As against the known facts of the life of the great Driffield, the writer of the book (it is done in the first person) tells the truth about what happened, retaining his imperturbability to the young author who is trying to pump him for material for the official life. It is a clever, a brilliantly clever technique.

The novel itself is not, however, one of Mr. Maugham's most brilliant pieces of work. It does not touch "Of Human Bondage." It is a brilliant, sophisticated, amusing satire on a group of people who are especially interesting to any one who writes or really enjoys reading books. It has pages of perfectly priceless writing about writing, but it is not a classic.

The book is a technical tour de force, which the author—as always—brings off successfully, but it is more a satire on the business of writing than a satire on life. F. B.

HOWARD V. O'BRIEN WRITES NOVEL OF EMOTIONAL FLURRIES

"An Abandoned Woman," by Howard Vincent O'Brien [Doubleday Doran].

There is irony in the title of Howard O'Brien's latest novel, for the heroine is a woman who is much more than one whom the world might have labeled "abandoned. She is a middle aged wife of a wealthy man in the beginning of the book, with her children away at school, her friendships and her loyalties all tied up in a tight little suburban group. Her husband is wandering toward the avid hands of a local nymphomaniac, but his wife is "happy" in the eyes of the world. She is secure—and completely bored.

HOWARD V. O'BRIEN.

She is the eternal mother. While her husband needed to be taken care of, while her children needed tending spiritually and physically, she had a purpose in life. Money and the passage of the years released her from that purpose. When some one else needed her deeply she went to him. And what happened after that it isn't fair to say, for how Joan faced that problem is the kernel of the book.

She did much of the facing of it in France, and Mr. O'Brien has shown a rare and real understanding of the French milieu. He has made his readers feel the subtly sweet charm of the French countryside, the bubble-like zest of Paris, the frank acceptance of the relations of man and woman, the deep responsibility of human beings for the comfort of other human beings that is characteristically French. He has done, too, the suburban life of the middle west with as much conviction as Joseph Hergesheimer did it in "The Party Dress."

Mr. O'Brien knows both his France and his Chicago, for he has lived many years abroad and he is a native of our town. He published eleven books before "An Abandoned Woman," and he is the literary editor of the Chicago Daily News. F. B.

Navy Officer's Wife Writes Novel of China

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Grace Zaring Stone's "The Bitter Tea of General Yen" makes it plain sure and certain that a new, important novelist has been added to the American roster. Such brilliant ease in story telling, such faceted characterizations, such authentic drama bespeak a matured talent. Yet this is but her second novel.

CARL VAN DOREN

The secret of Mrs. Stone's magic, we learned in the course of a teatime chat in the Chatham lounge on Friday, lies in the fact that she has been writing most of her life. That critical faculty which guides the artist began nagging at the paragraphs in her schoolgirl diary. "I found I was rewriting almost every sentence, recording conversations and incidents which might have happened. Most diaries touch up facts, but mine was totally fiction."

Mrs. Stone was born in New York, inherits her long blue eyes and the Zaring in her name from a remote Czecho-Slovak ancestor. As wife of Commander Stone of the U. S. navy, she has come in intimate contact with many countries, has lived in Spain, Italy, the West Indies, and, as all know who have read "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," China. Not only is she familiar with official life in Shanghai, but, despite the civil war and its attendant dangers, she traveled into the interior, pursuing the Yangtze to the limit of navigation.

Carl Van Doren we have often acclaimed as our favorite lecturer. We listen to an airy, entertaining discourse, and find at the end we have painlessly acquired a fund of weighty information. This same art Mr. Van Doren employs in his just issued biography of Jonathan Swift, which is causing other critics to reach for their best brand of superlatives. Years of research went into the making of Mr Van Doren's "Swift," but also, and more important to the reader, there is Mr. Van Doren's enthusiasm for this his favorite human being."

Jim Tully breezed through town leaving with his publishers the first half of his new novel, "Blood of the Moon." Dorothy Canfield is back from a holiday in Europe just as her new novel, "The Deepening Stream," comes from the press. Returned, too, is Paul de Kruif, author of "Microbe Hunters." He has been six months abroad collecting material for his new book, "Man Against Death."

ADVENTURING AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

The Waters Under the Earth, by Martha Ostenso (Dodd Mead), is the story of the seven Welland children, and how tragedy seeps into their lives. It is the November choice of the Book League of America.

Spawn, by Nat J. Ferber (Farrar & Rinehart), is a brutal, powerful novel of a countryside known as "Bastard's Notch," an impressive story of degeneration.

Bound to Happen, by Elswyth Thane (Putnam), is the story of a quadrangle of love.

You Don't Know Charly, by Valentine Thomson (Brewer & Warren), is a gay tale of Charlotte Serviere, who was tired of being a home body.

Clamoring Self, by Leonhard Frank (Putnam), is the story of a young man's experimental search for truth in love and among his fellow men.

Lava, by Armine Von Tempski (Stokes), is a Hawaiian romance.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Portrait of a Diplomatist, by Harold Nicholson [Houghton-Mifflin], is not only the biography of a great man—the author's father—but a brilliant consideration of the origins of the great war.

Queen Caroline, by Sir Edward Parry [Scribner's], is the life story of Caroline of Brunswick, wife of George IV., by the author of that famous record, "The Overbury Mystery."

The Conqueror's Lady, Ines Suarez, by Stella Burke May [Farrar & Rinehart], is the romantic and passionate biography of the first white woman to enter South America, a Spanish Joan of Arc, with sex appeal.

Those Earnest Victorians, by Esme Wingfield-Stratford [Morrow], is not satire. The author submits that the Victorian rivaled the Elizabethan age for sheer brilliancy of achievement.

Royal Charles, by David Loth [Brentano's], is about Charles II., who is labeled "Ruler and Rake" by his biographer.

ABOUT PLACES.

Switzerland, Western and Southern, by Paul Guiton [Hale, Cushman & Flint], is one of the beautiful picture guides of the famous Medici press. It has 277 rotogravure pictures.

Through Oriental Gates, by James Saxon Childers [Appleton], is about the people rather than the places of the orient.

Bring 'Em Back Alive, by Frank Buck, with Edward Anthony [Simon & Schuster], is all about the jungle, wild animals, and their capture.

MYSTERY.

Mary Roberts Rinehart's Mystery Book (Farrar & Rhinehart), is an omnibus of four complete books by Mrs. Rinehart under one roof.

The Beauty Mask Murder, by Viola Brothers Shore (Smith), is murder with a new twist.

Stories of Love, Courage and Compassion, by Warwick Deeping (Knopf), is 800 odd pages of Mr. Deeping's works.

The Best British Short Stories of 1930, edited by Edward J. O'Brien (Dodd-Mead), is the ninth annual selection.

NONFICTION.

The Conquest of Happiness, by Bertrand Russell [Liveright], gives the rules and regulations, and suggestions.

The American Public Mind, by Peter Odegard [Columbia University], tells why we behave like Americans.

BEDLAM
Really Was a Madhouse

The priory of St. Mary of Bethlehem in London, founded in 1247, came to be used in the early 15th century as a hospital for the insane. Familiarly known as Bethlehem, the name of this asylum was contracted in popular usage to Bethlem, Bedlem, or Bedlam. The name came to be applied to any lunatic asylum, or madhouse, and consequently, in our own day, to any scene of uproar and confusion. Thus have the words in our language passed through a remarkable process of evolution that is recorded in thousands of fascinating stories in

Father's Love of Daughter Novel's Theme

Mrs. Sedgwick Presents a Cruel Heroine.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Philippa," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick [Houghton Mifflin].

The long awaited "Philippa" has finally arrived. Hailed as "a brilliant successor to 'The Little French Girl'" it has beamed, for reviewers no less than readers who can read for pleasure alone, a beacon of the fall season. It was officially published yesterday. This afternoon it certainly will be the city's best seller It probably will shift only in position among the best sellers of the fall, never leave the list To this reader, it was a distinct disappointment, but its popular appeal is evident.

ANNE D. SEDGWICK.

"Philippa" is the story of a girl, fourteen when the book opens, who goes through the breaking up of her parents' home, the remarriage of her father, and the disintegration of his second life. The girl emerges the same confident, hard, cruel young thing that had been able to wound her mother, whom she left for her father; to wound her father by purposely not getting on with his second wife—all because there existed between her and her father a love which transcended either duty, passion or remorse.

The book really is a sort of "Sorrell and Son," with the son a daughter and the father only a victim, not the guide, of his love for his child. But it has the same deeply sentimental waves that beat against the readers' mind. "Philippa" is not written so sentimentally as "Sorrell and Son" was written, but is somehow just as sentimental. The world adores such a book; it certainly proved its passionate admiration for "Sorrell and Son." But to some of us, who have to read with as cold a mind as a scientist watches his bugs or a botanist yanks a petal from a rose, too much sweetness is too much.

The author has done remarkably well that hard insight of youth, its cruelty toward any but its own standards and its sensitiveness, but she has not, as she certainly intended, made her heroine worth all of the pain that her ruthlessness caused both her mother, whom she loved, but, frankly, not as she loved her father, nor her father with whom she wanted to be first always at whatever cost.

Her author undoubtedly meant her to be a strong, fine character, burgeoning in youth with a power and an understanding that comes to most only in maturity. What she is is a young thing that you would like to smack for her officiousness and her cocksureness. The world probably will agree that the author has done what she wanted to do.

Few will agree with this reviewer, perhaps, but this reviewer will be able to stand the slings and arrows of outraged readers.

While there is deep understanding of the inner intricacies of the heroine's emotions, Philippa is rather a specimen than the palpitant unforgettable being that Alix was in "The Little French Girl."

"Silence of Col. Bramble" Was Cheering for Maurois

"The Silence of Colonel Bramble" [Appleton] was the first book of the now famous André Maurois. It is a delicate, witty satirization of both the typical Englishman and the typical Frenchman- its action all takes place behind the trenches in the great war. It has just been issued in a new edition with delightful introduction by Brand Whitlock, who says that to him it is so charming that he reads it at least once every year.

Benson Charges False "De Profundis" Text Was Given to Public

In "As We Were" [Longmans Green] his memoirs, E. F. Benson denounces Oscar Wilde's "De Profundis" as the "most gigantic literary fraud." Mr. Benson, as you know, is a well known novelist, a son of the late Archbishop of Canterbury and a member of one of the most distinguished literary families of England.

He charges Robert Ross, Wilde's executor, with deliberate falsification of the "De Profundis" manuscript. In the form in which it was given to the public, Wilde revealed himself as reformed by suffering whereas, says Mr. Benson, the real mss. "indites blistering reproaches against the friend he had loved, taxing him with perfidy and ingratitude, and denouncing him as the cause of his own ruin."

To forestall discovery of the facts, Mr. Ross presented the mss. to the British museum with the proviso that it was to be held under seal until 1960.

The mss. is there at present. In making the charges Mr. Benson says he has seen a copy of the original document and has "studied it with the greatest care" before making his findings public.

IT MIGHT BE WORSE.

The present period of depression, we are reminded repeatedly, differs from its predecessors in the fact that this time there is no credit stringency. Money is plentiful and cheap. Likewise, though there has been a marked decline in commodity prices, individual business houses have not suffered the severe losses on inventories which marked the depression of 1921, for example.

These are, perhaps, the most important statistical facts to be observed in distinguishing this depression, but they are overshadowed by a difference of another sort. It seems altogether probable that this period of declining prices and unemployment will be memorable rather for a new public attitude toward the whole question of business depressions and the suffering they entail.

The old notion was that waves of unemployment, curtailed buying power, and bankruptcies were to be expected from time to time. A period of business depression was regarded as a natural phenomenon like the advent of night. There was nothing much to do about it but wait for morning. Meanwhile relief was given in the form of soup kitchens and flop houses. Few men thought that it was possible to minimize, much less avoid, these recurring dislocations in the economic organization of the country.

We have progressed to the point of realizing that the homeless casual laborer is not the only or even the principal sufferer in such times as these. We have learned to concentrate attention and relief upon the families of the unemployed who are permanent members of the community. Moreover, the greater interest taken in relief measures and more especially in efforts to discover what caused the depression and how to climb out of it is an index of a new attitude toward the whole matter. We no longer regard acute misery as necessary. We may not have learned yet how to prevent it, but there is a widespread belief that the thing can be done and there is a considerable willingness to make sacrifices to attain the end, should they be required.

A good deal of the economic thinking of the last six or eight years has not stood the test of the last twelve months. Nothing is heard these days of the "new era" and of "permanent prosperity." No one believes any more that common stocks which yield only 2 per cent are sound investments. But we have not lost one product of the boom times: we still think that it is the business of an economic system to make for human enjoyment. Economics is not the dismal science to this generation. We know we have the productive capacity to provide a generous minimum standard of living to all who will work and we regard large scale unemployment and consequent suffering as a reflection upon our intelligence.

It is one thing, of course, to believe that a deep seated ill ought to be cured and quite another to cure it. There is no justification as yet for thinking that this is the last depression which we shall ever encounter. There is, however, considerable warrant for a tempered optimism. Some of the ablest minds in business and in the universities are directed toward the problem. We have more statistical information which bears on the causes of the business cycle than ever before. We are developing a technique for alleviating the worst effects of depressions, which will be of value even if a cure is not found. The outlook is far from hopeless.

GET YOURSELF A NEW ONE.

With the year set for winter the need of warm clothing will become emphasized in the work undertaken to carry dependent people over the cold weather. There are a number of agencies for distribution and there are sources of supply which can be made subject to requisition. It is probably the average experience of well to do families and people in comfortable circumstances that the discard of clothing is delayed for one reason or another. The closets and wardrobes keep many garments when they might be serviceable to persons in great need of them

It is suggested for the present relief work that doubt be resolved in favor of the other fellow. Give it away while it is still good and get yourself a new one. The garment trade and garment workers would be the better for an increase in buying orders and the other fellow would take more stock in his prospects if he had warm and respectable clothing.

ALTRUISM PLUS.

John Powell, TRIBUNE correspondent at Shanghai, reports that the British government decided in September to return to China the balance of the British share of the Boxer indemnity, amounting to $55 000,000, with the proviso that $40,000,000 must be expended for railroad construction and improvements. Naturally, these expenditures will be made in Great Britain, and the prospect is not encouraging, as Mr. Powell remarks, to American railway engineers and equipment men who for years have been trying to work out plans and induce the Chinese government to build and finance new roads. Now that British money in the form of a return of indemnity is available, it is not unreasonable to expect that British industry will be given preference.

The transaction arouses again our admiration for British diplomacy, which has a genius for making altruism pay dividends. It presents an interesting contrast to our own habitual ingenuousness. When we gave back our share of the indemnity we attached the proviso that the money should be expended for Chinese education. The British, following in 1922 our precedent, provided that "the money should be used for such education or other purposes which are beneficial to the mutual interests of Britain and China."

Expenditure of money on railroads and equipment in China will undeniably be beneficial to the interests of China and Britain.

FEDERAL LAW PROCEDURE UNDER VOLSTEAD.

It has been discovered in the federal judicial district of western Missouri that citizens to be summoned for jury service have first been tested out by questions sent them to ascertain their opinions and beliefs. One question concerned religion. Another required an answer as to prohibition. The information was on file in the United States district attorney's office when the jury box was to be filled. Upon the discovery of this Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves ordered the practice stopped.

It is assumed, reasonably, that hundreds of cases have been tried before juries so selected after this inquiry into their beliefs or prejudices and that convictions have had their source in the government picking of citizens for the occasion.

The procedure of federal prosecution, particularly under the Volstead act, has given rise to great distrust the country over. It has been a characteristic of enforcement of prohibition to prepare for such results as the government wanted, whether it was the escape of enforcement agents guilty of crimes or the punishment of citizens accused of infractions of the Volstead act.

When federal agents have been indicted in state courts for murder or manslaughter their cases, having been taken out of the jurisdiction of the state courts, have been brought to trial in counties in which the government believed a dry sentiment prevailed. When federal enforcement has indicated so little regard for the lives or property of people it is not astonishing to find judicial process taking the short cuts to wanted results.

It is not revealed in how many other districts practices similar to those discovered in western Missouri may be in operation and such discovery would hardly be needed to increase the distrust which many people have of prohibition enforcement.

In the administration of this law the government uses injunctions, trials without jury, and the padlock. It takes away the use of property and liberty of person for contempt of court. It construes the sale of ginger ale and ice as a violation of the eighteenth amendment. It denies the jurisdiction of the state courts in offenses committed against state laws. It permits double jeopardy, with the possibility of two punishments for one crime. It contrives strange and unusual punishments and defends excessive penalties with a moral reply to constitutional objections. It prepares the jury box to the prejudice of the defendant, and its apparent object is to fill the penitentiaries not with major offenders under Volstead but with derelicts and to keep its own offending agents safe from punishment.

These governmental excesses are the natural products of a kind of law which, not having the general approval required by valid law, always tends to tyranny and brutality to dispose of nonconformity.

BILL'S UNNECESSARY TESTIMONIALS.

We confess to surprise at the large number of letters we are receiving from readers congratulating THE TRIBUNE upon the attacks of William the Obese. They all refer to rumors which have been emanating from the city hall and sedulously spread to the effect that an accord has been patched up between THE TRIBUNE and the worst mayor Chicago has ever had.

These rumors have been bogus, concocted for fraudulent and somewhat obvious purposes, and we think that should have been obvious to every one. THE TRIBUNE has never been guilty of quitting a fight until it is finished and it has not fought city hall corruption and incompetence for all these years to lie down in the eleventh hour. It ought not to need in this community any more testimonials from the mayor of his natural hostility to give assurance to our fellow citizens that no peace has been made or ever will be made with him or the forces which have grossly misgoverned and disgraced the city since this administration began. Such a peace would be a betrayal of the traditions of THE TRIBUNE, a betrayal of Chicago, a betrayal of Illinois. It is impossible and it should be unthinkable.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO DEAD BROKE AGAIN.

[Brooklyn Daily Eagle.]

The spectacle of a passed pay day for the teachers, policemen, firemen, and all employés of the great city of Chicago, with no hope of any relief for several weeks, is the gravest sort of reflection on some types of municipal government in the United States. Chicago is rich, prosperous, with taxing resources reaching tremendous figures. Her earlier pay roll difficulties were tided over by a citizens' movement to float certificates. The trouble had arisen primarily, we think, from the immense graft in assessments and the legal proceedings brought by some 50,000 realty holders to compel fairness. It is said that in more than one case the valuation of a piece of property not favored was ten times one adjacent of the same selling value, which had been looked out for by the politicians.

Now the trouble, which may be temporary, is up to the courts. The legislature of Illinois has authorized Chicago to issue $12,000,000 bonds for general purposes and $19,000,000 for the school board. But is the authorization valid under the state constitution? The judges must decide. Until they have done so, of course, no bonds can be sold.

The legal issue is a curious one. Under the fundamental law of the state taxation by the municipality is limited to three-fourths of one per cent, barring an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the electors to make it more. Whether the interest and sinking fund provision on these bonds will compel a tax rate higher than the limit is a question. What would be legal backed by a referendum may not be legal without a referendum.

In the last analysis, Chicago must look to a change in her local government which will bring into power men who are responsive to the sentiment of her substantial citizenry and who are not wholly unfamiliar with the principles of political economy as affecting taxation.

TREATING THE MOUTH.

DR. E. AIGNIER gives the following recipes as some that he uses with satisfaction:

Mouth cankers: 8 per cent solution of chloride of zinc in water. Dry the ulcer with a little absorbent cotton. Apply the zinc solution. Hold it there for one minute. Follow with an application of Talbot's iodine. In most cases one application is enough. To follow with a similar treatment the next day is sometimes necessary.

Mouth wash: Metaphen, 1 to 5,000 in water. Hexylresorcinal, 1 to 2,000 in water. Sodium ricinicolate, 1 to 100 in water.

Any one of these solutions was satisfactory as a mouth wash. Destruction of 99 per cent of the bacteria can be expected.

Gingivitis (inflammation of the gums): Apply Talbot's iodine, or a modification, to the gums. Wash off the excess with water.

Talbot's iodine is zinc iodide 15 parts, water 10 parts, glycerin 50 parts. To make, dissolve the zinc iodide in the water, add the iodine, and then the glycerin. Let stand until the crystals are dissolved.

Never use undiluted alcoholic iodine in the mouth. It is too strong and burns the membrane.

Vincent's angina or trench mouth: Apply an 8 per cent solution of chromic acid in water to the ulcerated area. Apply with an applicator. Follow with the home use of the following mouth wash: A scant ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon powdered borax, teaspoon to tablespoon of peroxide in a large glass of warm water. Make up this solution daily. Or 2 teaspoons perborate of soda to a glass of warm water.

The chromic acid solution should be kept in glass stoppered bottles.

Toothache: This pain may be due to inflammation of the pulp. Recipe: 150 grains chloretone to one ounce of oil of cloves. Apply locally.

It may be due to inflammation of the socket around the tooth. Apply Talbot's iodine to the gums or a solution of chlorbutanol in oil of cloves. Oil of cloves turns dark and thickens with age. None should be used except that which is light in color.

Dr. J. E. Keefe has a method of relieving toothache and neuralgia of the teeth, which method gives satisfactory results. It consists in spraying or injecting alcohol along the floor of the nose.

RUPTURES AMONG BABIES.

Mrs H. S. R. writes: Will you kindly discuss ruptures in babies? I have a baby two months old with a rupture. Is there a possible or probable chance that this can be overcome without treatment? I have tried a truss, but they are unable to fit the baby correctly.

REPLY.

Rupture is more curable in babies than in adults. Such hernias sometimes disappear spontaneously. Occasionally, operation is required. Umbilical hernias are cured at times by means of bands. A button on the band, to press on the hernia site, does more harm than good. If the hernia is inguinal the problem of holding it up is very difficult.

SNEEZING AND TOMATOES.

M. C. M. writes: What causes a person to sneeze while picking tomatoes? Is there any way to prevent the awful sneezing?

REPLY.

In all probability the person is sensitized to tomatoes. If so, the simplest way to avoid sneezing spells is to avoid tomatoes.

TRENCH MOUTH.

Mrs. L. K. writes: What is trench mouth? When I get my teeth fixed will it come back again?

REPLY.

Trench mouth is an ulcerated condition of some part of the mouth. It results from infection with two bacteria. Having the teeth fixed will not cure it.

LEGAL RESIDENCE.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In September, 1929, my wife and I lived in Illinois and had for years. In the same month I went to work for a company which sent me to Wisconsin. We stored our household goods and went to Wisconsin, where we lived in furnished rooms until January, 1930, when we returned to Illinois and have been here since. We never claimed Wisconsin as our home. Did we forfeit our right to vote in Illinois this coming November by being out of the state for five months? G. M. K.

The facts stated would not be conclusive. Your residence would be presumed to remain where it had been as long as you preserve some contact here and expected ultimately to return here.

BAD SIDEWALK.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—On the corner of 23d and South Albany there is an empty lot. The sidewalk at this place is in a most deplorable condition. The curbing is torn away on the corner and most of the sidewalk is gone, while in the middle of the block the sidewalk is so bad that it is a menace to the school children. The school is in that block. H. G.

Report is made to this office that the curb is broken at gutter for about 4 feet; sidewalk broken 4 by 8 feet, which fills with water when it rains. This has been reported to our curb and gutter division, and same will receive attention when our gangs are operating in this vicinity.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

SALE OF UNDIVIDED INTERESTS.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My son and I are heirs to an estate in Detroit on which we have been receiving rents collected each month. Payments have now been stopped because the administrator says the tenants can't pay the rent. We are both out of work and much pressed for money. Can we sell our share of the estate and how? B. S.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings including the complainant's solicitor's fees are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IT CERTAINLY DISTURBS OUR TRAIN OF THOUGHT!

Right now is the time when as good citizens we should focus our attention on the spellbinders and watch them carefully as they point with pride and say without fear of successful contradiction. But just when we are finding out how to put our hands to the plow, and stand shoulder to shoulder for the good of our common country, and how to face the future with calm faces and hopeful hearts—BAM!—one of our most prominent Napoleons in the gangster industry is ambushed and blotted out. The astounding news is broadcast from every radio and set in great circus type on the front page of every newspaper. It is talked about at every social gathering. People even stop telling about what poor stuff their bootlegger is bringing them and the wonderful Scotch they sneaked through from Canada last summer to discuss the passing of another foremost figure of our time. But our real loss is that it distracts us from the main issue. We forget that the very foundations of our government will crumble into dust if we don't vote right; that never before in the whole history of our country, from the moment Columbus set foot in the new world, has there been such a moment as this, and that every red-blooded, two-fisted one hundred and ten per cent American must—BAM! gosh! there goes another one! No, sir, it's hard to concentrate on the great issues of the campaign—BAM! there's another! If this thing keeps on we'll never be able to get down to the straight facts of just what ails the country and how to cure it. BAM! BAM! BAM!—well, anyhow, that's one thing that ails the country.

Her days are rich with mellow harvesting,
With ripened hopes and dreams of vanished spring,
And though the flower be lost, yet from the tree
Full-flavored fruit is hers abundantly.
Frost may have touched the garden of her life,
But beauty all her pathway interweaves,
For memories lie strewn where'er she walks
Like glamorous and golden fallen leaves.

DEAR, DEAR! This is all very confusing. IN THE LETTERS of our dear Queen Victoria it is revealed that at one time when Kaiser Bill was quite young and still under the tutelage of Bismarck, he made the latter so mad that Bismarck almost threw an ink pot at him. And there are plenty of people who will say it's too bad he didn't. It might have changed the face of history.

STORM.

When the night wind is set free,
Bearing the storm defiantly,
When the sky is split apart
Like my torn and hungry heart,
When the rain is spent and driven,
Love must not be said or given.

On the edges of the storm,
Silences will strangely form,
Long and lonely, when no sound
Will disturb the quiet ground
Or the quiet sky above—
Then I shall be needing love.

"AL CAPONE—The Story of a Self-Made Man," was a well written book and a deservedly best seller—but wouldn't it be well, Mr. Pasley (this is merely a suggestion), to have the next edition, or ninth large printing, or whatever your publisher calls it, made in the new loose binding style? Then you could write a fresh chapter every week and we could incorporate it with the rest of the book. Mr. Capone is so extremely active that it seems impossible as yet to regard the story as finished. You're very welcome, Mr. Pasley; think it over.

RIGHT NOW, if we wanted to be sure of living unharmed for three or four months anyhow, and we had our choice—well, we'd like to be a Thanksgiving turkey. Of course, prosperity may return with a jump almost any time—but life's a gamble anyhow—and with things the way they are right now, a Thanksgiving turkey seems reasonably safe at present. R. H. L.

SKETCHES OF THE NEWS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 25, 1914.

LONDON.—The battle in western Belgium and northern France overshadows any yet fought in the French campaign in its severity. Both sides are throwing every available man into the struggle, the German reinforcements numbering 600,000. Reports from various sources tell of appalling losses of life on both sides. The official Paris statement says: "The enemy has made progress to the north of Dixmude and in the vicinity of La Bassee. We have made very perceptible advances in the region of Langemarck and between Armentieres and Lille." The German report says that the kaiser's troops are slowly advancing east of Ypres and southwest of Lille as well as in the Argonne forest.

PETROGRAD.—The war office announced that the defeated German armies in Poland are still being driven back by the victorious Russian army. It is stated that the entire route of the retreat is littered with abandoned guns, equipment, transport, and dead or wounded Germans.

LONDON.—A message from Scutari says the Montenegrins have defeated the Austrians' attempt to turn their right wing along the River Drina. The battle lasted two days and the Montenegrins claim to have killed 1,000 Austrians.

PEORIA, Ill.—Postmaster General Burleson, spokesman for the national administration, told a large audience of Peorians that President Wilson is for Roger C. Sullivan for United States senator from Illinois and urged his election on Nov. 3.

OCTOBER 25, 1900.

CHICAGO. — Michael J. Doherty, superintendent of streets, was discharged from the city's service by the civil service commission on the ground of the lack of executive ability. John Panock, chief sidewalk inspector, was removed for incompetency, and other city officials were censured. The action was the result of charges made by Ald. Frank Fowler.

CHICAGO.—The boast of a champion of the Board of Trade was fulfilled when John B. Kilpatrick walked from the Chicago club, Van Buren street and Michigan boulevard, to his home, 4704 Lake avenue, in 59 minutes. The distance is almost six miles and his average was 10½ minutes per mile. His pacers all deserted him after a few blocks and took to cabs.

OCTOBER 25, 1880.

NEW YORK.—Tomorrow the Republican national committee will make a report effectually establishing the responsibility for the letter indorsing cheap Chinese labor, purporting to have emanated from Gen. Garfield, as being really the product of one of the editors of Truth, a man named Kenward Philp. Clearing of the mystery surrounding the letter is credited to Thomas E. Lonergan, a private detective.

NEW YORK.—Eli Perkins figures that the Republican majority in the state in the coming election will reach 25,000. He said: "New York City, with its wicked slums, will go up the Hudson river with its 70,000 Democratic majority. The intelligent farmers up among the colleges, schools, and churches will come down the Hudson with 95,000 majority. This will give Gen. Garfield 25,000 majority in the state."

NEW YORK.—Dr. T. De Witt Talmadge, referring in his sermon to the coming election, pleaded for purity in politics and for a wiping out of sectional prejudices.

CHICAGO.—St. Bernard commandery was mustered into the state's service as an independent company in the First Infantry armory and assigned to the First infantry.

LONDON.—The postoffice at Manchester is in flames, and all telegraphic communication with London is suspended. There are plain indications that the fire was set by incendiaries.

GRIMY CERES.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Many of your readers have observed that the statue of the beautiful Ceres, goddess of the grain and harvest, mounted above the smokestack of the new Board of Trade building, is now, after only a few weeks, jet black from the smoke that is pouring from this stack more or less continuously all day long. Would it not have been more appropriate to mount in place of Ceres a statue of the hardy Vulcan, who was always content in the black smoke of his busy forge?

Would you not think that the owner or designer who conceived the idea of the beautiful Ceres symbol would have thought of installing some modern smokeless boilers at the same time?

TWEEDS.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—In a letter in this morning's TRIBUNE, R. H. T. complains because he cannot secure soft, rich autumn woodsy tweeds in regular men's sizes.

As usual, of course, the supply is guided by the demand, and Chicago stores have found that the collegian favors tweeds more than his elders do. It is only for that reason that the supply of tweed suits this fall is limited.

At the same time there are men's wear stores right in the middle of Chicago that make a specialty of tweed suits, and it will interest your reader to know that it is possible for him to secure a fine hand woven Harris tweed or Irish homespun in practically any size. All that it takes is a little shopping around. ALLEN SINSHEIMER,

HINDENBURG.

Three Oaks, Mich., Oct. 16.—I desire to applaud THE TRIBUNE for its timely and far-reaching editorial on Hindenburg in your Oct. 14 issue.

As a resident of the Pacific coast and lifelong country newspaper man, starting in Iowa as editor of the McGregor News in 1872, I have been in continuous country journalism since 1889 on the Pacific coast. If it were possible to secure such action I would love to see it made a patriotic duty to send a copy of your editorial on Hindenburg to every newspaper in our country. A far-reaching, friendly cooperation between the statesmanship of our country and of the German republic would be of tremendous international value to both countries. We need the stabilization of our republic as much as if not more than the upbuilding and stabilization of the new republic of Germany. E. HOFER.

TO SAVE OR SPEND!

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 18.—We note that your editorial department is going along with the nation's industrial and political leaders' theory that our industrial collapse is the result of a mental condition of our people. Many thinking people believe on the contrary, that the trouble is the logical outcome of the aforesaid leaders' preachment and paid propaganda that extravagant living even to the point of spending one's income a year or more in advance is the proper manner to produce a strong and happy nation.

We recall that Calvin Coolidge early in his administration attempted to advocate economy and thrift as a national practice, but his party leaders soon silenced him on this subject.

Writers on economics, finance, political economy, and history have always attributed France's wonderful national vitality to her people's habits of industry and saving.

We solicit your editor to treat the subject on his page, and draw his conclusions as to whether Calvin or Mr. Mellon was right in their respective advocacy of thrift or extravagance.

THE RIGHTS OF THE SENATE AND OTHERS.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 14.—The editorial in Sunday's TRIBUNE, "Senator Nye in the Illinois Campaign," to my feeble mind is something that not only every citizen of the United States should read, but also and especially Senator Nye and the other members of his senatorial committee.

I strongly urge that THE TRIBUNE continue to educate the senate and its members as to what their constitutional rights are, and also educate the voting people not only of Illinois but of the United States in the rights of a candidate for the senate as well as the rights of the senate itself. We can have a constitutional senate as readily as we can have an unconstitutional one, and it is the latter type that we are rapidly approaching. W. T. MULLEN.

APOLOGY.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—I fell from a northing street car at Francisco avenue and Madison street on Saturday about 12:30 p. m. I struck and cut my eyebrow and think I must have been stunned. A Good Samaritan tried to take me into a drug store to help me and I answered him sassy as could be. I got on a car going west and then found I had been hurt. I want to ask his pardon for my boorish actions. I really did not realize what had happened. I hope he will see this. WALTER S. CAMPBELL.

GODDARD FACES BLIND TEST IN CAMPBELL TRIAL

Will Pick Bullets from Five Guns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Dr. Calvin Goddard, director of the scientific crime detection laboratory at Northwestern university, today agreed to submit to a courtroom blindfold test. He will undertake to determine, before the court and jury in the capital's most sensational murder trial in a decade, which of five guns discharged each of ten bullets to be fired by selected jurors or court attaches.

The test, scheduled for next Monday before Judge Jesse C. Adkins in the District of Columbia Supreme court, will mark the first court test of ballistic science. Upon a difference of fifteen one-thousandths of an inch, at issue between the prosecution and defense, hangs the life of Herbert M. Campbell.

Campbell, 42 years old, Arlington county, Va., real estate operator, is charged with the first degree murder of Mary Baker, pretty 30 year old clerk in the bureau of naval aeronautics, who was raped and shot to death near Arlington cemetery last April 11.

Identifies Three Bullets.

Goddard today in court identified three bullets taken from the woman's body as having been fired from Campbell's gun, which the defense admits was never out of his possession. But this testimony is the only direct evidence implicating Campbell. Three witnesses have told of encountering a man and woman struggling in Miss Baker's automobile, parked two blocks from the White House, on the night of April 11, but none has definitely identified Campbell as the man.

In a five hour grilling on the witness stand today Goddard described minutely how he arrived at his conclusions. He insisted through a two hour cross examination that there are unmistakable marks of resemblance on every bullet fired from a given revolver.

Tells of Test in 1927.

Goddard told of a test made in 1926 in the Springfield, Mass., army arsenal, in which he took ten bullets fired in rapid succession from the same gun and arranged them in the order of firing, from first to tenth, without a mistake.

"Would you be willing to submit to such a test in the presence of this court and jury?" asked Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins.

"I would, sir," Goddard replied instantly.

Chief Defense Attorney Charles H. Smith lurched to his feet.

"If the court please, we accept," he said.

The test will be made either in the courtroom or at the United States bureau of standards. If attorneys agree upon the courtroom, Goddard will provide a mechanical bullet stopper, a small wad of cotton packed in a cup shaped steel jacket suspended in the center of a six foot steel frame

THINKS BROTHER INNOCENT, HAS HIM ARRAIGNED

Denver, Colo., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin will be called into court tomorrow to answer a charge of first degree murder in the case of her 10 year old step-daughter, Leona, whose body was found in Berkeley park lake, Oct. 17. Frank O'Loughlin, uncle of the slain child, will be arraigned upon a similar charge.

Informations naming the two were filed today with Leo O'Loughlin, a city detective and the father of Leona, indorsing the charges.

"I am attesting this information against my brother, Frank, not because I believe him guilty or in any way involved, but because I desire to have the accusations made against him cleared up completely," said O'Loughlin.

UTLER LOSING TO BARLEYCORN IN BAY STATE

Wet Republicans Are Going Democratic.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—t times, unemployment, and pro- ition repeal constitute a combina- n of conditions and issues pro- ably influencing voters in the elec- n of a United States senator in assachusetts.

Two millionaire manufacturers, for- er Senator William Morgan Butler, y Republican, and Marcus Aurelius dge, wet Democrat, are contend- g for the senatorship. What with tendency of voters to blame the rty in power for business depres- n and unemployment and with the nestedly manifested dissatisfaction Massachusetts with national pro- ition, Mr. Butler finds himself fight- g against terrific odds in a state ich once was a Republican strong- ld. His prospect of election appears be decidedly unpromising.

A Tangled Tale Unfolds.

n the other hand, conditions favor e reflection of Gov. Frank G. Allen, y Republican, over his wet Demo- atic opponent, Joseph B. Ely. herein lies a tale of Democratic ism carrying over from the bitterly ntested primary fight, in which the sh Democrats of Boston were ar- ed against the Yankee Democrats the hinterland.

Mr. Ely, who hails from Westfield, er Springfield, was the leading kee contender. He was dubbed a ick from the sticks" by Mayor mes M. Curley of Boston, chieftain the Irish element, who championed rmer Mayor John J. Fitzgerald for s nomination. "Honey Fitz" was mpelled to withdraw by illness, and e Yankee breezed in.

There is plenty of evidence that the ston Irish are by no means recon- led to the triumph of the Yankee, d the development of a cordiality tween Republican Gov. Allen and mocratic Mayor Curley that is at- acting attention is held to presage a mocratic plumping for the Repub- an candidate for governor.

Allen a Mild Dry.

The phenomenon of wet Boston Dem- rats supporting a dry for governor counted for by the fact that Gov. llen has not stressed his dryness, d by the further fact he is commit- d to abide by the result of the ref- endum in this election on repeal of e state enforcement law, generally own as the "baby Volstead act." he wets are confident the state will te for repeal overwhelmingly.

Mr. Coolidge, who is no relation the former President, is also a Yankee outlander who defeated the ndidate of the Boston Irish in the imary. But with the choice between nding a wet and sending a dry to e United States senate there is no uffering of the Boston Democrats in e case of Mr. Coolidge.

It's Republicans Who Bolt.

In the senatorial contest the bolting all on the Republican side. Thou- nds of wet Republicans are openly pporting Mr. Coolidge because he nds for repeal of national prohibi- n, while Mr. Butler is in favor of ention of the eighteenth amend- ent. This desertion of the ticket by et Republicans has been promoted by e work of the Constitutional Liberty ague, the Association Against Prohi- tion, the recently organized Crusad- s, and the Women's Organization for ational Prohibition Reform.

Mr. Butler has scarcely mentioned rohibition in the election canvass, but ior to the primary he stated:

"I favor the enforcement of the Volstead act and would not amend it except if necessary after further fair and thorough trial, and then in no way which would tend to break down the principles involved in the eight- enth amendment.

"With the conviction of mature de- liberation I believe that there are more reasons for the continuance of the eighteenth amendment than for its repeal. There is no middle ground. I will neither wilt nor straddle.

"There are further considerations. I am and always have been a party man. It is bred into my nature. I voted for President Hoover. I stand by his administration. Hence, I stand by the President on prohibition with- out qualification."

Won on a Fluke.

Mr. Butler was opposed for the nom- ination by Eben S. Draper, who advo- cated repeal of the eighteenth amend- ment. Mr. Butler defeated Mr. Draper by less than 7,000 votes, and would not have won had it not been for the candidacy of another wet, Andrew J. ["Bossy"] Gillis of Newburyport, who polled 20,000 votes.

Following the primary, the Repub- lican convention adopted a platform in which it straddled the prohibition issue. It declared for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. Then it asserted that it was the right of any one to advocate amending it, and added:

"We believe that under our system of government the will of the major- ity must in the end prevail, and we believe that any mandate of the peo- ple, when clearly registered in a man- ner provided by law, should be car- ried out."

Thereupon Mr. Draper raised the banner of Republican revolt. He called the prohibition plank "a meaningless straddle," contrasting it with Mr. But- ler's pre-primary declaration that he would not straddle the issue.

Puts Principle First.

"I have been a lifelong Republican," said Mr. Draper. "I have never hes- itated, whether in victory or defeat, to give of my utmost to my party. However, there comes a time in the life of any individual who is true to himself when principle must be made paramount."

That started the bolt of wet Repub- licans, which has now assumed pro- portions alarming the Butler forces.

The Democrats, in their platform, declared:

"To preserve our dual sovereign- ty, and to end the appalling orgy of crime and corruption, we favor the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, and the restoration to each state of the authority to deal with the liquor problem in accordance with the mandate of its citizens."

TWO STILL TALKING

Only two men remained yesterday in the talking marathon which is being held at the Coliseum in connection with the annual Chicago radio show. But one of the contestants, who quit for want of sleep early yesterday morning, Carleton Switzer, is still the leader with 81 hours of talking to his credit.

Frank R. Lawrence, St. Louis ex-service man, weakened early yesterday and was sent to a loop hotel to recover. Yesterday $100 was collected from exhibitors at the show and presented to Lawrence. This sum equals the prize which will be awarded to the victor Saturday night. The two who are still talking are Paul Dullack, 2425 Logan boulevard, and Florenze Polenz, resident of the Y. M. C. A. hotel.

HUSBAND, 77 YRS. OLD, MUST STAY IN ALIMONY CELL

William Hudson Donald, 77 years old, said to be the oldest member ever to join the Alimony club, lost a plea for his release yesterday and was returned to the county jail to serve the remainder of his six month's sentence for failing to pay alimony to his estranged wife, Mrs. Catherine Anne Donald, 5548 Drexel avenue.

Donald, who was a consulting engineer until he was forced to give up work thirteen years ago because of a leg injury, was sentenced to jail on Sept. 3 by Judge Philip J. Finnegan when his wife testified he owed $646 in alimony. At yesterday's hearing before Judge William V. Brothers attorneys sought to obtain Donald's release on the grounds that he is in need of medical attention.

TELLS HOW REDS LOOTED CHINESE CITY OF MILLIONS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Missionaries arriving today from devastated areas said anti-American and anti-British Red armies were swarming over three provinces of China, killing thousands of natives. They were reported robbing and burning foreign as well as Chinese property in a campaign against Christianity and capitalism, said to be inspired by Russian influences. Many missionaries have fled and others, their missions destroyed, are held for millions of dollars ransom.

The south half of China, said the missionaries, was in danger of turning communistic unless the government sent at least 200,000 seasoned troops against the bandits and communists.

Missionaries Tell Stories.

Arriving from Kian with demands for $3,500,000 gold ransom for fourteen missionaries held captive, Father de Jenlis, French, and Bishop Magniani, Italian, reported terrible conditions.

Twenty thousand communists, said Father de Jenlis, captured Kian on Oct. 5 and began systematic pillaging. Two thousand Kian residents, he estimated, were slain, 1,000 in the first ten days and 1,000 after he left the city. Other reports had stated the number was at least 8,000.

The terrorized populace, said De Jenlis, was professing communism to avert massacre. He believed fully half of Kiangsi province's 30,000,000 had declared themselves Reds, as had similar proportions of the populace of Hupeh and Hunan.

Beaten with Iron Strips.

After being beaten by Reds with strips of iron, Father de Jenlis and Bishop Magniani were ordered to proceed on foot through bandit and communist infested country to Kiukiang to obtain ransom for 14 fellow missionaries.

At Nanchang they were joined by Father Breucker, a Dutch priest, who escaped from Kishiu when it fell to communists. Father Breucker believed Bishop Sheehan of Streator, Ill., was hiding in mountains near Fuchow, after escaping from Jaochow when Reds plundered the Lazarist mission. Nothing was known of Father Altenburg, Milwaukee, Wis., and Leo Moore of Perryville, Mo., who also fled from Jaochow.

Describing the entry of the Reds into Kian, Father de Jenlis said:

"The Reds evidenced a thorough organization, their leaders being outstanding communist chieftains in China. They addressed their captives with 'Do not be afraid; maybe we won't kill you. However, you must leave China. We are not allowing the propagation of religion.'"

BISHOP CANNON AND HIS FOUR ACCUSERS CONFER IN RICHMOND

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Times-Dispatch says all questions of procedure in the charges brought against Bishop James Cannon Jr. by four traveling elders of the Southern Methodist church were settled at a conference between Bishop Cannon and the elders.

Previously, when the bishop first was informed of the charges, he declared his accusers had not acted in accordance with the prescribed church procedure.

The paper says yesterday's conference resulted in a decision that the charges, yet undisclosed, were properly drawn and that the investigation will proceed.

The paper also says the appointment by Bishop William N. Ainsworth of a committee to investigate the charges and decide whether any indictment should be returned against Bishop Cannon to be tried by the Methodist general conference in 1934 is expected shortly.

The four elders who filed the charges, Dr. J. T. Mastin and Dr. Costen J. Harrell of Richmond, Dr. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va., and Dr. Forest J. Prettyman of Baltimore, met Bishop Cannon yesterday in a previously unannounced conference.

ATTORNEY WALKS OUT ON FAHERTY IN SUBWAY CLASH

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

As a protest against hasty procedure on subways, George A. Mason, special assessment lawyer, walked out of a meeting of the board of local improvements yesterday noon. That did not stop President Faherty.

He had the board adopt the necessary resolution approving of the plans, the description of the tunnels and the $43,314,874 estimate of cost. This is an estimate of "engineering costs" only. It does not include cost of property, to be acquired, for curves and connections with the elevated structure. The board also fixed Nov. 3 as the date for the public hearing. Later Faherty issued orders that abutting property owners of "the State street bore shall be mailed details of the estimates on Monday.

It is Faherty's opinion that the resolution can be amended any time in the next ten days, so long as the cost is not increased more than 20 per cent. Accordingly he has asked Attorneys Mason, Walter L. Fisher and Allan T. Gilbert to make their suggestions within that period.

The board action yesterday was taken on the legal opinion of Joseph J. Sullivan, another attorney on special assessments. He said that the resolution was in proper form for adoption.

Attorney Mason, in glancing at the resolution, objected to the title. He suggested that it be a resolution to construct a three level street instead of a State street subway.

"I as well as every one else desires speedy action," said Attorney Walter L. Fisher, "but only when it is done properly."

Mason Makes Protest.

"I haven't seen a final draft of the resolution," said Mason, "and it is important that it be correct now."

"I think it is exceedingly unfortunate to proceed until all of the attorneys have been given a chance to study the resolution," said Fisher.

"You have had as much opportunity as has Mr. Sullivan," snapped back Faherty. "I told you—all you lawyers—to work with the engineers. I am willing to assume the responsibility on the opinion of Mr. Sullivan.

"I am not going to approve of something I have not seen," said Mr. Fisher.

"You are not going to make a goat out of me," declared Mason as he picked up his papers and walked out. Attorney Gilbert made some comment, but Faherty interrupted with: "I don't want any talking from you."

Gilbert conferred with Fisher about following Mason out, but Fisher said he was there to aid the public in getting a subway, and Gilbert remained. Attorney Mason will continue as adviser also.

Excited Robber Believed to Have Killed Companion

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 24.—(AP)—An excited bandit, fleeing from a residence after he had robbed a woman of $285 tonight, shot and killed a man whom police suspect to have been his companion in crime. The dead man was partially identified as Virgil Smith, 28, of La Grange, Mo.

Understand Your Child, for He Can't Understand You

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Short reading references on child management will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If we could only remember more things about our childhood, what a help it would be to us with our children!

For, after all, there is a great gap between generations. There's an inevitable abyss between mother and daughter, father and son. So we need to do everything in our power to understand our sons and daughters and to make them realize that we mean well—that we aren't trying to be tyrants—overlords of their domain of childhood.

One big reason why we need to understand them is because they can't possibly understand us. They've never been adults, so they have nothing to go on. But we have all been children—even though we recall so little of our feelings and experiences. And so we must be the ones who make the effort to understand.

They cannot understand why we act as we do, talk as we do, require of them the things we require. It is impossible for a child to understand us. So we must try to understand them. This we can only partly do. But that partial understanding will help them. It will make us:

Respect their play.
Respect their possessions.
Respect their reserve.
Respect their right to make mistakes, to adventure, to investigate—instead of saving and directing and guarding.

Respect their taste, if it's different from ours.

Respect their talent, if it leads them to a business or profession other than the one we've planned for them.

These are only a few of the things that we'll do if we try to understand our children, since they can't understand us.

Food Talk.

What is nicer than roast duck, golden brown, and plump with its own dressing? The only bad feature about duck meat is that there isn't enough of it. Can you think of another fowl that has as small an amount of flesh on a carcass of equal size? But the flavor of duck is rare and delicate, and we will have it.

But so many cooks spoil this delicious flavor. To add sugar and various seasonings other than a little onion, salt and pepper to duck is as unpardonable as it would be to pour perfume on a fragrant rose. Why sacrifice the delicious natural flavor?

One of the first essentials in preparing duck is to get your bird. Select a young, tender one. Cleaning duck is quite a problem. If you buy the duck dressed, the labor is greatly reduced. But if it is freshly killed, you may have to do your own dressing. The sooner this is done the easier it will be.

There are two methods of dressing—the dry and wet. Epicures say that the former method retains the greatest amount of the natural flavor. But it is an al day tedious process of plucking the dry feathers and quills out by hand. And the removal of that down! I've followed the advice of a good many cook books. Give me the wet method. It is rapid and I consider efficient enough. Wrap the duck in a heavy cloth, preferably a flanel one, pour boiling water over it, and let stand a minute or two until it stops steaming. Then remove the cloth and rub [not pick] off the feathers with the down. If steaming has been adequate, the feathers and down will come off easily.

Chop off the head and open the duck carefully—avoid making too large an opening at the vent and the neck. Remove the inside, taking care not to break the gall, as this imparts a bitter flavor to the fowl that is most unpleasant. Rinse out the inside of the duck and wipe off the outside. The duck is now ready to roast.

Season inside well with salt. Stuff with a bread or rice dressing. If the openings at the neck and vent are too large, sew them up so that none of the filling will ooze out. Truss the bird, which will make the duck more pleasing in appearance when it is served. Skewers or strong string may be used. Place in a roasting pan and sear for about 10 minutes in a hot oven [500 degrees F.]. When well browned, reduce the heat to a slow oven [300 degrees F.], cover and cook in a self-basting pan until tender. Make gravy of the fat and sediment in bottom of pan, and feast!

Put butter and sugar in top of a double boiler. Stir over the fire until it boils. Let boil 1 minute. Do not let it burn. The sugar should be only slightly caramelized. Add tapioca softened in the milk. When tapioca is clear, pour on to 2 egg yolks mixed with ¼ teaspoon salt. Return to double boiler and stir constantly until thickened. Remove from fire and pour mixture over 2 egg whites beaten stiff with ¼ cup brown sugar. Stir and add 1 teaspoon vanilla when slightly cool.

RICE STUFFING FOR DUCK.

Heart, liver, and gizzard of duck,
1 small onion, sliced.
1 teaspoon salt,
Dash pepper.

Combine ingredients and stuff into duck. This dressing should be practically dry when it is put into the fowl.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Decorative Touches.

A crowd of us were sitting together in a college hangout last Memorial day. I was trying to make a good impression upon the boy from another big college. One of the boys kept teasing me as I ate my chocolate soda by breaking my straws. After he had done this several times I made a wild pass at him with the straws as he reached to grab them. And right then and there I spattered ice cream soda all over the boy from the other college. I was so embarrassed that all I could say was, "It is Decoration day." But the young man did not seem to appreciate the remark. Needless to say, I did not make the desired impression. E. T.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila Fay met King George when she was thrown from her horse. Refusing aid he insisted on riding the animal home, disregarding broken ribs and bruises.

Sheila enters Vassar. After two years, when King has his diploma, Sheila and he are married in California, despite the opposition of Sheila's uncle and guardian, John Donohue, and her former suitor, Jim Molloy, and disapproving friends. After the ceremony they decide to avoid the reception. Instead of going to Monterey, where their baggage had been shipped, they slip off to Lake Tahoe. King is strangely restless and irritable, and a phone message of their changed honeymoon plans is without a supply. Sheila determines to plan for a cure without letting him know. They go to San Diego, as King had entered his favorite horse, Wind, in the Tia Juana races and intended riding him himself. Sheila confers with a federal narcotic agent who suggests a program, which if rigidly followed should effect a cure.

INSTALLMENT VI.

A HIDEOUS PLOT.

With Hawley, in the afternoon, Sheila explored the surrounding country, desert land and beaches. In the evening, with King again, she made the round of the gaming tables, testing her luck at craps and blackjack. When she danced with him she was Sheila Fay again, forgetting for the first time the knowledge which she had threatened to make of her a quitter and a coward.

Sunday morning the planes came roaring down from Hollywood, bringing the millionaire producers, the beauties, the ace-lovers of the screen. At noon, on the patio of the casino, where an outdoor luncheon was featured, staged a scene Sheila had expected to be brilliant, but which surprised her by its quality. From a balcony an orchestra of dark faced men strummed Spanish airs; on the steps therefrom, leaning against an iron balustrade, a young and beautiful Mexican girl in bouffant skirts and mantilla, stood waiting for her call. As Sheila took her place under one of the gay colored umbrellas, facing King—for he had been persuaded to endure the ordeal of a meal he could eat only with his eyes," as he put it—the band gave the cue to the girl standing among the flowering plants and vines—herself a flower, thought Sheila. It was Jim's song the guitars were playing. His favorite. He used to call her his Estrellita, his little star of love. Long ago, when she was happy and young . . .

Afterwards she motored with King to the race tracks, where motors and limbs were still depositing contributions to the crowds which declared Tia Juana to be for the moment the center of the universe. The band was playing Ramona, the theme song of a recently made picture. An acquaintance called King to inform him that the slim girl in the tower, her arms full of red roses, was the star of the film.

"Isn't it great?" demanded King, as they moved through the throng in search of their seats. His thin face was flushed; his eyes burned with excitement. "And it's nothing compared to what it'll be next week."

She agreed with him. For King would then be down on that smooth track, with Wind. . . . But it was thrilling enough now, for she invested each rider with the features of the man at her side; but, no, he was no longer hers. He had escaped, to place a bet, or to give "a hot tip" to a friend.

The days following gave her many hours to herself. After the early morning trip, by motor, with King to the track, where he would frequently bet Wind against Slaughter or Babette, after the daily visit to the paddocks, the day was hers to fill. Hawley would take her to the beaches or to San Diego, where she buried herself in the library, hunting up references given her by the pamphlets, and collecting books written by Alaskan travelers.

She blamed the heat for the devastating headaches which awakened her every each morning. Her physical pride trailed in the dust. Determined that King's great week should not be marred, she concealed her discomfort from him, pleading mutely behind him at the paddocks, admiring Babette's slim beauty, and listening dizzily, confusedly, to horse biography.

She escaped from the rounds one morning faint with weariness. At the hotel she dismissed Hawley for the day. She persuaded herself it was eye-strain causing the headaches. "I'll not forget again to take my colored glasses when I prowl about in the glare with King," she was saying as she reached her shaded bedroom, which was cool and sweet in orchid tints. One of King's handkerchiefs drenched with witch hazel covering her eyes, she lay outstretched on the chaise longue. Fiercely as her head throbbed, she would not take an anodyne. Because of what she had been told in the beauty agent's office, she would always deny herself an anodyne. One of the insidious ways the habit starts . . .

She did not hear when the outer door opened. The first thing she heard was King's quiet withdrawal from the room where she lay in shadow. It did not occur to her she had not been seen . . . Voices in the adjoining room roused her—King's and Mickey O'Neill's. And instantly she was aware that they thought themselves alone.

What hideous thing were they plotting? A trick, a criminal trick, a plot to bring Wind in victor. . . . Because of the visit to the government agent, she understood what lay behind their dots and dashes. . . . King, a sportsman, would stoop—? They were going to give heroin to Wind—heroin, the criminal's drug!

She sat up, taking a fiercely fugitive survey of the room, desperate to escape unobserved. Her hat, parasol, purse lay within grasp, on the chair by the couch. Could she reach that seldom used door by the bed? Unsteadily, swiftly, noiselessly, she rose from the couch and crept across the room. King was cautioning O'Neill of the extreme care with which the trick must be done, King's voice saying that, "Fifteen minutes is the maximum time the stimulus lasts. It has to be given in the paddocks, not a fraction too soon, or it's a boomerang. Wind'd go dead on the tracks."

"You'll get your share of the dough——"

"You're always the king——" But Sheila heard no more. She fled down the hall, her ears shamed, her cheeks burning. She had been persuading herself that deterioration had not yet begun. She had made herself believe that King was still a gentleman . . .

The lobby was empty of guests, but she would not linger there. King might come upon her. In the gardens? Glare and heat—she would go to the casino, where King would not think of looking for her.

"O, that isn't the real King," ran her thoughts, first defending, then accusing. "He's weakening; he's surrendering to evil influences. But what is the real King? Have I ever known him—known the King his mother knew?" One minute she told herself she had reached full realization of his faults; and immediately demanding what would be the next revelation.

She wandered aimlessly through the casino, pausing at the tables, but seeing neither the game nor the players. Once, when she discovered she had been standing overlong, that she was being observed, she flung some uncounted bills on the baize stand and moved away as they were being doubled.

She grasped the paper money he tendered her, crushing it into the bag. Later, from the telephone booth in the barroom, she telephoned to the garage to locate Hawley. "I'll need you after all this afternoon. At the usual time. Yes, the casino." And because it was now past noon, she followed the line of lunch seekers into the patio, where King would not join her. He would be eating at the coffee house the food of which he had ordered—cold meats, tomatoes without oil, fruits without sugar, coffee without cream. There were to be no more social meals until after the great race . . . the race for which Wind was to be doped.

The day of the race was going to be one of the hot ones. Not 10 o'clock, and the thermometer in the casino was at 98. King had already left for Tia Juana, to have a last "squint" at Wind. Hawley was to come for Sheila, it was arranged, immediately after luncheon. And as yet she had not decided what she could do. Tell King what she had heard, confuse and estrange him, and assuredly spoil the race? Or tell O'Neill, frighten him into abandoning the trick—but he would go whimpering to King, and the result would be the same. . . . Back and forth went the shuttlecock of her thoughts; and soon it would be too late to act. . . . But she couldn't let them pull that trick. She would be more reprehensible than King were she to let it go on, for her brain was confused by a deadly drug.

Good morning!

Dig down into your jeans, folks! Here's a classy movie!

It holds the interest, charms the eye, appeals to the intelligence—and persistently arouses sympathy for the wrong person.

You're supposed, I'm sure, to be acutely sorry for the young chorus girl bride of the rich and elderly financier, who craves laughter and a gay musician whom she had known, loved and misplaced in the days of her footlight venturings. You're supposed to be sorry for said pianist, who returns from Paris to find his laughter loving darling suppressed and suffocated by luxury. He, too, you see, has laughter for a goal and chafes under the conventions. You're supposed to be sorry for the millionaire's daughter who balks at restrictions and ALMOST deserts father forever for the weak, resentful artist, still eaten by a mad passion for the girl's stepmother whom he, like the musician, had known in the good old days. BUT—

Strangely enough, it is for the husband of Peggy that your heart beats with compassion.

There he is, this Mr. C. Mortimer Gibson, in his sumptuous big house, a middle aged, shrewd, kindly man of affairs, fatuous only in his love and admiration for the lovely wife so much younger than he is. Though by nature totally unable to understand the artistic temperament—he does his best to comprehend and is decent and fine and loyal when Peggy's irresponsibilities get her into scrapes that confound and humiliate him.

Decent and fine and loyal! But there he is—alone! Hurrying with ill-tide boy eagerness to tell Mrs. Gibson of a big business deal just consummated and have her rejoice with him—he finds her gone on a "last party" with the man she wishes she had married. In his moment of victory, and yearning for the commendation of the woman he loves—he hears of her whereabouts from the police! And again—

Reporters are the ones to inform him, during a party at his own house, that the hostess is being held for questioning in regard to the suicide of the artist, mentioned above, with whom she was discovered just after the fatal shot was fired. And only a short few moments before poor C. Mortimer had been chatting with his fair lady . . .

When released, hours later, Peggy returns home to tell her husband she is leaving him. He begs her to stay. It's all right. He loves her. But, no! "I MUST have laughter!" says Peggy. So to Paris she goes, and later marries the pianist.

Perhaps, in the hands of a less astute actor than Frank Morgan, one could pass C. Mortimer over more lightly, but the man, as depicted, with his shield and buckler of quiet dignity and underlying wistfulness, is irresistible. He makes you realize that the rich and the great can be simple and lonely souls, too.

Nancy Carroll is utterly delectable, a different Nancy than you've known before, and Fredric March gives a lilting performance as the musician. Glenn Anders of Theater Guild renown presents a masterly portrayal as the brooding, weak kneed artist, and Diane Ellis plays very well the rich man's daughter gulping avidly and immaturely at LIFE. Minor roles are expertly handled.

You're going to like "Laughter." I feel it!

Stars of Talkies to Be Heard Over W-G-N Sunday

Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, stars of "The Desert Song" and numerous other talking pictures, will be heard from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Gray lived in Highland Park for 10 years. Miss Claire and Mr. Gray, who are appearing at the Palace theater, have been co-starring in the talking pictures, "No, No, Nanette," "Spring Is Here," and the "Song of the Flame."

Oat Hulls Produce Acid Making Plain Food Taste Better

Marvels of modern science which will be exhibited at the Museum of Science and Industry in the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park were revealed last night to the Chicago section of the American Chemical society at the City club.

Waldemar Kaempffert, director of the museum, and Louis Ehrenfeld, curator of chemistry, were in charge of the meeting. Julius Rosenwald gave $3,000,000 toward the museum.

Gerald J. Leuk of the Miner laboratories told how almost any food can be made to taste like a juicy beefsteak smothered in onions by the use of a certain chemical. The subsetance is furyacrylic acid, which is obtained from oats hulls, once a useless farm waste product.

Dr. W. C. Austin of Loyola university, with his associates, C. J. Smalley and M. I. Standstone, revealed that a new kind of sugar has been found in the hardy, woody fibers left after all the oils have been extracted from cottonseed. The use of the cottonseed and oats hulls is expected eventually to increase the demand for those products and add greatly to the farmers' profits.

Mr. Kaempffert revealed that the museum, when completed, will be divided into sections which will be devoted to physical sciences, chemistry, motive power and transportation, civil engineering and public works, agriculture and forestry, geology, mining and metallurgy, textiles and textile machinery, and printing and graphic arts.

He added that "the machines will not appear in their ordinary costumes, but will be stripped, cut, and cross-sectioned to show just what it is that makes the wheels go round."

New Yorkers Press Battle for Clean Air

City Puts Police Force on the Job.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—[Special.]—This city is in the midst of a sanitation drive to make New York's air as pure as country air. The first cool days of winter have found the smoke evil on the wane. Ninety inspectors—cinder cops they call them here—were busy today with their spy glasses. Some were stationed in the pent houses of the skyscrapers, others were aboard tugboats in the harbor, a few rode about in automobiles and the remainder were posted in the vicinity of factories and power plants.

Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, commissioner of health; Dr. Thomas Darlington, former health commissioner; the Fifth Avenue association, the police department, sanitary engineers and a number of the civic clubs are cooperating to permanently end the smoke nuisance which in the past has caused $96,000,000 damages annually in New York City and has shut off 21.5 per cent of daylight on an average day.

Some of the precautions to eliminate the cinder laden pall that the city has become accustomed to in winter months include:

The posting of the ninety sanitary inspectors throughout the city.

The enlisting of police aid in obtaining reports on contamination of the atmosphere by smoke from the chimneys of private houses, office buildings, industrial plants, steam engines, tugs, and steamships.

The formation of a special trial board for smoke offenders and the pledge of magistrates to deal firmly with the owners of belching smokestacks.

A proposed revision of the building code calling for equipment of factory chimneys with devices to eliminate a part of the smoke or to at least cleanse that which is permitted to escape.

A gentle but firm educational campaign coupled with warnings to first offenders that the next time they were caught smoking up the atmosphere they would be punished by a waiting magistrate.

A move to dissuade oil companies from selling fuel of a kind unsuited to certain types of furnaces and which causes incomplete combustion and increased smoke.

An average of thirty smoke offenders appear before the board at each sitting. They have been putting up a variety of excuses.

South's Battle Flags Put Beside Statue of R. E. Lee

Lexington, Va., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Robert E. Lee's recumbent statue tonight lay draped with flags which Lee led to battle. At a ceremony in the Lee chapel today eight flags were presented by the United Daughters of the Confederacy to the trustees of Washington and Lee university, to be kept in the museum near the statue. John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate in 1924, received the flags for the university trustees from Mrs. Charles G. Bolling, president of the Virginia U. D. C.

BOSTON FINDS ART RACKETEERS GARNER HANDSOME PROFITS

Boston, Mass., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Private exhibitions of "old masters," with impostors posing as members of wealthy families, lured prospective buyers into the clutches of a ring of "art racketeers," city officials said today after an investigation into a so-called "million dollar antique swindle."

The inquiry, which began with the arrest of Mrs. Clementine Briggs Doran at Holyoke, may result in similar action in Kansas City, New York and Buffalo, and possibly in Cleveland in an effort to apprehend persons involved in the swindle.

The spreading lines of the investigation being conducted by District Attorney William J. Foley and his assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, revealed today that Seymour Knox of Buffalo had paid between $70,000 and $80,000 for two pictures. Walstein C. Findley, Kansas City art dealer, was said to have been another victim of the swindlers, paying $5,000 down and giving notes of $15,000 more for a picture that was the work of the art racketeers.

Among others victimized was Harry F. Du Pont of the famous Delaware family, who made a purchase of ship china for the Anderson gallery in New York, and later discovered it to be spurious.

William M. Hekking, director of the Albright Art gallery of Buffalo, provided much information on the swindling ring when he conferred with the district attorney and Police Inspector Warren Liese today.

Hekking told the authorities about a man, now being sought and under indictment, who went to Buffalo with 37 pictures for a private exhibition. Of these two were genuine, while the remainder, according to information given the authorities, were of almost no value.

Later, Hekking said, Knox purchased a portrait of Martha Washington at an early age and paid between $50,000 and $60,000 for it. Purchased for its historical value, it was declared absolutely worthless from that standpoint by experts. Before this picture was found to be spurious, the same customer bought a picture of Washington and paid about $20,000 for it, Hekking said. Both of these deals were negotiated, the officials said, by the man now being hunted.

Arriving Opera Singers Sure Opera Has Great Future

Opera is not doomed, no matter what others may say to the contrary, Maria Olszewska, mezzo-soprano for the Chicago Civic opera, who certainly ought to know, is quite certain, she says, that the future greatness of opera lies in America. This was echoed by Mme. Frida Leider, who with Mme. Olszewska, reached Chicago yesterday for the winter season of the opera.

"There will always be opera and opera-goers," declared Mme. Olszewska. "The next generation will demand opera just as this one has, and the ones before this one. American people want the best, and they usually get it. They have a dramatic sense and a good musical ear. And they like opera."

Mme. Leider was sure that the splendor of opera is just beginning in America, and laughed at the idea that it might be supplanted by the talkies.

Both opera stars will appear on Tuesday evening in "Die Walkure."

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company, of New York, placed the corner stone of the Mackay science building at the University of Nevada this afternoon in the presence of the faculty and a large gathering of alumni and students. The building was made possible by his gifts to the school. Mr. Mackay expressed his desire to make an education possible for all who desire it. His gifts, presented in his own name and that of his dead mother and in memory of John W. Mackay, his father, amount to $1,500,000. The elder Mackay made the foundation of his fortune through his mines at Virginia City, near here.

Woman Raps Dry Law as Peril to Nation

People Tricked During War, She Charges.

The Civic theater was filled last night to hear charges of the failures of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law. There was much applause for what the three guest speakers of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform had to say.

Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley of New York, chairman of the legislative committee of the women's organization, declared:

"I believe the eighteenth amendment was put over on the American people."

When the applause subsided she added: "It came at a time when the United States was thinking about winning the war. There was federal control of railroads, food—and then prohibition.

"At the time the amendment was submitted by congress in 1917 in the United States, according to federal report, there were six states supposedly bone dry. Eighteen states were largely dry, and 18 states were wet. None of the states that had adopted the dry plan had large urban centers.

"Then the war came. Men went to France, were in training camps. Women worked for food conservation and in canteens. Men who stayed at home were conserving food, coal, etc. We were thinking of winning the war. It was war psychology. Two months after the armistice 36 states ratified the eighteenth amendment. In fighting to make the world safe for democracy we fought to make the world safe for hypocrisy."

Mrs. Kelley began her speech by saying "prohibition, like all Gaul, is divided into three parts—wets, drys, and hypocrites."

"We recognize the honest convictions of the sincere drys," she declared, "but we should rout the hypocrites from the political halls. In the wake of the eighteenth amendment there has been unparalleled drinking. It is no longer safe for the American public to allow more years to lapse during which further havoc may be wrought."

J. Russell Forgan, chairman of the Illinois division of the Crusaders, declared the time ripe for every red blooded man to come out to take a stand one way or the other.

Mr. Forgan said he had sympathy both for wets and drys, but he had no sympathy for the straddlers.

"The time is coming," said Mr. Forgan, "when any political party that refuses to take a stand on this issue is doomed to defeat."

Ralph M. Shaw, chairman of the Illinois division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, reviewed what he called the hypocrisies of the "eleven ghastly years of prohibition."

"We have seen the government select one law from all the others and marshal all the forces of the government to enforce it, while other laws are neglected and forgotten. Even murder is permitted under the hypocrisy of the prohibition law.

"It is my conviction that unless the eighteenth amendment is erased from the constitution, it will destroy the nation. It will destroy the government and the American homes."

Yankees Send Radios and Movies to African Emperor

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Against an array of elaborate gifts, sent by a dozen governments to Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, for the coronation of Emperor Haile Selassi, Nov. 2, the United States unofficially will match a radio, a refrigerator, a typewriter, three motion picture films, and 300 rose bushes.

As decreed by custom the official United States gift will consist solely of an autographed photograph of President Hoover in a costly frame.

Not until today was it disclosed that at the instance of a citizen not connected with the government several motion picture and industrial concerns, national societies and other institutions have dispatched individual gifts to bolster the United States representation at the coronation, forecast as the greatest pageant to be held in Africa since the time of the Queen of Sheba.

Suggests Old Time City as World's Fair Contrast

Dr. Allen B. Albert, assistant to Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress exposition, yesterday outlined plans for the construction of a complete replica of a medieval city on the fair grounds. He told that idea in his talk before the women's department of the Chicago Church federation at the Hotel La Salle.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Society Women Display Styles for Out of Doors

Mrs. Lester Armour, whose clothes always reflect the newest and smartest style trends, is wearing a three piece all black suit in which broadcloth and galyak are deftly combined.

The suit coat, bordered in galyak, is cut away below the waist in front and curved in back to give it the appearance of a peplum. A narrow broadcloth scarf, also bordered in galyak, falls from the collarless neckline.

For outdoor wear Mrs. Armour has one of the very short bolero jackets of galyak which fits snugly over the suit coat. A black felt bicorn hat with galyak trimming, black suede Cuban heeled slippers, suede bag and gloves are the other details of the ensemble.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick was seen at the Arts club tea last week wearing a two piece black broadcloth suit made on perfectly straight lines with a jacket banded in galyak and a pink satin tuck in blouse. The hat she wears with this suit is one of the very small, tight fitting felt turbans, untrimmed save for a small, perky bow at the top of the crown.

Doris Hasn't Much Sympathy for This "Ladylike Conduct"

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a young man of 34, have a good position, married, and have two children. I was informed that my wife has been going out with other men while I am at work. She puts the children in the movies. Time and again when I come home from work there is no one home and no dinner. I accused her the other day of what I heard. She admitted that she does go out with other men and will keep on going out with whom she likes. She also said that a married woman can go out nowadays with other men and still be a lady. She has a sister who puts her up to this and who goes out with her. My reason for writing to you is not to get sympathy, but to ask you to explain to these women what the duties of a wife are or should be. TROUBLED."

I think the wife should be hauled off to a domestic relations court, there to learn a few things about the duties of a wife and mother.

When she says that a married woman can go out nowadays with other men and still be a lady, she may be right, but she certainly does not look like one nor act like one, and it is questionable where she would get any one to agree with her. Certainly the men she steals off with afternoons after she parks the youngsters in the movies would be the last on earth to pay her the tribute. In fact, on the broad face of the earth it is questionable whether a male soul could be found who would give her the benefit of the doubt. So much for the looks of her conduct. As for her actual behavior—well, it is not written in the books that one's ladylike behavior is carried along to a rendezvous. Human nature just doesn't behave that way.

Instead of me explaining the duties of a wife, why not take on the explanation yourself, Troubled? Use no uncertain terms. If it's divorce and alimony you are afraid of, you can be afraid of that anyway when the wife starts to running around with strange men. You may, on the other hand, save yourself a lot of future monthly payments by rising up like a dictator and telling that woman of yours a few things about the necessity of being on to her job. That's all some women need. Also, see that she gets out an evening now and then if she is the kind that has to have excitement.

Pancake Hats Call for Faces That Are Cleverly Made Up

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The small hats perched away back on the head call for less makeup, not more, one concludes after a day of looking faces over on the broad marts and highways.

With the brimmed hat you can put an extra dab of color on cheek and lip, a deeper stroke of eyelash and eyelid tinting—but those small hats, my sisters, may revolutionize the whole makeup game. If you go in for the warm tan colorings you have to be even more fastidious in their application than with the ordinary makeup, although with the latter you certainly have to be fastidious or your makeup will make you look a fright.

To begin with, the small hats worn away back call for a fresh and youthful face. That, however, will not prevent all of us from taking a plunge on one of them. They're trying—and awfully trying to the makeup. You just look the first over carefully, yourself, and see if the amateur and hurried hand doesn't show up badly with them.

If you aren't awfully skilled with your makeup and you would like to get a more subtle effect [which is what we are recommending for the Tom Thumb millinery piece] use a cream rouge. And practice with it. It has a certain fineness and a softness that I don't think you get with the compact, although the latter is indispensable for emergency touching up.

The effect with the cream rouge is more natural—and it is more lasting than the powder. Take time to blend it into the skin. Apply it in three small dots [not too much] and at the spots that coincide with the high points of your coloring.

Slap your cheek and let the color subside if you have to remind yourself where the natural coloring should be. And work it in finely. Don't get too much color on in this basic step. You can, if necessary, give a faint dab later with the compact. Keep the color down to normal—or else you will get only a painted look with your fully exposed face.

If you have strong features and your eyes are large and bright you can stand more rouge.

Parisiennes Take the Cutaway Path to Chic

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

Paris.—[Special Correspondence.]—Many of the smartest new costumes have cutaway jackets. Paris couturiers like this devious line because they realize what a lot it can do toward adding chic to a figure that is either too fat or too thin. It's a question of flare and length. The thin girl will choose the cutaway very short and very flaring, while the more statuesque lady will wear hers below the hips, at least, and sometimes nearer the knees—the exact length depends upon her height—and she will have it cut with a distinct droop toward the back.

The daytime ensemble from Paul Poiret, sketched above, has a cutaway jacket blouse as well as a cutaway coat. It's of dark reddish brown broadcloth—just the color of old port wine, but post-prohibition youngsters will probably understand old mahogany better. The cutaway coat is fitted tightly to the figure and flares in the most dashing manner just below the hips, being slightly longer in the back. It's trimmed all round with a band of black broadtail and this fashionable fur also makes the high turndown collar and the elbow length cuffs. The skirt also molds the figure tightly to just above the knees and then flares out smartly like the jacket. A cluster of six plaits in front helps along this good work.

The cutaway blouse has kimono sleeves, cut in one with the upper bodice and collar, of café-au-lait crepe marocain. Its basque, which mounts in front to where the collar buttons with silver cuff-links, is of old port brown marocain. A double ruffle jabot of café-au-lait georgette, piped with brown georgette, cascades from neck to waistline. The brown suede belt has a silver buckle shaped like a bow knot.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

J. K.: AN OPERATION IS NECESsary to correct outstanding ears. Dressing the hair low, and covering the ears is one way to make them less conspicuous.

F. H.: CORN MEAL MAY BE used as a dry shampoo. Allow it to remain on the hair half an hour and then brush it out thoroughly. The meal absorbs grease. Powdered orris root may be used the same way.

IN AGONY WITH INDIGESTION,

Tried Everything, Without Results—New Prescription, ACIDINE, Ends Trouble

"I am 68 years of age and had been bothered with acid indigestion, fermentation and gas in stomach and bowels for many years," writes Mr. M. A. Funk of Riverton, N. J. "Tried everything without result until I heard of ACIDINE. It gave me relief at once. Now feel great."

Just one of thousands who have been astonished and delighted at the way this new prescription, ACIDINE, succeeds where other remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different from other known medicines. Contains the marvelous digestant called Japtase. In laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain starchy foods which cause so much stomach distress. It digested 800 times its weight of such foods in 30 minutes.

Five other ingredients in ACIDINE neutralize burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble. Pain goes like a flash.

In the space of one year thousands of people have bought ACIDINE at drug stores everywhere and are enthusiastic users. Physicians are prescribing ACIDINE and thousands of people have found it the only relief from acid indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, nervousness, fullness, from acid stomach trouble.

Don't take chances of getting serious and more painful troubles. Get ACIDINE at any Walgreen or Economical drug store today. Costs only a few cents. Watch how quick pain, gas, end. Eat, drink and smoke all you want. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get ACIDINE from druggist today.

AUDIENCE APPROVES RAVEL'S 'BOLERO' WHEN STOCK REPEATS PIECE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It is quite possible that Maurice Ravel makes use of his well known sardonic smile when he thinks of the popularity of his "Bolero." After having composed so many other things and finding that they were approved by the best minds, though this is a long way from being the most minds, of those who pay attention to music, he ought to feel genuine emotion over what has happened to his work in its two years of existence.

When Mr. Stock introduced it to Chicago last season, it was as popular as something new in jazz; when he and the Chicago Symphony orchestra played it again yesterday afternoon at Orchestra hall, it was not far from touching the same point in esteem. There are those, of course, who claim that the same tune played over and over again for ten minutes soon wears out its welcome; that even Ravel's marvelous skill in orchestration is not enough to save it. But it is still a best seller to the public.

In the interval between its first performance here and yesterday I have heard it played by a number of different organizations, by radio, by record, what not, one of the records directed by Ravel himself. If any one can keep it permanently in the repertoire, it will be Mr. Stock. He has something on every other conductor who has tried it. The lambent glory of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is one thing, but in addition Mr. Stock better than any one in the world keeps the piece up to time, keeps it alive and moving and glowing.

It was one of several remarkable performances on yesterday's program. The fourth symphony by Brahms was another, a symphony that for years has kept its place on the standard list, but which Mr. Stock never permits to grow standardized, or matter of fact, or conventional in performance.

Cardinal to Celebrate Half Century of This Archdiocese

Services celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago will be held at 10 o'clock today in the Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets. Cardinal Mundelein will preside at the mass which is to be offered by the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago.

In the evening a banquet will be held at the Palmer house where a civic celebration of the golden jubilee will be conducted. This will be under the auspices of the Catholic Women of Chicago, a new organization.

It was in September, 1880, that the Chicago diocese was raised to an archdiocese, and that the Rt. Rev. Patrick A. Feehan, then bishop of Nashville, was named its first archbishop. He assumed his duties in November. Today was selected for the celebration because it is midway between the election of Archbishop Feehan and his taking of office.

Bogan Fosters Plan for Schools as Social Centers

A plan to make each public school in Chicago a "community center" for the purpose of bringing parents of school children together for programs and discussions was discussed yesterday during a meeting of forty principals at the office of William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. Mr. Bogan said the meeting was "just a little preliminary missionary work."

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 24.—Michigan and Illinois football elevens will meet tomorrow afternoon before 75,000 spectators, most of them homecoming Wolverines, in a contest which to the outside public appears to be a comparatively easy victory for the pupils of Coach Harry Kipke. To Michigan men, however, it is not just another gridiron fray. It is a battle against a resourceful and resourceful opponent, whose prowess and [illegible] has been tested over a period of years.

To understand this feeling it is necessary to understand the athletic rivalry existing between these two great universities of large undergraduate bodies. This rivalry would be called traditional except that it has existed for only a few years to give tradition. Its [illegible] is within the last decade. In many respects it is unlike any other rivalry in the middle west. Back in the old days, when Michigan and Chicago were arch rivals and Illinois, not yet an athletic power, regarded an occasional victory over the Maroons as an event and not a habit, Michigan and Illinois did not meet. Then came Michigan's withdrawal from the conference, during whose absence Zuppke took his football coaching talents to Champaign, and the two colleges became opponents.

Tied in Games to Date.

Since that time Michigan elevens have been the only ones over which Zuppke's teams did not hold a margin of victory. The series stands five-all, with Illinois's fray thus determining the championship leadership.

Between the Illini coach and Yost, Michigan coach and now athletic director, there also has been personal rivalry, friendship, and respect. It was a merry war from Zuppke, loaded with the [illegible] which his Teutonic humor often [illegible] much to Zup's own surprise, caused Yost to resume his vacated position as Michigan's head coach.

Zup sallied forth at a coaches' meeting in New York the winter following the game in which Red Grange starred through Wolverine ranks in a 39 to 14 victory. It was somewhat to the effect that Yost was not fit to run for some office in the coaches' league because he ceased to be head coach at the end of the first half of the game. Anyway, the quip stung. Yost resumed the reins and did not relinquish until his elevens had downed the Illini in 1925 and 1926.

Yost Admires Zuppke.

This incident is not important in itself. It is related as forming part of the background for present Michigan-Illinois relations. Instead of showing bitterness in its wake, Yost will tell you, in fact told the writer on this trip, that Zuppke is one of the greatest coaches in America, of whom there are not more than a few, if that many, truly great.

Football furnishes a setting and a reason for this rivalry. But there are other reasons. Michigan and Illinois meet in practically all branches of intercollegiate competition. In track, baseball, basketball, and the so-called minor sports, athletic squads are visiting back and forth. Therefore the undergraduate partisanship is not [illegible] but constant throughout the college year.

All of these facts cited are why there seems to tomorrow's game than merely a place in the Big Ten ratings [illegible]. Of course, from a strictly football viewpoint, this game means more to Michigan than to Illinois. The Illini already have suffered imposing defeats by Northwestern. They are out of the title quest unless all the leaders falter at least one battle. Michigan, on the other hand, has victories over Minnesota and Ohio State, with Illinois, Indiana and the hapless Maroons as opponents. Championship hopes remain high.

Injuries Weaken Michigan.

Michigan Band to Harvard.

Michigan's band of 96 pieces will travel east on a special train for appearance at Harvard Nov. 8. The trip is financed by athletic association funds, as Michigan had only two out of town games this year and four conference games at home. Many students also are hoarding their allowances for an all-expense round trip rate of $7.

Chicago Boy in Lineup.

Wallace Miller of Wilmette, expected to appear against Illinois, is the only boy from the Chicago district on the Wolverine varsity. This is somewhat unusual, for in many former years Chicago high school graduates, especially from Hyde Park and Oak Park, frequently studded the lineup.

Gridiron Personnel.

While boys from Michigan prep schools predominate on the Wolverine football squad, there is a greater percentage from outside than at any other Big Ten state university. This, no doubt, is because of widely scattered alumni. Michigan is older in prestige and tradition than most of the others, its professional schools had national ranking when others were making their big advances of the last three decades.

Capt. Simrall hails from Lexington, Ky., home of the University of Kentucky. To our query why he chose Michigan, he replied that his family were great friends of a Wolverine faculty member and he also wished to attend college away from home. He plans to enter medical college here after graduation.

PAGE MAY QUIT INDIANA FOR JOB IN WEST, REPORT

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—No confirmation was made here tonight of the report that Pat Page next year would leave the University of Indiana to become football coach at the University of California branch in Los Angeles. Page is en route to Dallas, Tex., where tomorrow the Hoosiers play Southern Methodist university.

It has been reported that Page has been offered the football coaching job at the University of California of Los Angeles, beginning next fall. Bill Spaulding, formerly of the University of Minnesota, is coaching at the far western school, but will relinquish his duties as grid coach to become athletic director, it is said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 24.—Wisconsin's decision to hold its football club in Chicago tonight on account of possible slumber disturbing festivities in connection with the Purdue homecoming was interpreted by local observers to mean that Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite and his men are taking the Boilermaker-Badger clash of tomorrow most seriously.

The switch off was so sudden that the manager of one of the local hotels, who had been asked to prepare for forty-six men and pledged not to rent out the ballroom for tonight, late this afternoon had not received the Wisconsin cancellation, a matter that irritated him no little.

Through the hasty employment of operatives, after the athletes failed to get here on scheduled time, the hotel man tonight discovered that the Badgers were housed in a Chicago inn, protected from even auto horns through the planting of zone of quiet signs.

News Stimulates Purdue.

This bit of pampering caused no end of amusement here, except in the case of the hotel man. It also served to increase the desire of the hardy Boilermakers to knock off the boys who must have their sleep, hotel reservations or no hotel reservations.

While the well known lust to win was rampant, there was no one in the Purdue camp willing to predict victory. Coach Noble Kizer, however, was willing to promise a team unhampered by casualties, except in the instance of Alex Yunevich, whose ailments have been recorded with great persistence throughout the week.

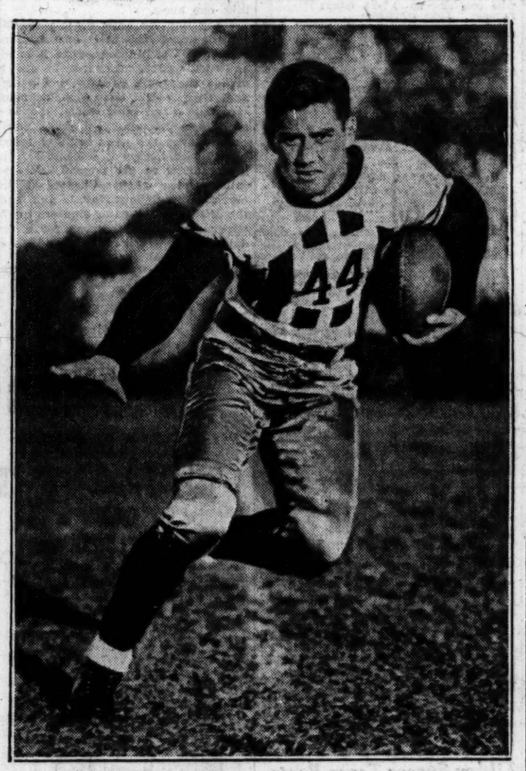
Kizer put his boys through a drill on the regular playing field, then did something to insure some sleep for his lads, though the maneuver was not quite so precipitate as that of Wisconsin. He put his players to bed out at the Lafayette Country club, after assuring himself that all the noisy crickets had been chilled to death during the recent cold spell.

30,000 to See Game.

A capacity crowd of 30,000 is expected at the enlarged Ross-Ade stadium tomorrow. It is understood that the Badgers are bringing a delegation of 2,000 to augment the mob of Purdue homecomers. The game also is attracting many nonpartisan football bugs who are said to be interested in the contest as a factor in the Big Ten championship. Wisconsin is undefeated in the conference and also is the possessor of a clean slate in other clashes, including last week's defeat of the rather strong team from the University of Pennsylvania.

Despite the heartbreaking 14 to 13 trimming they took at the hands of Michigan, the Boilermakers still are hopeful that they can defend their conference championship, won last year, with at least an equity in the 1930 championship. This optimism, of course, hinges largely on the hope that Illinois will flash a surprise victory over Michigan, Purdue the while beating Wisconsin, and then marching on to a victory next week over the Illini and subsequent triumphs over Chicago and Indiana.

WAIKIKI TO WISCONSIN



A Hawaiian with an Irish name, direct from Waikiki beach, is one of Wisconsin's star half backs this fall. His name is Walter McGuire, and he's seven-eighths native Hawaiian. McGuire will play at right half back against Purdue today. He is a 10 second 100 yard dash man and can punt 55 yards barefooted, a trick he learned in the islands.

Army Hopes to Catch Up with Booth to Settle Old Grudge

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 24.—Those inveterate week-enders, the Army football players, who nowadays do more visiting round than a destitute duke of the old régime, will have an opportunity to make a mugg of Albie Booth, the head man of the Yale football team, tomorrow in the bowl.

It may be remembered that the Army chaps had a similar opportunity on this same Saturday a year ago and that while several parties were made muggs of that afternoon, Albie was not one of them. The effort to make a mugg of Mr. Booth has since become something of a campaign. The scope is wide, including eight football teams and a total of probably 150 hostile football players, and, while the young man certainly has been deterred from time to time, it still remains for any team to make a mugg of him, all of which conveys a suspicion that Albie Booth is no mugg.

Army Owes Him a Grudge.

The Army team will have at Albie with a little more enthusiasm than most teams show him, even conceding that most teams shower him with their most emphatic attentions, because his reputation as the most elusive and exasperating football player in the east was accomplished at the Army's expense last season.

Of course this is not to imply that the West Point cadets will try to unhinge and unscrew him limb from limb beyond the liberal bounds of football etiquette, but it certainly may be taken for granted that when they tackle him tomorrow, granting that they will be able to tackle him at all, they will exert themselves to see that he stays tackled. Last year the Army players seemed to think that a determined glare or a slap at the sole of his pants as he rambled past would be sufficient to throw him for a pin-fall. This failing, they began grasping him, but he only popped out of their grips like a cake of wet soap and on the whole the West Point football team, including Red Cagle, the captain, had a very unpleasant afternoon of it at Yale.

There will be several cadets on the field Saturday with a rancid personal recollection of that humiliation, among them Polly Humber, the present captain, who was one of those who couldn't stop Albie Booth the first time. Other survivors of the experience include the two Army ends, Carlmark and Messinger, the substitute end, Johnny Malloy and Miller, center.

All of these chaps were able to grab holds on Albie that afternoon, but he was such a little party, weighing only 147 pounds, that they seemed afraid they'd break him if they grabbed him firmly. Albie's theory of football, somewhat reminiscent of the old Arkansas tradition that a man isn't drunk if he can flutter an eyelash, is that a man isn't down until he stops wiggling.

The Science of Interviewing.

The Yales still insist that Albie has full permission to chatter about himself or any other topic to the representatives of the press and that all members of the football team are at liberty to have themselves interviewed if they so desire. I asked Mr. Paul Barnett, the press representative of the Yale A. A., about this because I had been hearing that the boys had been instructed to snub the fourth estate consistent with the Yale policy of deemphasizing football.

If he confirmed the report it was my intention to hunt up Albie at once as a rebellions gesture against an insidious kind of censorship and it was a relief to hear him deny the report, because when I go out to interview athletes in cold blood I can never think of anything better to ask them than "Well, how is the boy?"

The answer to that is "O. K., thanks," and this is not the stuff that newspaper crusades are made of.

As to the probabilities of the football game I should surmise that the Army will be playing fast and loose, and Yale fast and close, according to their well known predilections.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

As a climax to the celebration staged annually in behalf of the Dads, the Wildcats of Northwestern will spend sixty minutes in action with the Praying Colonels from Centre college, Danville, Ky., this afternoon at Dyche stadium.

So long as Centre, with a squad of only 22 physically sound youths available, is going up against one of the toughest layouts in the midwest, both as to ability and number, the Purple athletes were not greatly worried over today's job when they went through a final polishing up drill yesterday afternoon. Most of them, while combatting the tricks of the Colonels, probably will be thinking of the bigger arguments ahead, Minnesota, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Notre Dame, for instance.

N. U. to Start Reserves.

In keeping with his previously announced plan of using as many second string men as possible until such time as, and if, the Colonels display some unexpected ferocity, Coach Dick Hanley will start off with a somewhat makeshift lineup. Only two regulars will be in the line and two in the back field at the kickoff.

The other regulars will see some service, however. All of them, barring the few still showing the effects of the vaccinations which followed the discovery that Half Back Hank Bruder was a smallpox victim, will be used for at least a few minutes, if for no other reason than to convince them they still are regulars. This includes Left End Baker, who will be permitted to display his art as a pass receiver, but there probably will not be much Purple passing. Hanley wants his men to concentrate on the rushing game, at which they have been deficient thus far.

Centre Captain Injured.

The Colonels may be forced to carry on their one hour of warfare without the assistance of Grabruck, their captain. The lad injured a knee in practice several days ago and after the Kentuckians had worked out yesterday, Coach Edwin Kubale was doubtful whether it would be advisable to play his star.

By the way Kubale, a member of the famous Centre team which trimmed Harvard and others ten years ago, worked his charges in their final rehearsal, it seems safe to predict that the southerners will confine their attack mainly to passing.

Prior to the main game the Blue elevens of Northwestern and Notre Dame will tussle in the stadium. They will have to get their argument cleaned up between 12:30 and 2. About 25,000 are expected to witness the program. Included in this total will be Boy Scout troops and Y. M. C. A. groups, which will be the guests of the university.

TODAY'S THE DAY —IF EVER—FOR A MAROON VICTORY

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Word has been going round the campus to the effect that the Chicago Maroons regard today's game with Mississippi as a preparation for Princeton rather than a serious encounter in its own right. Of course, this is merely an attitude of mind rather than an official statement, and that seems fortunate when one contemplates the embarrassing situation which the southerners might precipitate.

To be sure, Mississippi has done little to stamp itself as a formidable team, as it has only a 64 to 0 victory over Union college to offset defeats of 27 to 0 from Tennessee, 13 to 0 from Sewanee, and 64 to 0 from Alabama.

Maroons Not So Hot.

The Maroons, on the other hand, have nothing to their credit but victory in a double header with Ripon and Hillsdale, and since that time they have been beaten 34 to 0 by Wisconsin and 19 to 0 by Florida.

That sets the stage for the boys who step in on Saturday morning to forecast the winners of the afternoon games. These football experts are in much the same situation as the horse race followers were one day last summer when Broadway Limited, the $65,000 colt which never won a race, was scheduled to go to the post against a very ordinary field.

For years the handicapper had been using seven stereotyped expressions to denote the horse which he believed would win in each of the seven races. After the name of his choice in race number one he would write, "Gets the call"; after choice number two he would say, "Has the edge," and so on until his seven expressions were exhausted.

It's "Now or Never."

But after computing his handicap figures to the fourth decimal place on this particular day, he found that Broadway Limited should win, and he was so moved by this discovery that he thought up an eighth expression to use in place of those he had been employing for years. Labels

OUSTER GOES INTO EFFECT NEXT SEASON

Faculty Group Hits Recruiting.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Violation of Big Six conference rules regarding recruiting and subsidization of athletes brought virtual ostracism for the University of Kansas by the other five members of the conference here early today after a five hour session of conference faculty representatives who heard evidence against the Jayhawk institution presented by Prof. W. A. Tarr, University of Missouri representative.

The faculty representatives announced that after existing schedules for the present academic year are completed athletic competition between the University of Kansas and the other five members of the conference will cease. Contests not already under contract for the current year will be played and none beyond those carded for the current year, whether under contract or not, will be permitted, under the faculty ruling.

Missouri Protests Bausch.

Missouri had protested James Bausch, Kansas star, in football, track, and basketball on the grounds that his entry into Kansas had violated the conference rules against recruiting and that his continuance as a student there while receiving a monthly stipend from an insurance company violated the conference rules against subsidization.

In addition to the conference action, which was announced by Dean S. W. Reaves of Oklahoma, secretary of the conference, Dr. H. H. King, Kansas State faculty member, announced that William Meisinger, Kansas State football and baseball player, who is also under monthly salary from E. H. Lupton Jr., had been declared ineligible by Kansas State. It was emphasized that there was no conference action against Meisinger, but King said he was telegraphing Coach Bo McMillan of Kansas State at Norman, Okla., that Meisinger must not be used in the Aggies game with the University of Oklahoma today.

Whether Kansas will take similar action against Bausch and other members of the Jayhawk athletic teams who are receiving money from Lupton was not learned. The understanding, however, was that upon such action will depend Kansas' restoration to good graces.

Board Issues Statement.

The conference statement follows: "In view of policies at the University of Kansas in violation of the rules of the conference relating to recruiting and subsidizing athletes, the other five members of this conference decline to schedule any athletic games or contests not now under contract with the University of Kansas for the academic year, and no game or contest beyond this year."

Dr. George C. Shaad, University of Kansas faculty representative, said following the announcement of the conference action that he had no further statement to make. He will confer with other University of Kansas officials at Lawrence, he said, before making any decision as to the fate of the K. U. athletes.

The action taken by the Big Six conference with reference to Kansas is virtually identical with that taken with respect to Iowa by the Western conference two years ago when similar charges were brought against the Hawkeyes.

Kansas Without Schedule.

The effect of the order is the same, for Kansas will be completely without the pale of conference competition after present schedules are completed in May. The Jayhawkers probably will begin to feel its effects earlier in some sports for which full schedules and contracts have not yet been arranged.

The conference order came with dramatic suddenness, after official predictions yesterday afternoon that the conference would content itself with the drafting of a new code regarding subsidization and recruiting.

It would not be surprising to see Kansas follow in the footsteps of Kansas State in declaring Bausch and the other recipients of Lupton funds ineligible.

While the conference order makes no suggestion as to what procedure Kansas should follow, and the faculty men were reluctant to comment, they did make it clear that the entire matter is in the hands of Kansas. The order sets no time limit, but the faculty men admitted that it could be repealed at any time, presumably upon the conference's satisfaction that conditions and practices at Kansas meet with the letter and the spirit of the conference rules.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Royal Son, a lowly selling plater last summer, demonstrated at Hawthorne yesterday that he can easily hold his own with the best of the overnight handicap performers.

Royal Son came into possession of the Nash brothers' Valley Lake stable of Chicago only a couple of weeks ago. They took him out of a claiming race. But he hasn't been back among the platers since he was transferred to the Chicagoans'-stable and in his first start for them he ran a close second. Yesterday in the Clarendon purse at a mile and a sixteenth he was a handy winner by a length.

Stars Trail Him Home.

And among those who trailed him home were the noted stars Karl Eitel, Ladrone, Lieut. Russell, Galahad and Seth's Hope. Royal Son let Karl Eitel make the early pace, moved up with his winning challenge at the head of the stretch and had Karl Eitel and Ladrone, which finished second and third, wobbling behind the speed he was cutting out in the late stages.

Royal Son's victory brought joy to most of those in the crowd of 6,500, for there came a mighty plunge on him five minutes before post time which made him the favorite at post time. He paid $6.24 to win, $4.30 to place, and $2.88 to show. Karl Eitel wasn't given much consideration and those friends of Alderman Coughlin who backed him got $12.70 to place. Ladrone was at $2.76 to show.

Jockey Frye Suspended.

Earlier in the afternoon the judges were having their troubles. In the second race after Elizabeth Sullivan had finished in front she was disqualified because her jockey, J. W. Frye, did everything but gouge out Dark Ayr's eyes as the latter moved up to take the lead in the stretch. Frye leg locked Jockey Cunningham on Dark Ayr. It looked as if he grabbed the saddle cloth on Dark Ayr and he kept pushing Dark Ayr out so widely he finally stopped the son of Traumer.

After disqualifying Elizabeth Sullivan the stewards suspended Jockey Frye and recommended to the Illinois Turf association that his license be revoked.

Bonfield Beats Civollag.

Then in the Allerton purse, the finish between Bonfield, which got the decision, and Civollag, which finished second, was too close to be comfortable for the placing judges. The crowd booed the decision but the crowd usually booes those close ones regardless of whether it is betting on the winner or not.

Bonfield beat Civollag by the narrowest of nose margins and Brass Monkey was third. Bonfield paid $12.92 in the mutuels after there had been the biggest plunge of the afternoon on Civollag. The race brought the first defeat of Liolele's racing career. The son of Easter Bells was made the favorite after winning his only two previous starts, one in Canada and the other at Hawthorne, by wide margins.

Deer Season in Wisconsin Opens Dec. 1

BY BOB BECKER.

Deer hunters this fall will have more territory for their hunting operations than they had last year in the central states because both Michigan and Wisconsin provide open seasons on the whitetails. Last year, being odd, Wisconsin had no open season.

Michigan's season on bucks is the same as last year, Nov. 15 to 30. Hunters are allowed one buck with horns not less than three inches from the skull. The license fee for nonresidents is $50. Black bear also are on the open list with the same dates prevailing.

Wisconsin's open season is a little tougher on the hunter than Michigan's because the open season does not begin until Dec. 1, continuing from that day up to and including Dec. 10. The nonresident hunting fee is $50, which gives one permission to take one buck.

Many hunters have complained bitterly against the late deer hunting season in Wisconsin because it is nip and tuck whether they will be able to invade the north country, get a deer and then come out without being caught in a bad snow storm. Or, as it sometimes happens, a severe storm sweeps over the deer country before Dec. 1 and makes it difficult for the gun bearers to get around. We recall one year when a blizzard hit the north country about Nov. 15 and made the Michigan big game hunters in the upper peninsula hibernate for a few days during which roads were blocked and cars stalled.

Today's the Day—if Ever—for Maroons

such as "My choice," "Has the edge," "Here it is," etc., were all right for the ordinary horse, but after Broadway Limited he wrote, "Now or never."

And that seems to be the word on the Maroons. It's now or never. If they lose today scarcely any one will concede them a Chinaman's chance of beating Princeton, Purdue, Illinois, or Michigan.

They started the season with a weak line and after five weeks of practice it is not supposed to be much stronger. Last Saturday it functioned well at times, but in the critical moments it was torn to shreds by the hard plunging Red Bethea.

Passes Gain a Little.

The line has been blamed for the back field's failure to function well, but that has yet to be proved. Injuries have deprived the Maroons of two of their best backs, Capt. Vic Nice and Joe Temple. Whereas other schools would have numerous reserves to hurl into the breach, Chicago is badly handicapped by lack of material, for there are not more than two or three really dependable second string men available.

Coach Stagg has remodeled the forward wall for today's game, Parsons going to center, Horwitz to guard, and Toigo to end.

Tested and approved Contest Board American Automobile Association

. . . or else use Eveready Prestone, the ONE-SHOT anti-freeze. For, in winter, a boiling radiator is an awfully bad sign. Often, it means a radiator that's freezing . . . or already frozen! With a single filling of Eveready Prestone, your car is safe for the season, even if the weather shifts from January to July, and back again.

No more testing and checking, when you use Eveready Prestone. No more wasting time when you're in a rush. No more bar-room aromas when the weather warms. No more hasty precautions when the temperature drops again. And above all, no danger of expensive damage to your car from freezing. Eveready Prestone is an all-season investment in peace-of-mind!

The Byrd Antarctic Expedition used Eveready Prestone. Cars in the famous Goodrich Silver Fleet were protected with it. The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association approves it 100%.

Eveready Prestone is economical. Not only does one filling last all winter, but it comes to you undiluted . . . a can of concentrated safety. Compared with other anti-freezes, a considerably smaller quantity is required. For those who live in the South and other moderate climates, Eveready Prestone is available in small-sized cans. Under such conditions, many cars can be protected for as little as $2.50.

Constant research has now developed Eveready Prestone to a point where it offers even greater satisfaction than that which more than a million motorists enjoyed last winter. The new Eveready Prestone is green in color, to identify it readily.

Avoid the nuisance of that last-minute rush! With this all-weather, one-shot anti-freeze, you can prepare your car for winter now . . . no matter how balmy the outside air may be. Go to your dealer or garage-man today. Have him service your car with Eveready Prestone, taking the simple precautions necessary to make the cooling-system water-tight.

The Eveready Hour, radio's oldest commercial feature, is broadcast every Tuesday evening at nine (Eastern standard time) from WEAF over a nation-wide N. B. C. network of 27 stations.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 24.—Pittsburgh expects its Panthers to upset Notre Dame in the intersectional battle between the undefeated rivals tomorrow afternoon.

While apparently concurring in the deluge of praise for the Irish team which last Saturday overwhelmed Carnegie Tech, and publicly sympathizing with Jock Sutherland over the alleged incapacity of many of his regulars, the thousands are prepared to cheer a Pitt victory. Sutherland's pessimistic statements predicting defeat have been accepted as pyschological; hence, the rush for tickets continues.

Pitt's Line One of Best.

Pitt's line, rated one of the best Sutherland has developed in seven years of coaching at his alma mater, is one reason for such underlying optimism. Notre Dame's expected decline in efficiency after its brilliant play against Carnegie is the other. The result is that 72,200 tickets, including 10,000 admissions to temporary bleachers, have been sold.

This undercurrent of opinion already has affected the confident squad of gamblers which detrained today before the recording flashlights of newspaper photographers in the early hours of a foggy gray morning.

By practice time this afternoon at Pitt's $2,000,000 stadium, Notre Dame men had sensed the task of the morrow. While there was no fear of the result, the entire group, from the undefeated veterans of last year to the sophomores making their first trip, had settled to determined preparation.

Tomorrow's battle is the turning point for each eleven. The victor seems assured an easy path until the closing contests of its schedule. Moreover, it is a holdover battle between the national rivals of 1929.

Eighteen years ago, Rockne played end for Notre Dame when Charley Dorais, now coaching the University of Detroit, drop kicked the goal which defeated Pitt, 3 to 0. The universities have not met since on the gridiron.

Twice before Pitt and Notre Dame were opponents. In 1909 the Irish won, 6 to 0, but two years later Pitt held them to a scoreless tie.

Line Takes Spotlight.

CARDS TO MEET SPARTANS WITH FULL STRENGTH

The Chicago Cardinals professional football team will open the second half of its season's schedule against the Frankford Yellow Jackets at Philadelphia today. They return to Comiskey park tomorrow to meet the Portsmouth Spartans.

Except Charles Diehl, who was injured in the game with the Bears, and who is suffering from blood poisoning, the Cards will present their full strength for the first time since early in the season. Howard Maple, the Oregon Aggies' quarter back whose passes defeated New York university two years ago, will be playing for the first time this season, having completely recovered from a shoulder injury sustained before the opening game.

The Spartans, headed by Tiny Lewis, Mayes McClain, Willis Glassgow and Chuck Bennett, are closely pressing Green Bay and the New York Giants for league leadership, and need this game to keep them in the running. The Cards, however, are the favorites because of their stronger line.

BEARS TO BATTLE YELLOW JACKETS TEAM TOMORROW

Red Grange is ready to gallop and Bronko Nagurski is prepared to crash at Wrigley field tomorrow when the Yellow Jackets of Frankford take the field in a National league grid contest with the Bears.

The Jackets have a line that includes two former Big Ten men, Tansy of Minnesota, who is at end, and Hanson, another former Gopher, who will appear at guard. Richards of Nebraska, Tackwell of the Kansas Aggies, Van Sickle of Arkansas, and Coppe of Oklahoma are other linesmen from the west.

Joe McCarthy Releases Two N.Y. Catchers

New York, Oct. 24.—[Special.]—The first striking move by the McCarthy régime in Yankee affairs came today with the release of half of the catching staff enrolled by the team during this year's pennant race. Benny Bengough, a Yankee since 1923 and a member of four pennant winning Yankee teams, was released outright to the Milwaukee club of the American association. Bubbles Hargrave, former National league batting leader, was released unconditionally.

This reduces the visible supply of Yankee catchers to Bill Dickey and Arndt Jergens, the latter a recruit who began and finished the season with the team, though spending most of the summer in the ranks of the Jersey City Internationals. The announcement of the releases came from the local office of the club after Business Manager Barrow had conferred with McCarthy at his Buffalo home over the long distance telephone.

Bengough, dean of the catching corps this year, had his usefulness impaired in the last two seasons by an arm ailment which affected his throwing. He participated in 44 games this year. He is 32 years old. His professional baseball career, which began in 1918, has been confined to the Buffalo Internationals and the Yanks. He joined the Yankees at their 1923 training camp, putting in eight years of continuous service with the club, and in his busiest season, 1925, he figured in 95 games. His best batting year was 1926, when in 36 games he maintained a batting average of .321.

In addition to his arm trouble, Bengough's slowing up as a base runner did much to shorten his major league career. When he broke in with Buffalo in 1918 he was quite fast, stealing 14 bases in the 65 games in which he played. During his eight years as a Yankee he stole exactly two bases.

Wolverines' Lead at Stake Against Illini

great eleven as compared with great Michigan elevens of the past. Coach Kipke had good material which has been weakened by injuries. Three regulars will not start tomorrow, Auer, Cox and Daniels. Two are ends. Hewitt, one of the best wing men, has been out all season. Of the three mentioned, two possibly may go into the contest at some stage.

Michigan, like Northwestern, has had more first downs scored against it than it has scored. Also like the Purple, it has passed not frequently, but intelligently, and has accepted the breaks. Its line defense has been good. In Zuppke's running attack and defense against passes, it will receive a test.

Illinois, so far, has had an off year. With veterans graduated, there were rather lean pickings. Several sophomore stars were the hope. Zuppke always has been skillful with sophomore stars. That's why many still think that somewhere along the scheduled route the Illini will flash into one of their old time upsets. Michigan hopes tomorrow will not be the day.

70,000 Tickets Sold.

Already over 70,000 tickets have been sold. Even with Michigan in winning form that is a marked tribute to Illinois. Most of the Illini sympathizers arrive in the morning. Michigan's advance guard is here tonight, swamping fraternity houses and hotels. They took part in the pep session at Hill auditorium, where J. Fred Lawton, '11, author of "Varsity," was the principal speaker. It was Lawton who two years ago predicted Michigan's victory when the Wolverines appeared to have less chance than has Illinois this time.

Removed far from this excitement were the two elevens. Illinois players who took a final signal practice in the bowl this afternoon are quartered in a Ypsilanti hotel, from whence they will come by bus for the game. Michigan's stalwarts after their final work were taken to the Barton Hills Country club for a night of rest and quiet.

Fighters Training for Coliseum Card Challenge Fans

George Neron, Greek champion, who fights Tuffy Griffith in an eight round bout, and Nattie Brown of San Francisco, who meets Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, in another eight rounder, have attracted a following among the fans by broadcasting challenges from the ring every afternoon. Neither Neron nor Brown has fought here previously.

Charlie Retzlaff of Duluth will take on Andy Shanks of Michigan at eight rounds. Both fighters are proud of their knockout records, Retzlaff claiming 30 victims and Shanks pointing to a record of eight straight knockouts he achieved in a recent tour.

Paul Pantaleo, Chicago, and Harry Dillon of Canada will meet in another eight round bout. The four round preliminaries will pit Joe Corbett against Knute Dane and Marion Matuszak against Buck Everett.

Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, former light heavyweight champion, has been in training for ten days at Speculator, N. Y., for his bout with King Levinsky at the Chicago Stadium on Nov. 6. Stadium officials learned this yesterday when they telephoned Slattery to tell him to get to work.

Wilberforce and Tuskegee Battle Today

Tuskegee Institute's football team, which won the Southern Colored Intercollegiate conference championship for seven consecutive years, will battle Wilberforce this afternoon at Soldiers' field. It will be the third meeting between the two elevens. The first game ended in a 6 to 6 tie, while last year a touchdown by Ben Stevenson gave Tuskegee a 6 to 0 triumph.

Wilberforce, coached by Harry Graves, former Michigan State player, is seeking its first victory of the season in today's game. Last week the Ohioans lost to Fisk, 12 to 6. The probable lineup follows:

BELOIT FRESHMEN TOP LAKE FOREST YEARLINGS, 6 TO 0

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Beloit college freshmen defeated Lake Forest yearlings today, 6 to 0. The only touchdown was made by Beshore on a plunge from the two yard line in the third quarter. Shortly before he had carried the ball to the 10 yard stripe after a 35 yard return of a punt.

KENOSHA RESERVES LOSE.

Chicagoans Lack Punch Inside 10 Yard Line.

Coe administered the fourth consecutive defeat to Loyola university last night at the Loyola stadium by a 12 to 0 score. Six thousand saw the Kohawks score in the first and third periods for their victory margin.

Coe, out for its fifth consecutive victory this season, scored soon after the opening kickoff on Hild's long pass to Frisbee. Six consecutive first downs brought the second touchdown in the third quarter.

After the second exchange of punts Coe took the ball on her own 48 yard line. Two cracks at the line failed, but Hild tossed to Frisbee for 22 yards and he scampered the remaining distance for the score. Allen's drop kick was blocked.

Loyola Fails to Show Punch.

In the second period Loyola lost three chances to score when it was unable to push over a touchdown with the ball on Coe's ten yard line. On three occasions Loyola lost the ball on downs to the Kohawks within the ten yard line. Even Les Molloy, Loyola star, who was out with a cold, was injected into the game, but could make no headway through the Coe line.

In the third period Coe started a drive and netted all of their six first downs of the game and the second touchdown. Frisbee, Forney, and Hild alternated as ball carriers, with Frisbee going over for the second score. Hild's pass for the extra point was incomplete.

Both teams were about even in a punting duel between Frisbee and Forney of Coe and Murphy and Walsh of Loyola.

Loyola's line held Coe without a first down in every period but the third, when Coe made six. Loyola got five.

Loyola Tries 13 Passes.

Both teams tried to score with passes before settling down to their line plunges in the second half. Loyola tried thirteen passes of which one was completed for a 10 yard gain and another was ruled complete for a 20 yard gain because of Coe interference. Coe intercepted three Loyola tosses while Loyola caught the same number of Coe throws. Coe completed one pass for a 50 yard gain.

R. W. CHANLER, FAMOUS MURAL PAINTER, IS DEAD

Artist, Once Husband of Lina Cavalieri.

Woodstock, N. Y., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Robert Winthrop Chanler, 57, noted mural painter, one time husband of Lina Cavalieri, the opera singer, and butt of one of the generation's most famous wise cracks, the "Who's looney now?" telegram, died at his country home here today of heart disease.

The artist had been ill for many weeks an his recovery had been despaired of for days.

Born in New York City.

Born in New York City, the artist was a great-grandson of John Jacob Astor and included among his ancestry such famous personages as Gov. Winthrop, Peter Stuyvesant, and Robert Livingston. His father was John Winthrop Chanler. His family had destined him for a political career and he consented to the extent of making and winning a race for the state assembly and later becoming sheriff of Duchess county, the latter office winning him the appellation of "Sheriff Bob," which stuck to him throughout the remainder of his life.

As he told friends in later years, however, he could not "put his heart" into politics and eventually yielded himself to his bent for an art career.

And so well did he succeed with his brush that posterity by general admission will recognize him as one of the leading decorative artists of his time. Probably his most famous work was a panel called "Giraffes," which he sold to the French government in 1923 and which later was hung in the Luxembourg museum. He got $20,000 for this work, but he had to wait some twenty years after its completion.

Decorations for Homes.

Another painting of his almost as well known, "Porcupines," now hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. Other works for which he received much praise included decorations for the homes of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, W. R. Coe, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, and Gen. Pershing's headquarters.

The "Who's looney now?" message was sent to the artist by his brother, John Armstrong Chaloner, following the disclosure that he had agreed to make a heavy money settlement upon Mme. Cavalieri before she would consent to marry him.

Chaloner had been adjudged insane in New York but had escaped from an asylum and fled to Virginia where a court held him sane. Evidently the terms of "Sheriff Bob's" high priced romance was too much for Chaloner as he insisted upon calling himself after his change of residence.

Chanler's marriage with the opera singer was a short lived affair and if newspaper reports are true Mme. Cavalieri never succeeded in collecting all of the settlement, although she did succeed in tying his property up in some strong knots, and in obtaining a settlement of some kind along with divorce.

The singer was Chanler's second wife, his first having been Julia Chamberlain. They were divorced.

CHICAGO STOCKS RALLY BRISKLY IN LAST HOUR

Receiver for Diggs Co. Is Named.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A brisk rally in the last hour on the Chicago exchange yesterday lifted stocks up from their early lows through the previous day's final quotations to a close at the peak prices of the session.

The recovery followed a period of depression which was brought on by the failure to open the specialists' books in three utility stocks. The action was taken in anticipation of the appointment of an equity receiver for E. R. Diggs & Co., New York and Chicago investment security house, which sponsored the three utility issues.

The Irving Trust company was named receivers for the firm late in the day by the New York federal court on petition of the Twentieth Century Press.

Suspend Trading.

W. Kenneth Maynard, vice president and Chicago manager of the investment firm, said that the company had over-extended itself in supporting the issues in the market. The stocks which the house sponsored were Twin States Natural Gas, Midland Natural Gas, and Inland Utilities, Inc. He stated that the three companies are in sound condition.

Trading in the three stocks was suspended as a result of a conference of exchange governors after it was discovered that supporting bids had been withdrawn.

The petition asking for appointment of the equity receiver listed assets of the firm as $4,375,000, and liabilities at $3,600,000. Both the petitioner and Diggs & Co. said that the corporation is solvent but that receivership would result in conservation of assets. Sale of the assets with the present depressed prices would be disastrous, it was contended. Besides the New York and Chicago office the company has branches in Baltimore, St. Louis, and Newark, N. J. The Chicago office is located at 29 South La Salle street.

The report that the utility firms sponsored by the Diggs firm might be taken over by United Founders was apparently based on the fact that the latter concern holds substantial blocks of the shares of the Inland Utilities and Twin States Gas.

Makes Statement.

In a statement made to stockholders E. R. Berry, president of Midland Management corporation, which owns and operates the Midland Natural Gas company, Inland Utilities company, and Twin States Natural Gas company, stated that the failure of E. R. Diggs & Co., investment bankers, should in no way affect the companies themselves. His statement continues:

"The operating companies and their securities continue to be fundamentally sound. Dividend and interest payments on the bonds and stocks can be met through the earnings of the companies which are not affected, of course, by the embarrassment of the bankers. Dividend payments on the Inland and Twin States companies were paid to stockholders on Oct. 15 last, while the dividend on the Midland Natural Gas participating class A stock payable on Nov. 1 will be paid."

Other Utilities Irregular.

Other utility shares on the exchange sold off with the suspension of trading. Before the late recovery got under way Middle West and Insull Utility sagged to new lows on exceptionally heavy sales. The rally carried Insull up for a net gain of 2¾ and Middle West was fractionally above its previous close.

Cities Service, Edison and other utility issues also wiped out early losses and finished the day with net gains.

While the early weakness was more noticeable among the utilities than in other stocks the market's general trend was along the same lines. Most of the active specialties and motor shares overcame their early declines and closed at the day's top quotations.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE STOCKS

New lows were made by the Armour shares "A" and "B" yesterday in spite of recent rumors of favorable earnings. Pennroad corporation B and Walgreen also sold at new lows. Electric Bond and Share advanced 2¾ points and closed at the top.

New Jersey Power and Light.

I am considering the purchase of New Jersey Power and Light company 4½ per cent bonds. Are these considered a conservative investment for one who cannot afford to take chances?—W. S. G.

New Jersey Power and Light company recently offered $2,000,000 first mortgage 4½s, series due 1960, to provide funds for property additions.

The value of the property securing the bonds has been appraised by engineers at an amount largely in excess of the first mortgage bonds to be outstanding.

Upon completion of this financing there will be outstanding besides these bonds $4,000,000 of first mortgage 5s, series due 1956, 33,060 shares of $6 cumulative preferred, 1,041 shares of $5 cumulative preferred and $7,500 common shares.

In the twelve months ended July 31, 1930, the properties now owned by the company produced net earnings, before interest and depreciation, amounting to $1,864,004. Annual interest requirements on the $6,000,000 of funded debt to be outstanding amount to $290,000.

Burroughs Adding Machine.

I have $2,000 to invest now and have been advised to invest in Burroughs Adding Machine company. Will you kindly send me information regarding this stock? Has this company's income been affected by the period of business depression?—M. L.

Burroughs Adding Machine company conducts a business which had been established in 1886. It is one of the leading manufacturers of office equipment. After experiencing a setback in the deflation period after the war earnings started on an upward movement which continued through 1929.

In common with other office equipment manufacturers the company reported lower earnings in the first half of 1930. Net income dropped 23.1 per cent, profits of $4,022,378, comparing with $5,235,032 in the corresponding six months of 1929.

Earnings in the first half of the current year were equal to 80 cents per share on 5,000,000 shares. This covered four-fifths of the year's dividend requirements of $1 per share.

As of June 30, 1930, current assets were $33,563,073, and current liabilities were $2,802,571. Surplus was $10,565,011.

PROFIT TAKING IN COTTON

Cotton has gained friends by the recent advance, but the disposition to take profit on all upturns is sufficient to satisfy buyers and cause recessions that are fair sized. All breaks bring in new support. The trade heard yesterday that the farm board was a large buyer. This, however, turned out to be for a large professional trader.

Closing prices were at nearly the best of the day, with futures in Chicago from 2 to 9 points higher, with New Orleans up from 9 to 11 points and New York from 9 to 19 points, the latter on October, where shorts were said to be covering. Liverpool was strong and from 12 to 14 points higher early, but closed with gains of from 5 to 6 points.

Spots in New York advanced 20 points to the 11c level, while New Orleans moved up 10 points to 10.70c on large purchases, with Galveston at 10.80c, and Houston 10.65c. Prices are up between $3.00 and $4.00 a bale of late.

A census report on ginning to Oct. 18 is due at 10 o'clock this morning. It will compare with 9,994,704 bales last year and 8,151,271 bales two years ago.

Into sight movement for the week of 841,000 bales, compared with 967,000 bales last year. The visible supply increased 498,000 bales, against 517,000 bales last year. Spinners' takings were 340,000 bales for the week. Prices follow:

OMITS DIVIDEND AS RESULT OF BIG OPERATING LOSS

Montgomery Ward Action Expected.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Facing a year of little or no profit as the result of an operating loss of $2,942,000 in the first nine months of this year, the directors of Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, yesterday voted to discontinue dividends on the common stock. Heretofore the annual dividend rate has been $3, payable 75 cents quarterly.

It had been freely predicted recently that the dividend would be either reduced or omitted, which did much to minimize the effect of the directors' action. At the same time, President George B. Everitt said that sales have improved with the last few days of cool weather, and this month will make a more favorable showing than August and September. He also expressed the hope that the company will end the year without loss.

Sears Roebuck Profits.

Another circumstance that mitigated the adverse action of the Montgomery Ward directors was the statement from authoritative sources in Sears Roebuck & Co. that this other big Chicago mail order and chain store concern has shown a profit every month this year and more than earned its cash dividend for the first nine months.

Most of the loss incurred by Montgomery Ward occurred in the first quarter of this year, being $2,318,000. The second and third quarters produced respective losses of $185,000 and $345,000. However, the company is in strong financial position, with a ratio of current assets to liabilities in excess of 12 to 1. For 1929 the net profit was $13,434,935, equivalent to $2.93 a share on the common stock.

"As with most merchandising businesses," President Everitt said, "the fourth quarter always has been our best and it appears that profits for the remainder of the year will be more than sufficient to wipe out the loss to Sept. 30. However, the directors considered it prudent to conserve the company's resources so that ample funds will be available for the future development of the business.

"While it has heretofore been the policy to issue only annual statements, our directors have decided that in the future the company will issue quarterly statements of earnings."

Slow Trade Improvement.

The weekly mercantile reviews again chronicle slow improvement in trade, chiefly as the result of cooler weather. Some pickup in industry also is denoted in increased production of electrical power.

"There is a slow and steady trend toward betterment," Dun's review says. "The sudden appearance of winter conditions stimulated retail demand in many departments, with sales in some districts exceeding last year's volume. Special offerings of merchandise and drives now under way to overcome buying inertia have been productive of results.

"Current industrial movements have made additional gains in some directions. An advance of slightly more than seasonal proportions in electric power output proves that some of the barriers acting against a readjustment are now yielding to the force of actual demand."

Production of electricity last week was almost four-tenths of 1 per cent above the preceding week and 2.7 per cent above the corresponding week in 1929, although 3½ per cent under a year ago. Orders for machine tools gained more than 18 per cent in September over August, which showed a gain of nearly 25 per cent over July. Engineering construction proposals announced last week totaled $46,184,000, compared with $6,035,000 in the preceding week and $68,751,000 a year ago, according to Construction Daily.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Officials of the Continental Shares, Inc., today announced acquisition of additional stock in the $560,000,000 United Light and Power company, to give Continental about 40 per cent of the stock and voting control. Continental Shares is one of the Cyrus S. Eaton holding companies. It recently applied to the New York Stock Exchange for permission to list $90,000 additional shares of its common stock.

Steel Merger Defense Calls Charges "Absurd"

Youngstown, O., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Defense Attorney Frederick H. Wood launched an attack today upon the opponents of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger for what he termed their "absurd and shameful charges" that the men who negotiated the merger were actuated by adverse interests.

"The charges are not only absurd but they are shameful and it is a disgrace that they should have been made," Wood declared as he brought to a close another day of defense arguments in the injunction suit against the merger.

"Under the cowardly protection of the privileges accorded counsel and witnesses for the plaintiffs, these men, all honorable and leading citizens of Youngstown, have been subjected to this calumny," the attorney said.

Assails Eaton Side.

He first assailed the Cyrus S. Eaton side for their imputation that Henry G. Dalton of Cleveland was selfishly interested in uniting the two steel companies because he is a director in both and also a partner in Pickands Mather & Co., Cleveland ore firm which does business with Bethlehem.

Dalton personally owned about 12,000 shares of Youngstown stock and with his associates represented about 140,000 shares on the board, while he owned only 780 shares of Bethlehem, Wood said.

He said that Dalton urged the Youngstown officers to get all that was coming to them and suggested that they try to obtain a ratio of 1.4 shares of Bethlehem for each share of their own instead of the 1.33 shares finally agreed upon.

Wood declared that the aggregate par value of the Sheet and Tube held by the six directors who recommended the merger contract was $10,000,000.

"Does it seem within the bounds of reason that they would sacrifice such an interest in Youngstown to save $210,000 in commissions and fees for Pickands, Mather & Co.?" Wood asked. The $210,000 represented the amount of profits which Pickands Mather & Co. received from business done with Sheet and Tube last year.

Outlines Rules of Law.

Wood outlined for Judge David G. Jenkins today six rules of law under which he claims the charges of constructive fraud, preferred by the Eaton group, should not be considered by the court.

He summarized a full day of arguments in which he sought to convince the judge that Cyrus S. Eaton and his associates, as outvoted minority stockholders, had no right to bring suit in their own name to enjoin the merger.

Eaton and his interests charged the directors of Youngstown with concealing pertinent facts from the stockholders and refusing to consider specific things that would have determined the merger terms inadequate. The charges constitute a case of so-called constructive fraud in which there is no implication of moral delinquency on the part of the Youngstown officers, Wood said.

Ohio law enables the dissenting Youngstown stockholders to obtain the fair cash value of their stock from the Youngstown company if they do not wish to receive Bethlehem stock in consideration for it and that is their remedy at law, the attorney added. He cited cases from Maryland, New Jersey, and New York in which he said the courts so held.

Proxy Charge Remains.

If Wood is upheld by Judge Jenkins the plaintiffs will have only one remaining contention on which the injunction may be allowed. This is the charge that proxies on upwards of 300,000 shares were illegally voted and counted at the stockholders' meeting April 8.

Wood repeatedly stressed the opinion, and cited numerous cases which he said supported him, that a dissenting minority has no power to disaffirm a contract between their corporation and another which has been legally ratified by a majority of their co-stockholders.

He said the rule has been applied both in cases where constructive and actual fraud have been charged against the directors who recommended the contract. The right to disaffirm a contract lies only with the corporation or with injured parties suing on behalf of the corporation, Wood said. He termed the suit brought by the Eaton minority group as a "mere transfer to this forum of the controversy at Stambaugh auditorium last April when they were outvoted by the majority."

BRAZILIAN BONDS ADVANCE; BELIEVE STABILITY NEARER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—News of the success of the revolutionary party in Brazil was greeted with relief in Wall street, where there had been apprehension, not so much because of the threatened change of government in Brazil as because of the prospects of a prolonged and disastrous struggle which would destroy a large part of the country's wealth, paralyze business relations, and impair the safety of Brazil's foreign obligations.

Brazilian bonds listed on the New York stock exchange, which have suffered severe declines since the revolution broke out, rebounded sharply today on the receipt of word that the struggle had been terminated.

The success of the revolutionists had not been generally expected in Wall street, where a high regard is felt for the former president, Washington Luis. No alarm was felt over the safety of Brazil's outstanding obligations, however. The insurgents had recently issued a statement in which they declared that they would respect all outstanding obligations of the Brazilian government contracted prior to Oct. 7.

The purpose of this declaration as it was interpreted in the financial district had been to deter American business interests from selling war supplies to the government which has just been overthrown. It is understood that several large deals had been under discussion for supplying the government of Washington Luis with airplanes and other supplies, but so far as can be learned few if any of these were completed and it is now thought that American business interests will not stand to lose by the overthrow of the government.

Unemployment Relief Seen Boon to Industry

BY SCRUTATOR.

Chicago's concerted effort to relieve the worst effects of the current depression in business, due to unemployment, may justify some evaluation of the methods that go to make up the entire relief program.

The really bad effects have been confined entirely to the out of work. In past history there have been low stages in cycles that were intensified if indeed they were not actually due to poor currency supply. The Black Fridays and the days when those who labored were paid in scrip the banks couldn't cash are within the memory of men not so old.

It is true that producers of raw materials have suffered losses; also that important element which must, to keep supplies ready for future demand, buy them in a speculative market. Yet the one fact that Americans are using more gasoline to fuel their cars than they used in 1929 tells the story that this country is not on its uppers; it has not even considered the possibility of having to walk.

Fewer Wage Reductions.

The man who has held his job is as well off as he was a year ago, to all practical purposes. Reductions in wages, although they have occurred in some industries, were only one-half as numerous as they were in 1924, which saw a relatively minor depression. The statistics are from the American Federation of Labor. Wage reductions involving only a small percentage are matched by the decline in living costs.

Practical plans are being considered here in Chicago to relieve those who are actually in want of food, clothing, and shelter. These people are the unemployed and the prospective unemployed. To sum up, the methods used to aid them are three: to make more jobs, to adjust more advantageously the distribution of the jobs available, and to pay the unemployed and their families subsidies raised by public subscription.

The first is, in all likelihood, to have a minor success. Jobs cannot be made by fiat any more than prices can. The odd bit of work around the house may give individuals a few meals and a few nights of shelter. But industry, under prevailing conditions, cannot hire labor when there is little prospect that its production can be sold without loss. Public works and capital improvements by utilities and railroads have been expanded in the past year as far as possible.

Room for Improvement.

In the second classification there is room for improvement. Instead of turning off completely a certain number of men and keeping the others on at full time, industry is urged to keep the full force on the pay rolls and cut the requisite number of hours or days from each person's work. The clothing trade, of which Dr. B. F. Squires is arbitrator, has found this the most satisfactory solution, with each worker getting an average of about thirty-four weeks a year.

The third method is the one that will have to be depended on when the others have been exhausted. It is not only humanitarian for those who have to give for those who have not, it is good business. A donated spending power of $80 to $100 a month for families which have no other source of income means a hastening of the time when overloaded warehouses will be emptied and there will be a call for labor to make more. Charity is here seen as valuable economically; it will if it reaches a scale big enough hasten the upturn in commodity prices and perhaps even in the prices of stocks.

LATE BURST OF BUYING BOOSTS CURB VALUES

An upward trend was maintained most of the day, but trading was sluggish until mid-afternoon. Total sales were only 506,700 shares.

Utilities again led the advance, and much of the late buying appeared to be for short account. Indications of the ending of the Brazilian revolution sent American and Foreign Power warrants and Brazilian Traction up more than 2 points. Electric Bond and Share, parent company of American and Foreign, gained 3 points in active trading. American Gas and Electric rose 4.

United Light A advanced 2 points. It was reported that control of the company had been lodged with Continental Shares, an investment trust sponsored by the Eaton-Otis interests of Cleveland. These interests have been dominant in the company for some time.

Vacuum was a buoyant feature in the oils, rising 3 points. Gulf also advanced 3 points, and Imperial and International rose about a point each. Price changes in the Standards were largely narrow, but a steady tone predominated. In the natural gas shares Lone Star rose 3 points and Missouri Kansas Pipe Pine gained a point.

BORG-WARNER NINE MONTHS' NET IS $2,574,205

The report of the Borg-Warner corporation for the first nine months of the year which was issued last night following the meeting of directors disclosed net income for the period of $2,574,205. This was equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.93 a share on 1,230,769 shares of common stock.

Earnings of the company in the first six months of the current year were $2,375,371, leaving a balance of $198,834 for the third quarter. Earnings for the quarter would be equivalent to approximately 11 cents a share on the common stock.

Current assets as of Sept. 30 were $17,192,229 and current liabilities were $4,146,295. Book value of the common stock at the close of business Sept. 30 was given at $22.74 a share.

Believe Stocks Now Are Near End of Bear Market

New York, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Today was an important anniversary in Wall street for which no celebration was arranged. It was the first anniversary of one of the blackest days in recent Wall street history—the 12,894,650 share day which sent leading bankers into a hurried conference to deal with a stock market crisis.

Although share prices have continued to decline, with intermediate rallies, for about a year, Wall street at least had the satisfaction today of believing that it was at or approaching the end rather than the beginning of a bear market, for stock market history shows few declines lasting much longer than a year.

PENICK & FORD DIRECTORS VOTE 50 CENT EXTRA

Directors of Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., voted yesterday to pay stockholders an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock and called for payment on Jan. 1 at $110 a share, $857,100 of preferred stock, $100 par value. The dividend is payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Dec. 3.

The redemption of the preferred stock cancels the last of that issu outstanding, similar amounts having been canceled previously. The last of the bonds were redeemed on June 1, 1929, at 105 and interest.

Directors of Weston Electric Instrument corporation voted the regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share on the class A stock and 25 cents a share on the common. They also voted to call for redemption on Jan. 1, next, 12,600 shares of class A stock at $37.50 a share and accrued dividends. The shares to be redeemed will be drawn by lot as of the close of business on Nov. 15.

The quarterly dividend on the convertible preference stock of Willow Cafeterias, Inc., of $1 a share, which is due at this time, has been omitted.

Sees Greater S. American Market for U. S. Autos

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A greater South American market for Detroit-made automobiles within the next few years was predicted today by J. D. Mendez, Venezuelan highways engineer, who is visiting with other South American road builders. Mendes said there are 30,000 automobiles in Venezuela and that with increased highway facilities more American built automobiles will be purchased.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Scattered Liquidation.

Standard Oils continue to reflect scattered public liquidation. This has worked against the occasional recoveries in that group.

Electric Bond & Share.

More speculators than ever are following the action of Electric Bond and Share as a possible clew to future trend in the curb market. Although generally classed as a utility stock, Bond and Share has long enjoyed the distinction of being the outstanding market leader, largely because of the widespread public interest in the stock and its responsiveness to bad or good news.

Newmont Status.

Newmont Mining has once again receded to a level which offers a comparatively high return on the cash dividend alone. Under 60 the stock shows a decline of more than 30 points from its high of the year. Although prospects for the copper and metal industry generally are much less favorable than when the stock was selling well above the $100 level, it is held that Newmont has discounted most if not all of the bearish features in its situation. Any improvement in copper, no matter how minor, is especially favorable to Newmont because of the nature of the company's operations.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Offering of $5,935,000 province of Alberta 3½ per cent treasury bills is being made by the First National Bank of New York, First Detroit company, Soloman Brothers & Hutzler, R. W. Pressprich & Co., Northern Trust company, and First Securities corporation.

An offering of $350,000 Greene county, N. C., refunding 5 per bonds has been made by the First Detroit company. The issue matures serially from 1931 to 1946 and is selling to yield 4 per cent to 4.60 per cent.

Funds for the payment of interest charges, due Nov. 1, on our general mortgage 5 per cent bonds of 1951, have been set aside for the purpose, according to T. C. Powell, president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway. Approximately $33,000,000 of these bonds are outstanding and the semi-annual interest payment now due amounts to about $825,000.

Directors of Weston Electric Instrument company have voted 40c call for redemption on Jan. 1 next 12,600 shares of class A stock at $37.50 a share and accrued dividends.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange will be closed Tuesday, Nov. 4, election day. Traders also will get a rest the following Tuesday Armistice day.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—Stocks ploughed on ahead today in spite of a series of drawbacks including the omission of the Montgomery Ward dividend, the fall of the Brazilian government and a further cut in the price of domestic copper metal.

It was the second "good" day the market has had in succession and, while such things have happened before, they have become such a rarity here of late that a recurrence peps the street in a rather chipper mood. Conservative brokers agreed that technical conditions looked better than they had for some time, which with their cautious way of saying that still further improvement might possibly be in store.

Outdoes Thursday.

On the whole today's advance showed up even better than that of Thursday. The gains in the active list averaged from 1 to 4 points, with a sprinkling ranging as high as 8 or 9. The public utility group was particularly strong, the rails recovered substantially, the motors chimed in, and even the oils found their quota of buyers.

In the pivotal class United States Steel responded to the nice things said about the steel industry and allied business by the big shots of the field at the Steel Institute meeting. The close found it selling more than 4 points above the improved price it chalked up Thursday. The other leaders did their stuff with more or less gusto, Consolidated Gas rising 3⅜ points, Johns Manville, 2¼; American Can, 5; and General Electric, 3⅛ points.

Activity in the railroad division was featured by a sudden burst of strength in the Van Sweringen issues, which were so conspicuously weak in yesterday's trading. Chesapeake corporation jumped 5⅛ points, Chesapeake & Ohio 3⅜, Alleghany corporation 1, Erie 3⅛, and Missouri Pacific 1¼ points. Some of the higher grade stocks of the department, while not active, did even better. New York Central for one sprang ahead for a round 8 points. New Haven jumped 3½ and Atchison 4⅞ points.

Brazilian Upset.

As for pivotals, at least two of them, International Telephone and American and Foreign Power, here helped rather than hindered by the Brazilian upset. Apparently the rank and file of traders viewed the announcement of the government's downfall as a prelude to the settlement of conditions in that country and a gradual return to normalcy. The telephone issue advanced 3 points and the power stock about 4. Western Union, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Gas & Electric, North American and Electric Power and Light were other utilities to distinguish themselves on the upside.

Announcement of the Montgomery Ward dividend action was sufficient to check the advance for a time, but its effect was short lived, most issues closing around their best prices of the day. Montgomery Ward stock closed at 20⅜, off 3¼ points on the day. Sears Roebuck sagged in sympathy for a time, but later came back and wound up showing a gain of nearly a point.

Raskob Statement.

A statement by John J. Raskob predicting better times for the motor industry was credited with stimulating some buying in General Motors and other issues of this group.

For an interesting sidelight the first transaction since last April took place in Foster Wheeler preferred. The sale was 100 shares at 150, a decline of more than 50 points. Such a decline had, of course, been expected, since no stock ever avoids a market smash merely by staying out of the market for a period.

GENERAL SELLING FOLLOWS EARLY WHEAT TRADING

Prices Suffer Net Losses of ½ Cent.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While there is a growing belief on the part of wheat traders that better things are in store for the market and ultimately a higher level of prices will be seen, an early advance yesterday, due to buying by houses with eastern connections, was not maintained. A late break at Winnipeg led to fairly general selling and the finish was about the bottom, with net losses of ½c, with old December at 79¼@80c, March 83⅝@83¾c, May 85¼@85⅛c, and July 85⅞c.

With the exception of the pronounced strength in the stock market, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the stubborn resistance shown to pressure. Local wheat traders sold early on the easiness in Liverpool, but when buying by the east started there was little for sale and prices advanced around 1c from the early low.

Minneapolis and Winnipeg both reported a good class of buying, but it appeared to run its course in the latter market, which dropped sharply toward the last and finished 1⅝@1¾c lower. Liverpool wheat was off ¼@⅝d for the day on favorable weather and crop news from the southern hemisphere, and on the official Argentine estimate that 21,307,000 acres would be harvested this season, compared with 16,200,000 acres in 1929.

In some quarters the belief prevails that the wheat situation, as far as this country is concerned, is largely a domestic proposition and that the amount of grain consumed as live stock feed will more than make up for small exports. There was some buying of wheat during the day against sales of corn. In the last two days Winnipeg has lost relatively 2c on the Chicago market, and there was a noticeable lack of foreign demand, no sales of consequence being reported.

Broomhall intimated that it might be necessary to raise estimates on the probable import needs of wheat by Europe as compared with his previous figures of 608,000,000 bu, although with France and Germany making every effort to curb the purchase of foreign grain, he was not inclined to predict larger takings at the present time. The poor quality of the European harvest this season is a factor.

Favorable weather conditions prevailed in the three Canadian provinces and threshing has been resumed over a considerable area, and the amount of wheat that will be carried over unthreshed until spring is expected to be determined by the weather of the next few weeks. Buenos Aires wheat futures closed ⅞@1c lower, with February at 68⅜c.

Corn Closes at Bottom.

Local bears were on the selling side of corn and there was also pressure from operators who were spreading with wheat. Trade in the aggregate was not large and the close was about the bottom, with net losses of ⅜@1¼c. Old December finished at 78⅛@78¼c, March 79¾c, May 82¼@82⅝, and July 83⅜@83½c.

While the country is not inclined to sell corn to arrive, there are expectations of a larger movement of new grain, and the spot basis was somewhat easier. The shipping demand was slow, with sales of 66,000 bu Weather conditions over the belt were favorable for husking, with further reports of disappointing yields being received from Illinois.

Yesterday's small supply of cattle brought strong prices, while hogs sold steady to 10c lower and additional sharp price cuts were enforced in the lamb market, bringing the latter almost to the lowest level of the season. Best cattle are closing strong to 25c higher for the week, while others are weak to 25c lower than a week ago.

Top hogs show only 25c loss, compared with a week ago, while packing grades are selling 50@60c below last Saturday. Lambs are 50c lower than a week ago and $1.00 under the high point last Monday.

The small supply of hogs unloaded on the market yesterday was augmented by a holdover of 8,000 from the previous session and buyers were able to force prices off 5@10c after a comparatively firm start. Pigs and lightweights lost 15@25c, while extremely heavy packers came down 50@75c late in the day.

The extreme top was off 10c at 9.90, while the general average showed 5c decline at $9.35. Larger loans bought more freely at the decline. Armour, Swift, and Wilson taking more than 6,000 head.

Only 3,000 were left at the close. Fresh receipts were estimated at 16,000 early and later were lowered to 13,000, comparing with 18,806 last Friday, with 26,708 a year ago and with 21,443 two years ago.

Monday Hogs in Demand.

Monday's hogs were in good demand as the "to arrive" market yesterday, but bids of $9.80@10.00 for 170@310 lb averages for Monday's delivery failed to attract sellers. Butchers averaging 260@310 lbs were bid $10.00, which was 10c above yesterday's extreme top on the cash trade.

Trading in future months was slow at steady prices, January light and medium weights bringing $8.85. December mediums were bid $8.70 and offered at $8.85. October offers were down to $9.75 at the close, but $9.40 was the highest bid.

Little change was noted in the general cattle market yesterday, although some of the plain kinds had to sell on a "catch as catch can" basis in midsession and later. Some of the heavy cattle were carried over on unsatisfactory bids. Top yearlings and steers were absent, with good grades of 926 lb averages at $12.25 being highest in the price list.

Lambs Hit Bottom.

The market for fat lambs dipped to the lowest yesterday, touching the previous low point of the season for a short period in midday, but recovered about 50c of the loss before the close. Best good to choice grades of ewe and wether native lambs brought $7.50 @7.75, although a scattering of the best selections to packers, city butchers, and shippers brought $8.00@8.10 after mid-session.

The increase in receipts during the last few days has enabled buyers to stock lamb prices in spite of the good demand for wholesale lamb at Chicago and strong to higher prices this week. Good sheep were scarce and unchanged. Yearlings broke 25@50c. Feeding lambs were in good demand at steady prices.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep, against 632 cattle, 11,377 hogs, and 7,360 sheep on the previous Saturday and 223 cattle, 11,426 hogs, and 4,871 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 12,000 to 60,000. W. C. White marked 6,000; F. Knutzen, 42,000; F. M. Sherwood, J. T. Brown, and M. J. Berkery, 2,000 each; S. Waterbury, 47,000; C. Swarwick, W. T. Reneker, and A. G. Hollander, 50,000; F. B. Orb, 52,000; J. W. Trotter, 53,000; R. W. Thorne, 54,000, and H. Wolfe, 60,000.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Cooler and more active butter advanced ½c with sharp firms. Live spring chickens declined 2c with light weight springs, and geese 1c lower. Receipts, by freight. Demand for potatoes was only fair and the undertone weak.

DOCTOR ACQUIRES 33 ACRE TRACT AT FLOSSMOOR

Will Subdivide Property on Dixie Highway.

One of the first pieces of subdivision news to be noted in some time comes from Flossmoor, where Dr. E. T. Trafelet of Chicago has purchased a thirty-three acre tract from Louis L. Kahn, a real estate man, for a reported $115,000. The property is located on the east side of the Dixie highway, between Vollmer road and 201st street. It touches the north limits of Chicago Heights.

Street grading is under way and other improvements are being put in and the property will be subdivided at once by Adolph Soloman & Co., with offices at 139 North Clark street. S. J. Cowing of Cowing Brothers was broker in the transaction.

Michael E. Rubenstein has sold the three flat building, ground 32x125 feet, at $222 Maryland avenue, to Lawrence Christie for a reported $30,000, subject to $16,000. Walter S. Hill of Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke, Inc., was broker.

Commercial Lease Demand.

A considerable firming up in the demand for commercial space since Sept. 15 is reported by Bilis Realty Inc. Leases closed recently by the firm include the following property: At the southwest corner of La Salle and Illinois streets, for fifteen years; the entire main floor at 22-24 East Lake street by the Loop Inn Cafeteria, Inc.; the entire six story building, known as the Horder building, at the northeast corner of Lake and Franklin streets, by the National Indoor Golf Courses, Inc.

The Koropp Co., Inc., manufacturers of artificial flowers and wreaths, has leased the entire four story building at 1500-10 North Halsted street, together with vacant ground adjoining it, from the Northern Trust company, trustee, for an undisclosed term. Occupancy of this property will double the firm's floor area. Naumann & Steuer were brokers.

Drug Store Lease.

The Whelan Drug company has leased for fifteen years a store in the building at the northwest corner of Fifty-third street and Kenwood avenue from Joseph Friedman. The building is to be remodeled to have four stores and the drug company will take possession about July 1, 1931. Cerf & Ehrenhalt were brokers for Mr. Friedman and the National Realty corporation acted for the Whelan Drug company.

The store at 75 West Randolph street has been leased to Lloyd & Lloyd for an undisclosed term as the first in a chain of men's hat stores. Rosenberg & Lurie were brokers. The same brokers report that the American Millinery Stores have leased shops at 6353 Cottage Grove avenue, 3246 West 26th street, 2514 West North avenue, and 848 Belmont avenue.

Lullus Howes Gehrke has sold to Stanton E. and Delia Kilts the nine room residence at 1330 Norwood avenue, lot 37½x125 feet, taking in part payment a residence in Los Angeles. Hayden Worthington of Worthington & Worthington was broker.
